1 Leydan Boykins: On September 10, 2021, 12-year-old Leydan Boykins tragically lost his life while in the custody of the Paulding County Sheriff's Office in Georgia. Leydan, a passenger in a car driven by a family friend who was stopped for a traffic violation, was taken into custody despite his age. During the incident, Leydan was placed in the back of a police cruiser that was later involved in a fatal collision. This devastating loss underscores the critical need for comprehensive reforms in the way law enforcement agencies handle vulnerable individuals, particularly minors, to prevent such tragedies from occurring.

2. Sean Bell: On November 25, 2006, Sean Bell was fatally shot by New York City police officers outside a nightclub in Queens. Bell, who was unarmed, was celebrating his bachelor party on the night before his wedding. The officers fired a total of 50 shots at Bell and his two friends, resulting in Bell's death and the injury of the other two men. This tragic incident sparked widespread outrage and highlighted the urgent need for police accountability and reform.

3. Emmett Till: On August 28, 1955, 14-year-old Emmett Till was brutally lynched in Money, Mississippi. Till, an African American teenager from Chicago, was visiting relatives in the South when he was falsely accused of offending a white woman, Carolyn Bryant, in a local grocery store. The accusations led to his abduction by two white men, Roy Bryant and J.W. Milam, who tortured and murdered him before disposing of his body in the Tallahatchie River. Till's body was later recovered and displayed in an open casket by his mother, Mamie Till-Mobley, to expose the horrific violence and injustice. This case became a catalyst for the Civil Rights Movement and a stark reminder of the deep-seated racial injustices that continue to demand vigilance and reform.

4. Trayvon Martin: On February 26, 2012, 17-year-old Trayvon Martin was tragically killed in Sanford, Florida. Trayvon, an African American high school student, was unarmed and walking back to his father's house from a convenience store when he was confronted by George Zimmerman, a neighborhood watch volunteer. Zimmerman, who was carrying a concealed weapon, claimed that he shot Trayvon in self-defense during a struggle. Despite significant evidence and public outcry, Zimmerman was acquitted of all charges, sparking national protests and renewed debates about racial profiling, gun control, and the justice system. Trayvon's death became a pivotal moment in the movement against racial injustice and a powerful symbol in the fight for civil rights.

5. James Scurlock: On May 30, 2020, 22-year-old James Scurlock was fatally shot during a protest in Omaha, Nebraska, against police brutality and racial injustice. Scurlock, an African American, was participating in demonstrations in response to the killing of George Floyd. During the protest, a confrontation occurred between Scurlock and Jake Gardner, a local bar owner who had armed himself and was involved in the altercation. Gardner shot Scurlock, resulting in his death. The case attracted significant attention as Gardner initially faced no charges, leading to widespread protests and calls for justice. The decision to later charge Gardner with manslaughter underscored the deep divisions and challenges in addressing cases of violence involving civilians and self-defense claims in the context of social unrest.
