It is crucial that U.S. law enforcement is made aware of the dynamics of the threat of ISIL/Islamic State, their implications to U.S. interests, and craft solutions to combat it. The full day program, Islamic State/ISIS: Threats and Law Enforcement Responses, addresses these and related timely topics as set out below.

The so-called "Islamic State" (IS) that has swept into power in Syria and Iraq presents an imminent danger to the global community with its capacity as an effective, bloodthirsty fighting force and its expanding territorial reach. The Islamic State has taken on a quasi-state form that mixes modernity with ancient rites, and aggressively promotes sectarian violence and religious extremism. The new entity has successfully radicalized and recruited fighters worldwide through its sophisticated brand of social media tactics and aggressive offline actions. It purveys an extremist, violence-infused ideology with an expansive outlook to match, as articulated by its ever-popular slogan, baqiyya wa tammaddad, which essentially implies that the Islamic State is here to stay and will continue expanding.

Additionally, from June 2014 through April 2018, the Islamic State has directed or inspired terror attacks in more than thirty nations, resulting in over 3,500 deaths and thousands of injuries. Also, in light of the over hundred prosecutions of U.S.-based individuals charged in relation to IS during the past two years, coupled with the December 2015 San Bernardino and June 2016 Orlando IS-inspired attacks, the threat to the United States is real and growing.
