NOBLE CVC – Black History Facts

Chief Eric D. English also made history by becoming the first African-American police chief of Harrisonburg, Virginia. His appointment to this position was another significant milestone in his career, demonstrating his dedication to public service and leadership in law enforcement. Chief English's achievements in both Harrisonburg and Henrico County serve as an inspiration and highlight the importance of diversity and representation in leadership roles.

Chief Eric D. English made history by becoming the first African-American police chief of Henrico County, Virginia. He was appointed to this position on September 14, 2020, after a distinguished career with the Richmond Police Department, where he served for 28 years and rose to the rank of Deputy Chief of Operations. Chief English is known for his commitment to transparency and community engagement, having implemented measures focused on police transparency and community input during his tenure as police chief in Harrisonburg. His leadership in Henrico County marks a significant milestone in the county's history and serves as an inspiration for future generations.

I hope this helps! If you need more information or another fact, feel free to ask. 😊