

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

WRAITH Strengthens UK Sovereign Defence Capability with Deployment-Ready Tracked Armoured Platforms.

Harrogate, North Yorkshire, United Kingdom, June 1, 2026.

WRAITH, a British defence manufacturer specialising in tracked armoured vehicle systems, today announced a significant step forward in its operational development, with the group entering a critical delivery phase following initial customer orders.

As the only independent tracked armoured vehicle manufacturer in Great Britain, WRAITH represents critical sovereign capability within the UK defence industrial base, focused on delivering cost-effective, rapidly deployable platforms for modern operational environments.

A New Model for Defence Manufacturing.

At a time of increasing global instability and accelerating defence demand, WRAITH is addressing a critical capability gap:

- Faster development and delivery timelines
- Lean, scalable manufacturing
- Cost-competitive platform design
- Agile response to evolving operational requirements

The group's model challenges traditional long-cycle procurement approaches by focusing on delivery velocity, efficiency, and operational relevance.

Supporting UK Skills and Industry.

WRAITH's growth is also contributing to the preservation and expansion of traditional British engineering and manufacturing skills.

The company employs and develops:

- Fabricators and welders
- Mechanical engineers and technicians
- Assembly specialists
- Skilled trades across the manufacturing lifecycle

By investing in these roles, WRAITH is helping to sustain high-value industrial capability within the UK, while creating long-term skilled employment opportunities.

A Commitment to Purpose.

WRAITH platforms are designed with a clear mission:

To deliver protective capability that enhances survivability and supports personnel operating in high-risk environments.

The company maintains a strong focus on quality, reliability, and ethical responsibility, ensuring that systems are developed with both operational effectiveness and end-user safety in mind.

Invitation to Media and Industry.

To provide greater visibility into its operations and approach, WRAITH is inviting selected media, partners, and stakeholders to:

- Visit its R&D facilities
- Meet the team
- Experience a demonstration ride in a WRAITH platform

This initiative aims to offer a transparent and first-hand view of a modern British defence manufacturer operating in a new generation of industrial and geopolitical conditions.

Looking Forward

With initial orders secured and a growing pipeline, WRAITH is entering a pivotal phase of execution.

The company's focus over the next six months will be on:

- Delivering operational platforms
- Scaling production capability
- Strengthening its position within the global defence market

About WRAITH
