CENOTE, UNDERWATER WORLD OF MAYAN CIVILIZATION

1eps. x 50min. / 4K, UHD

Topic: History

Cenotes are unique natural phenomena on Mexico's Yucatán Peninsula, the ancient ruins of which show the glory of the Maya civilization and its fall. The journey to discover the mysteries of the Maya civilization that lie hidden in the cenotes is compelling documentary material about the wonders of nature and the fascination of history. Although cenotes are some of the most popular destinations among archaeologists, there are only a handful of documentary films dealing with them, because of the challenge of shooting underwater caves. This documentary, filmed by our top videographers with Ultra High Definition (UHD) cameras, unravels the secrets of the Maya civilization and the cenotes, and reveals the stunning and vivid scenery of the underwater caves in high definition.

SECRET FOREST, THERE LIVES PRASIOLA

1eps. x 50min. / 4K, UHD (partial 8K)

Topic: Nature

This seaweed grows in fresh water, in a place that nobody thought it was possible to do so because seaweed is usually a sea plant. Where can we see this amazing ecological scene? In 'Sohan Valley' in Samcheok, Gangwon-do, South Korea. This seaweed is one of the rare species and the freshwater seaweed habitat in the only one in Korea. Freshwater laver, a type of green algae, lives only in cold and clear freshwater and has a unique physiological and ecological characteristic that breeds in two forms. The seaweed is rich in calcium, phosphorus, zinc, and has other anti-cancer properties. Moreover, it is also valuable as a biological resource. Only about 20 species of this seaweed exist around the world, covering the world's freshwater seaweed-foreign habitat, that has become a subject of bio-resources. We will examine the global status of the seaweed and the value of it and we will capture the moments in 8K and UHD 4K ultra-high definition. By recording our indigenous freshwater seaweed, we want to highlight the importance of protecting bio-genetic resources and preserving the environment.

PANTANAL

2eps. x 50min. / UHD

Topic: Wildlife, Nature

Part 1. To Be or Not to Be

With Luciano Candisani, Brazil's world-renowned natural photographer and environmental photographer, we will explore world's largest wetland Pantanal that is as large as Korean peninsula, located in southwestern Brazil. As a National Geographic dedicated photographer, Luciano has photographed the lives of dramatic moments of animals from Pantanal, and has delivered a message of intense survival competition and nature conservation. We also include changes in the life and death of Cayman crocodiles, Jaguar, and capybara following the dry season and the rainy season

Part 2 Nature's Apocalypse

Reveals the incredible mysteries of this largest wetland on the planet. Many lives in the dry season are paralyzed as death, and more lives are born in the rainy season. As in the case of crocodiles and otters, once a natural enemy becomes food after a while. As the plants rot in the rainy season, oxygen is being consumed rapidly that is necessary for the creatures in the water, but the organisms that produce oxygen such as the coopers again restore the oxygen in the water, and the water creatures flourish. Through the scenery and natural environment of the Pantanal Nature, we listen to the mysteries of nature, his working principles, and the soundless message to us

Topic: Human, Family, Culture, Spiritual life

2020 SANTIAGO INDIE FILM AWARDS-BEST DOCUMENTARY FEATURE

2019 Official Invitation of Arizona International Film Festival

2018 Official Invitation of EBS International Film Festival

The friendship between a French female shaman Colette & a Korean female shaman Sung-mi, who would've been burned out as a witch if they're born in the Middle Ages.

Born in different countries yet resembling each other so much, two women walked the path of life that was surprisingly similar.

A baby girl was born in a small rural village of Jura in France. Her name is Colette.

Another baby was born on the outskirts of Seoul, Korea. She is Sung-mi.

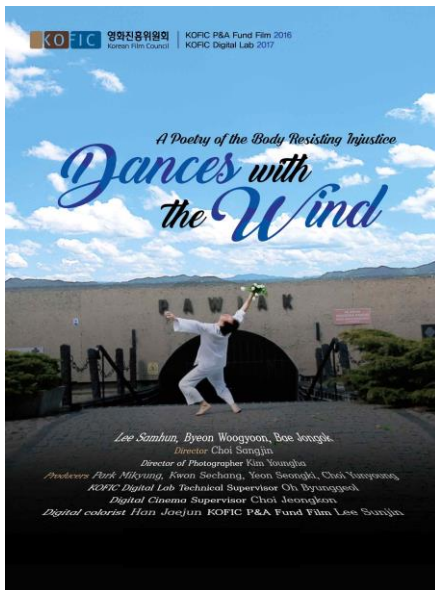

Colette & Sung-mi wanted to live normal lives like any other women. But they couldn't because of visions and voices from deities which they have experienced since they're very young. They thought this was their divine punishments.

After meeting each other at the 2014 International Shamanism Festival in France, Colette and Sung-mi realized that their special abilities could be something meaningful: they are gifts given from God to comfort and soothe the pain of other people.

Finally, Colette & Sung-mi accepted their fates as shaman and began their spiritual journey.

FISHER QUEEN - WOMEN VS. NATURE

1eps. x 50min. / 8K

Topic: Nature, sport, adventure

The queen of a fly fishing, 'Jeong Park' casts a line with an elegant curve and lands the float exactly where she wants. The spear fisher 'Hae-ri Kang' waits in the ocean floor for the right game holding her breath. And 'Ryeo-jin Ko' who is a 'haenyeo', which means a woman diver for living in Korea, takes the marine product from the sea only as much her breath allows.

Their fishing is not just the fight against nature. Sure it's rough, but it's also their journey through underwater and an experience of being united with nature, rumination on the sustainable ecosystem, and the solidarity standing on a basis of equality. This film unfolds the scenario of beautiful river, stream, and ocean through winter to spring, summer and autumn, with the three fisher queens' life story

THE LAST CAPITALISM

4 eps x 60min

The world is festering in a polarized society of 1 percent and 99 percent.

In the world's richest country, the United States, 22 percent of children are in poverty.

And, one in 45 children has no home, wandering here and there.

On the other hand, 1 percent of people from the United States has 42 percent of its total wealth. China, which is another member of G2, also has 41.4 percent of the total wealth in the top 1% income bracket.

Why is capitalism, once called the optimal system, causing so many side effects? How can we change the current system that brings inequality and side effects?

From the United States to China, from Himalayas to the hidden islands in the Pacific Ocean, a 65,000-km long journey of <The Last Empire> began from these questions. Instead of listening to the fundamental opinions of economic experts, we made new attempts to find a solution in the secrets of human survival history.
