

Sevan Minaskanian

Author Bio

SHORT BIO

Sevan Minaskanian is a Los Angeles–based author and lifelong storyteller with a passion for emotionally driven narratives. A natural daydreamer, she has spent years imagining characters and stories rooted in love, family, and personal growth. Winter Time marks her debut novel, bringing to life a story she has carried with her for years.

She lives in Los Angeles with her husband, Peter, and their two children.

LONG BIO

Sevan Minaskanian is a Los Angeles–based author whose love of storytelling began long before she ever put pen to paper. A lifelong daydreamer, she has always been drawn to imagining characters, relationships, and emotional journeys, quietly shaping the stories she always knew she would one day tell.

After building a life centered around family, Sevan is now stepping into a long-held dream with the release of her debut novel, Winter Time. Her writing explores themes of love, identity, and resilience, with a focus on the emotional experiences that shape who we become. Through her work, she hopes to create stories that resonate with readers navigating first love, self-discovery, and the complexities of growing up.

She lives in Los Angeles with her husband, Peter, an engineer, and their two children, Viken and Lori. Viken has followed in his father’s footsteps, pursuing engineering at their shared alma mater in Northridge, while Lori has carved her own path as a health and fitness coach. Surrounded by family and inspired by everyday moments, Sevan continues to imagine, create, and bring new stories to life.