FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Breast Cancer Support Group ‘Gives Thanks’ and Free Fresh Fixins Bags

Historically Black College/University (HBCU) hosts Thanksgiving Dinner for Women of Color Breast Cancer Support Group

MIAMI, FL, November 9, 2017 - A few days before Hurricane Irma landed its devastating blow on South Florida, an article from Cure magazine appear on the SISTAAH Talk Facebook page entitled, Cancer and Hurricane Preparedness: a Survivor’s Perspective.

“Weathering a storm is nothing new, but it can be especially traumatic while being treated for breast cancer” according to Mary S. Whitehead, MPH, CHES, SISTAAH Talk Facilitator. “Since the physical storm has passed, we think it is important to come together and to reflect.”

Two and a half months post-Irma, SISTAAH Talk, South Florida’s first breast cancer support group for women of color, is gathering to celebrate survival.

SISTA AH Talk will hold its annual Thanksgiving Celebration, “Give Thanks,” targeting breast cancer survivors and their supporters (or co-survivors), who will enjoy a festive meal in partnership Florida Memorial University. Free Fresh Fixins Bags filled with fresh ingredients for side dishes (American or Caribbean options) will also be provided to the first 50 survivors who pre-register on the support group website by November 16th.
