Origin of iWATCH Army

- iWATCH Army is a nation-wide modern version of neighborhood watch designed to encourage and enable members of the Army community to help protect their community by identifying and reporting suspicious activity or behavior that may be associated with terrorist activities.
- The Passive element of iWATCH Army is individual situational awareness of the surroundings.
- The Active element of iWATCH Army involves individuals taking action to report suspicious activity or behavior to military police or local law enforcement for investigation.

Origin: Headquarters, Department of the Army, ALARACT Message 110/2010, Army Implementation of iWATCH (Terrorist Watch Program), 15 April 2010

Indicators of Suspicious Activity or Behavior (What to Report)

- Individuals drawing pictures or taking notes in an area not normally of interest to a tourist or showing unusual interest in or photographing security cameras, guard locations, or watching security reaction drills and procedures
- Multiple sightings of the same suspicious person, vehicle, or activity, separated by time, distance, or direction
- Individuals who stay at bus or train stops for extended periods while buses and trains come and go
- Individuals who order food at a restaurant and leave before the food arrives or who order without eating

iWATCH Training is Critical for Contractors

- Terrorists can attack anywhere, anytime
- Army contractor support is vulnerable to terrorist exploitation and attack
- Aniterrorism and OPSEC considerations for contracts is vital to protecting the force
- Units requiring contractor support must determine whether iWATCH training is required and include the requirements within the Performance Work Statement

Contractors should understand the indicators of suspicious activity and how to report
