COURSE DESCRIPTION

The purpose of this class is to provide students with an opportunity to explore the evolution and development of law and government in a cross-cultural context. Specifically, we will examine particular legal and governmental institutions that regulate policy and resolve disputes both domestically and internationally. A portion of the class will be conducted in the United States with the remaining portions taught in England and Scotland.

Over the course of the semester students will:

- Compare theories of law, governance, and democracy across different political and cultural norms and apply this knowledge to a set of global and national-level legal issues, contexts, and processes.
- Compare the evolution of institutions in the United States to those in England and Scotland by exploring the values, beliefs, and perspectives underlying and informing the institutions in these countries.
- Develop critical-thinking skills, problem-solving strategies, and the capacity to cope effectively with ambiguous or unfamiliar situations.
- Gain experience and insights related to careers in law and government.

REQUIRED READING

Required readings consist of a series of articles from professional law and political science journals. All readings are available on Blackboard.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS AND GRADING

The course assignments and assessment criteria have been crafted to help students identify and fulfill the course objectives. Accordingly, evaluation in this course will be based on the following components:

Attendance	20%
Participation in Class	20%
Written Paper	60%

Attendance: Attendance is mandatory, especially for events scheduled overseas. All students are expected to come to class prepared to discuss the material in an intelligent manner.

Participation: The instructors will rely on a modified Socratic method and classes will consist of a series of questions, which the students are expected to answer. On occasion we will ask for volunteers to apply the readings to certain hypothetical situations. At other times, we will select specific individuals to answer questions. Students will be graded according to their willingness to participate and their responses. This is not a class for the shy; quietly sitting in the back of the room will translate to a low participation grade.

Written Paper: Each individual is expected to write a paper linking the experiences in-country to material read and discussed in class. Papers will be 10-12 double-spaced pages, with 12-pt font and one-inch margins, of substantive text (title page and references do not count as substantive text). While the specific topic is open, students are expected to relate aspects of the England and Scotland trip to particular theories on law and governance.

SPECIAL NEEDS

Students with special needs are advised to contact the instructors immediately. Every effort to for accommodation will be made. This may require a letter of documentation from the Office of Student Disability Services.

ACADEMIC DISHONESTY

Absolutely no form of academic dishonesty will be tolerated. Anyone found guilty of cheating, plagiarism, or any other violation of academic integrity will receive an automatic grade of 0.0 for the assignment. Additionally, all other available penalties within the University will be pursued to the fullest extent. For more information about academic dishonesty, visit the USC Office of Academic Integrity (www.sc.edu/academicintegrity).

GENERAL EXPECTATIONS

We expect all students to behave professionally in this class. You will be held responsible for all material covered in the textbooks and the class discussions. We will not tolerate disruptive behavior, including (but not limited to) reading newspapers, talking during lectures, use of cell phones or pagers during organized activities or classes, and insulting classmates or the instructor. Additionally, we expect all students to arrive promptly, prepared for the topic to be covered, and to remain throughout the scheduled session. It is disrespectful to the instructors and the other students when individuals show up late or are not prepared to participate in the class discussion.
