Alliance for Black NICU Families Responds to "Escaping Rainbow"

You may have heard about the upcoming documentary Escaping Rainbow, a film and docuseries that exposes the painful realities of Black families who say they were racially profiled and faced systemic bias during their stays at Rainbow Babies & Children's Hospital.

For the past two years the Alliance for Black NICU Families has proudly partnered with Rainbow's NICU team. Each week we deliver free wearable breast pumps to families of preemies and critically ill infants, ensuring mothers have the support and resources they need to nourish their babies. We fully support the NICU staff and stand with the families they serve, believing every voice deserves to be heard.

As Executive Director I have not personally received any concerns regarding the NICU's care at Rainbow, and I am grateful for our strong collaboration. Nonetheless we remain committed to listening, advocating, and supporting any family who needs our help. If you have questions or need assistance please reach out to us so we can be your voice.
