The 1965 BIM
Bement High School
Bement, Illinois

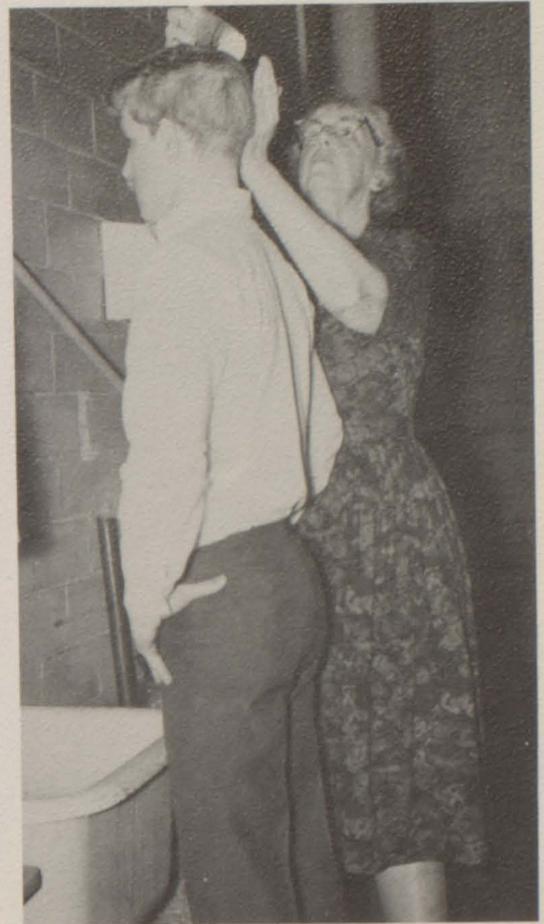

In Dedication
to
Miss Isabelle Houston

The class of 1965 is honored to have the privilege to dedicate this year's BIM to our devoted sponsor, teacher, and friend, Miss Isabelle Houston.

Miss Houston came to Bement High School in 1928 and has been influential in establishing the high standards and the well-rounded program that make BHS the fine, respected school it is today.

As an English teacher, Miss Houston has shared with many, many students her interest in and aptitude for grammar, literature, composition, and speech. As school librarian and advisor to the student librarians, Miss Houston has efficiently kept the library up-to-date and running smoothly. As the dedicated person she is, Miss Houston has unselfishly and willingly sacrificed much of her own time to sponsor and advise thirty-seven senior classes, to direct thirty-two senior plays, to start the school newspaper and to advise twenty-two volumes, and to supervise the publishing of twenty-seven year-books.

Although Miss Houston's retirement marks the close of a rewarding teaching career of forty-two years, the effects of the knowledge and of the principles which she has imparted to her students will be everlasting.

Helping with make-up for the senior play was just one of the many extra services Miss Houston performed as senior class advisor.

Because of Miss Houston's thoroughness as yearbook advisor, no page could go to the publisher without her approval. Prompted by this fact, the annual staff feted her at a surprise party to announce the dedication of the '65 BIM.

Foreword

We, the yearbook staff, proudly present the 1965 BIM. On these pages, the history of Bement High School, 1964-65 will unfold revealing the joys and the frustrations, the beginnings and the endings, the work and the play. The dates 1964-65 represent the calendar year but more importantly the school year through which we've progressed. For some of us this school year is our first at BHS, for others, our last. For all of us, the Life of BHS and the Personalities of BHS shall live forever in our memories and in the 1965 BIM.

Summer jobs, especially lifeguarding at the town's swim club, were definitely not all work.

Ray Plummer spent many idle hours perfecting his golf game.

SUMMER

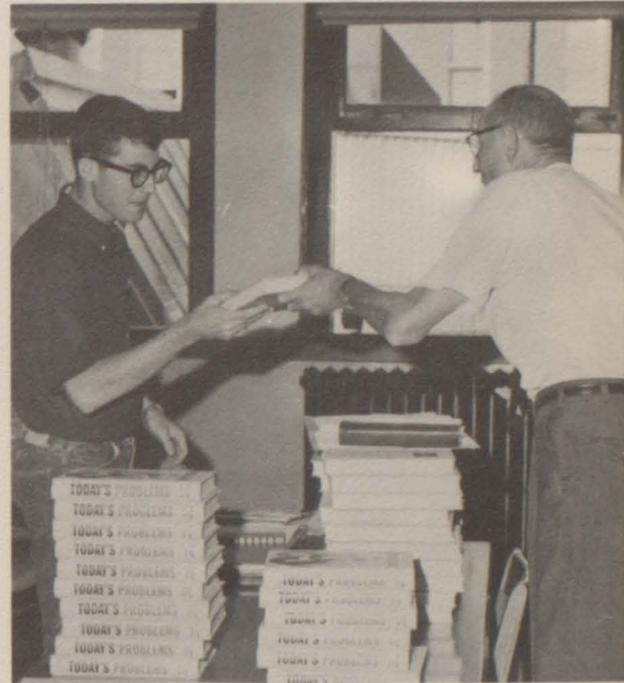

A cool drink and a good book were all Elizabeth Glennon needed on a pleasant, balmy afternoon.

Like many other boys, John Lyons earned extra money and spent much energy mowing lawns.

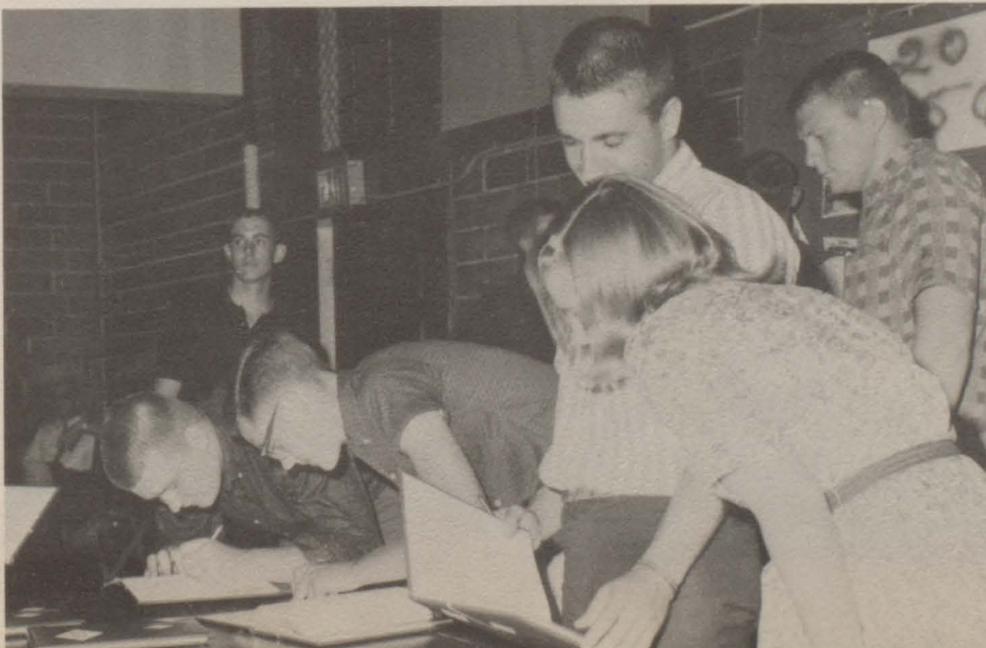

Students learned the processes of democracy when Bement High held a mock presidential election prior to the November, 1964, national election.

FALL

Along with the first day of school, came the distribution of textbooks. 1964 marked the beginning of a complete book rental system in the Bement school system.

Into . . .

After summer vacation, the first social event of the year was the Annual Party, where everyone received his new Bim and collected autographs galore.

Studying, visiting, or worrying, these juniors took advantage of the ten minute break between the eighty minute semester exams.

WINTER

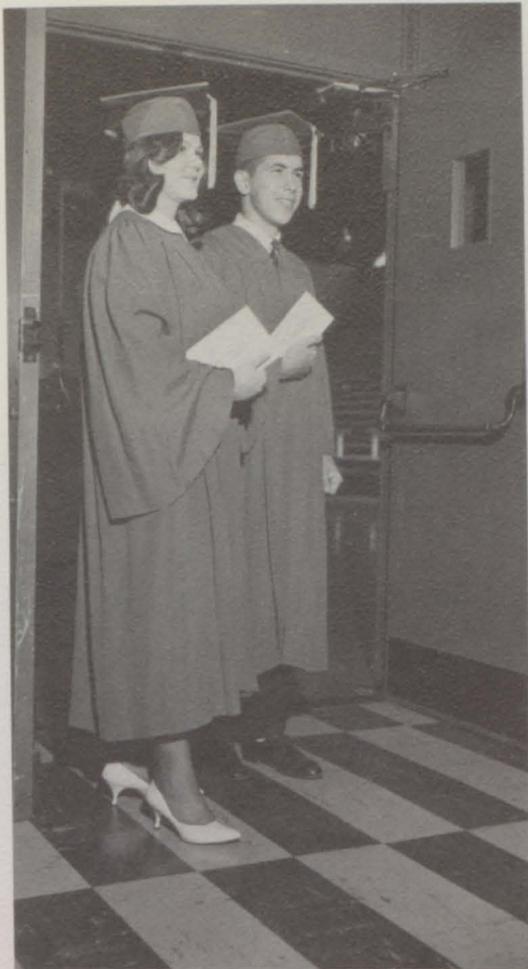

A highlight of the winter season was the annual Christmas concert delightfully presented by the high school and grade school bands and choruses.

Along with winter came snow. Steve Wrench pitched in with a helping hand to clear the snow from the windshield of Miss Glenn's car.

Into

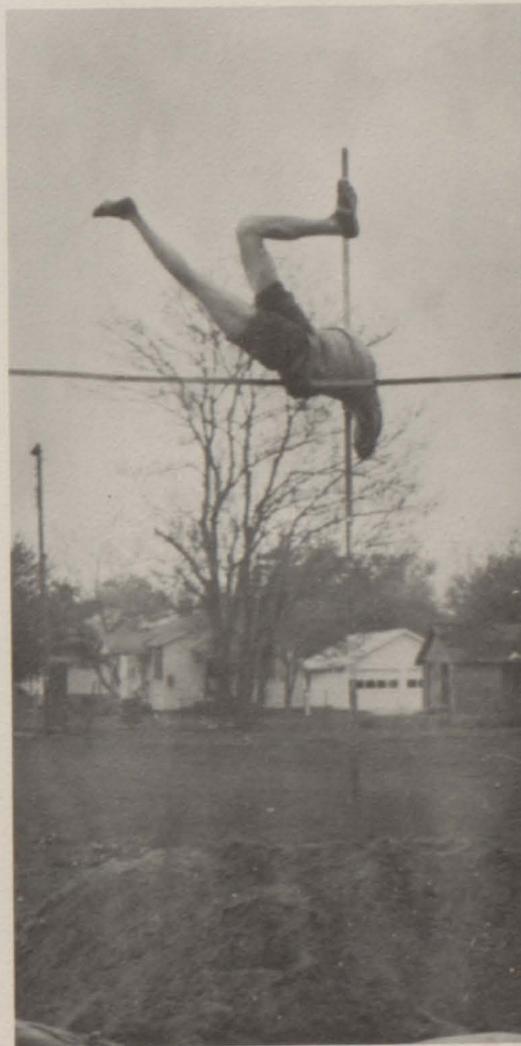

An annual spring event is the FFA Parent-Son Banquet held this year on May 3. The Future Farmers recognized their award winners and crowned their Sweetheart to make the evening extra special.

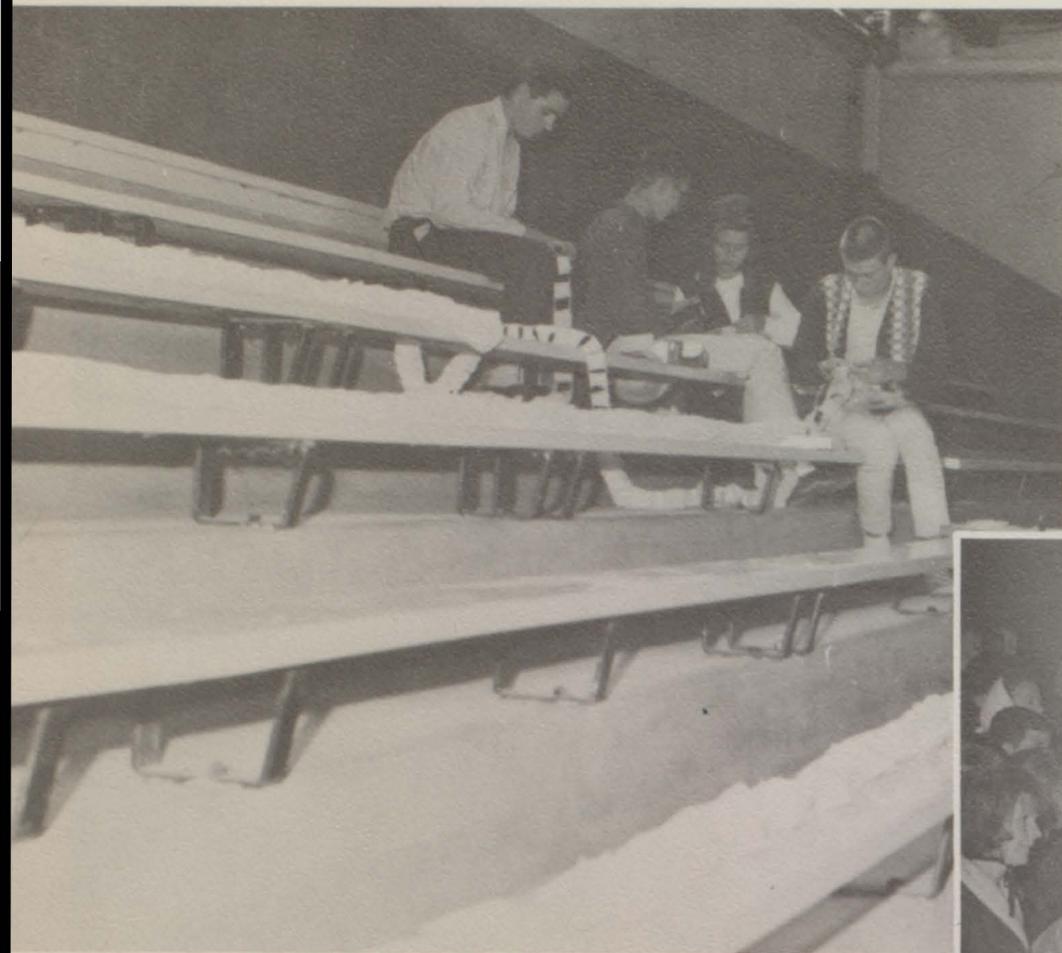

SPRING

In the spring a young man's fancy turns to - track. The diversity of events attracted many boys, from the cinder man to the soaring pole vaulter.

Students fashioned class chains from paper links sold by the student council to raise money for Homecoming.

The football fans and the substitute players on the sidelines provided encouraging backing for the Bulldogs.

A novelty of one of the coke dances was a dance featuring the tallest boys and the shortest girls.

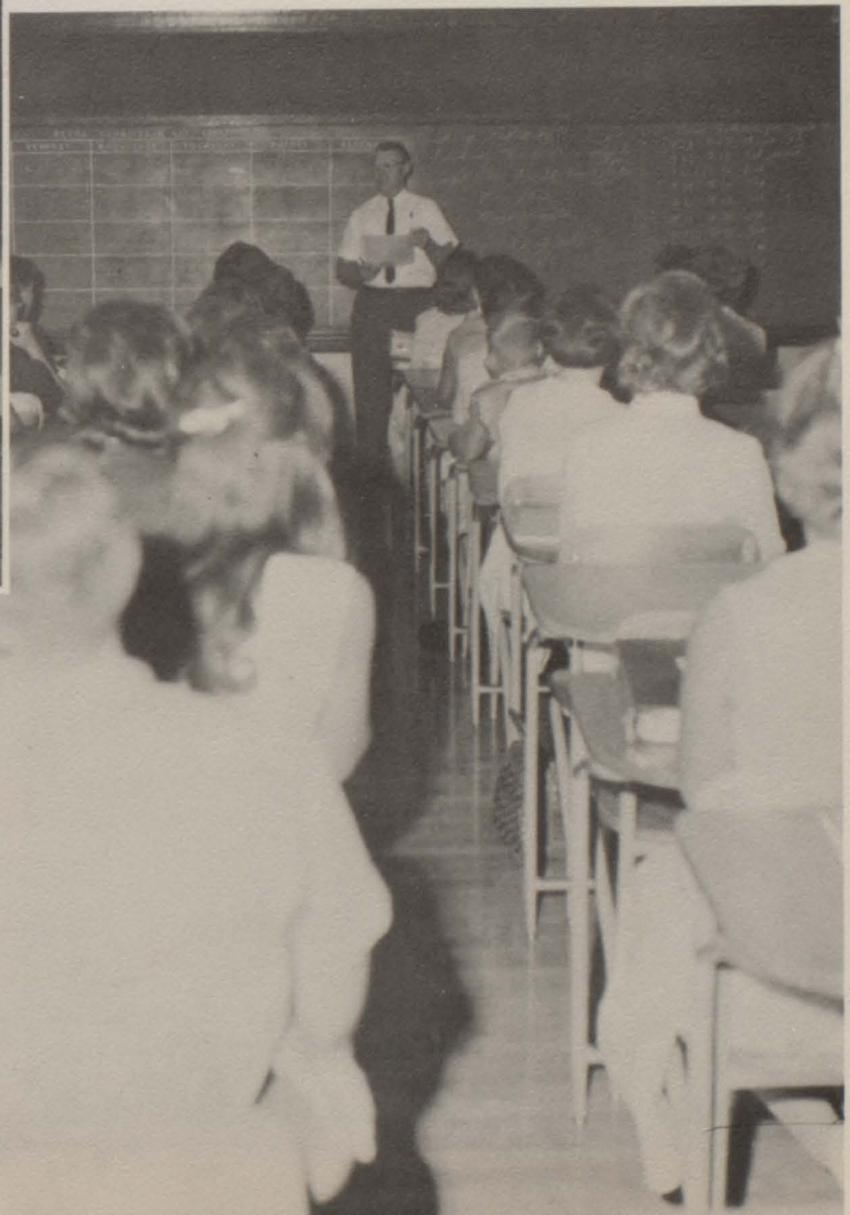

LIFE OF

A part of the everyday routine of the school day was waiting in the lunch line.

On the first day of school, Assistant Superintendent Mr. Hensley welcomed the students, explained the time schedule, and made announcements at the assembly.

Advisor Miss Houston, Editor Cynthia Dare, and Assistant-editor Vic Manny, who spent most of their free time working on the 1965 Bim, examine pictures for a yearbook layout.

Improvements from Science to Sports

On July 1, 1964, construction was begun on a new fieldhouse for the Bulldogs. When the football boys moved in at mid-season, they found it to have better showers and a better heating system than the old one. The new fieldhouse is about twice as large as the old, having separate facilities for the Varsity and JV teams. The building also has a coaches' office and a training room.

Chemistry students benefited from the renovated chem lab this year. New lab desks, a new ventilating hood, and other equipment were installed in a sweeping modernization. The lab combines the facilities of a modern classroom with those of a laboratory, eliminating the necessity of an extra room.

Classrooms Provide

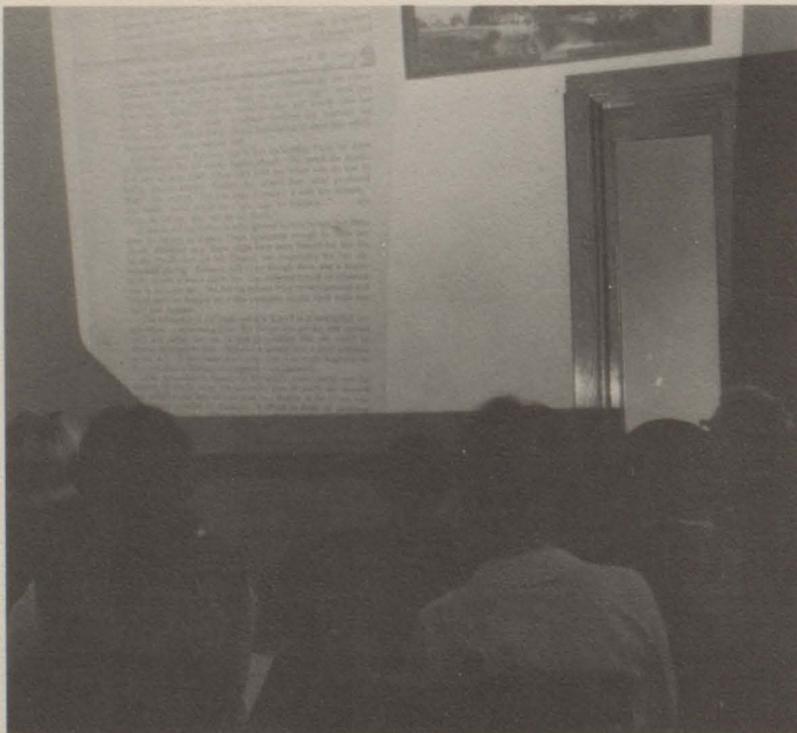

An art class enriched the curriculum at BHS with study in art appreciation and practice in the creative arts. Although various mediums were employed throughout the course, enamel paint was used for this mural in the lunch room.

Meal planning, cooking, and studies in family life are taught in Home Economics. Here, Polly Larson was putting pork chops into the broiler to keep them warm while Ellen Haynes and Donna Kitson helped to prepare the rest of the meal.

English IV classes learned to evaluate the quality of themes by analyzing those written by high school students. The overhead projector was used to focus the theme, grades, and comments on the wall.

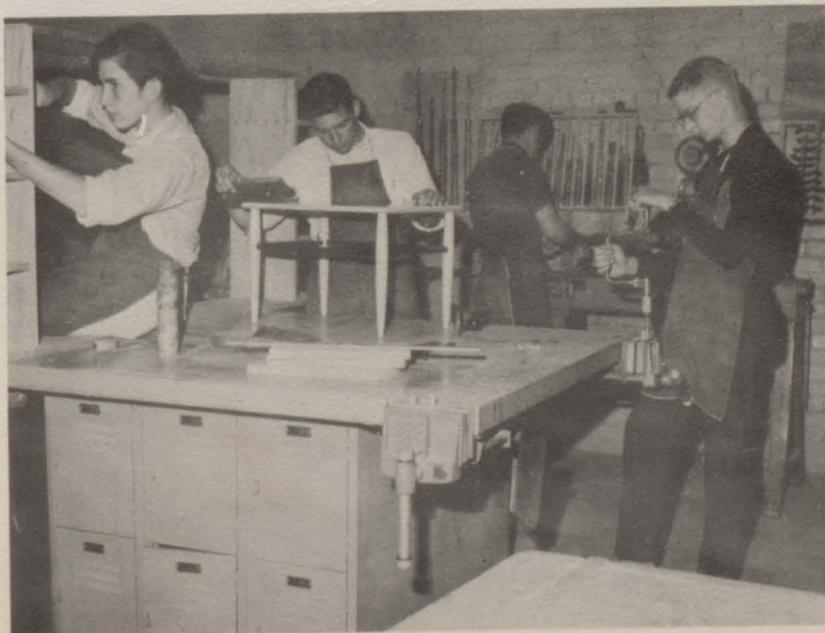

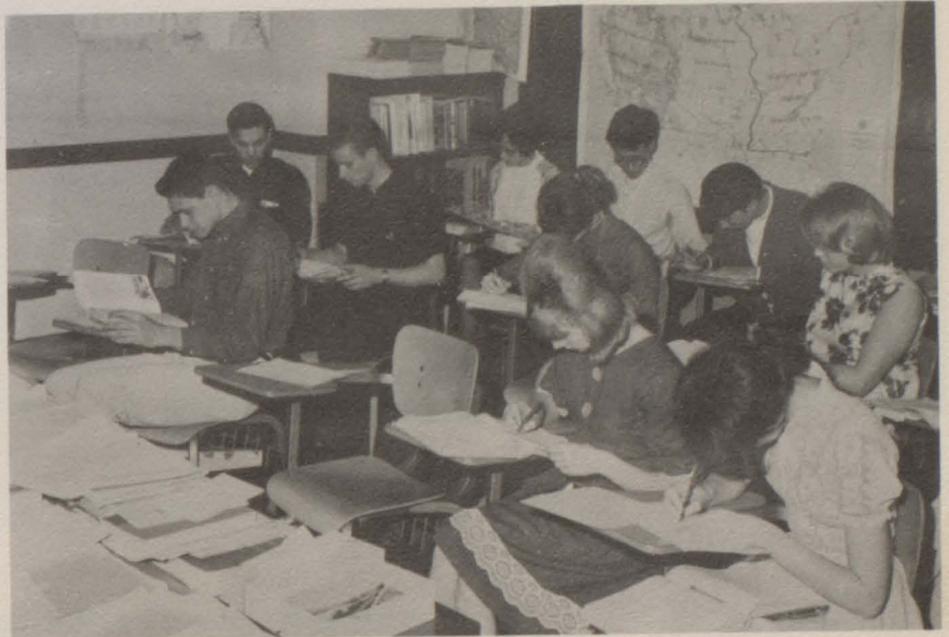

Opportunity to Learn . . .

The new French III class, in its first year of existence at BHS, was made up of fifteen students. Besides studying from their regular books, the students increased their proficiency by describing pictures in French.

"This is Russia. Color it Red." Map-work was an important part of the geography students' study of the physical, political, and economic characteristics of a country.

Industrial Arts students put the finishing touches on woodworking projects. The course also included studies in metalcraft, electricity, and mechanical drawing.

And Test Learning

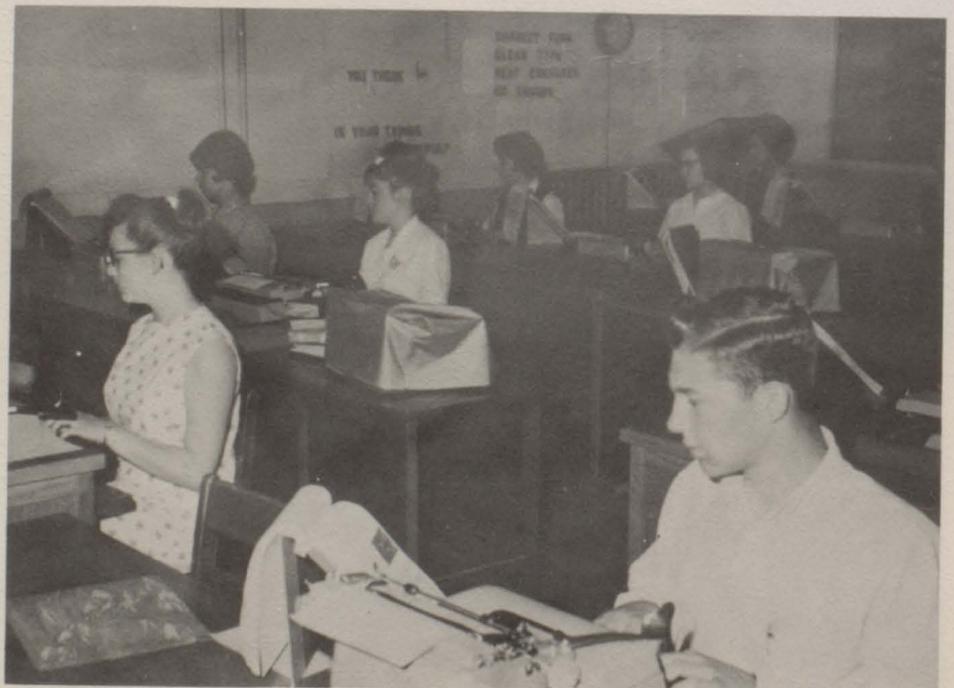

Repairing a tractor is a small part of farm management, but a necessary one. Thus the ag. boys gain this experience in addition to learning about budgets, crops, and soils. Jim Lamb and Charles Body apply their learning as they work on the school's tractor.

To be a good driver, one must know his car, its parts, and their functions, as Carol Siders, Bruce Sutphen, and Sue Ann Lammler are finding out in the study of Driver's Education.

Drills in typing class test achievements in the student's speed and accuracy. These acquired skills open doors of opportunity in office work and assist students in college.

to Insure Opportunity

Bisecting circles, an important learning process in Geometry, is demonstrated by Bill Woolridge, Bob McCoppin, Ann Moery, and Ann Flenniken, who are doing board work.

In order to learn more about the organs of the body, the Biology classes dissected frogs. Intent on their work are Tom Jordan, Randy Tohill, Nancy Dial, and Reva Nelson.

Archery is one of the many sports the girls in physical education classes learn by experience. The variety of activities keeps interest in the class alive while keeping the girls fit.

The Student Council was in charge of handling all major student activities. Besides setting up and supervising intramural games, they planned coke dances, all-school parties, the Christmas program, and a Student Council exchange program. The Student Council also handled the preparation for the biggest school event, Homecoming.

Student Council members decorated a Christmas tree in the upper hall to bring Christmas spirit to BHS.

Coronation Culminates Homecoming

The coronation of Her Majesty Miss Sue Siders on October 23 climaxed the Homecoming Festivities - the winding snake dance and brilliant bonfire on Thursday night and the pompous parade on Friday afternoon, followed by the 14-0 victory of the Bement Bulldogs over Oakland.

The football squad, preceded by the queen candidates and followed by the student body, traveled en masse along the parade route.

A unique Bulldog mascot rallied the cheering students in the pep parade.

Shangri~

The Bonfire ignited school spirit which prevailed throughout the Homecoming celebration.

La

Finishing touches were added to the bridge to "Shangri-la" in final preparation for the coronation and dance.

There was a job for everyone from stringing flowers, vacuuming the stage scenery, or painting the mural to advising.

On the night of May 1, the Junior class was host to the seniors for "An Evening at Waikiki". The banquet which simulated a luau, was served by the juniors' mothers and the sophomore girls dressed in colorful Hawaiian costumes. Juniors presented the entertainment, a traditional and a snappier contemporary version of a hula dance, an enactment of the "Hawaiian Wedding Song", and a surprise presentation to seniors of facetious gift certificates redeemable only that night in Hawaii.

At the entrance to the Prom, a Polynesian hut introduced the tropical atmosphere. The music of the Don Bring Band added to the enchantment of the decorations. The murals depicting a Hawaiian beach enveloped a paradise of palms and tropical fruits. This captivating setting was the scene of a very memorable "Evening at Waikiki".

"An Evening at Waikiki"

Some of the juniors were diverted from decorating when the hula dancers, Diane Shepherd, Wendy Taylor, Patsy Burton, and Betty Stoerger, began to move through their dress rehearsal.

Ray Plummer, David Fisher, and Diane Shepherd seem to be contemplating how to erect a palm tree near the native hut.

Latin Club Revives Roman Culture

Latin Club generated interest in the life and culture of ancient Rome. Under the advisorship of Mrs. Dare, the club met every six weeks during the second semester to present points of interest to Latin students or to take part in activities utilizing Latin. The highlight of the Latin Club was the annual Roman Banquet at which Latin I students who had previously been "purchased" by Latin II students acted as slaves. Special guests from the faculty and from former Latin students were invited to enjoy the banquet and program.

The French Club membership grew this year because of the large number of freshmen taking French. This club met every six weeks during the first semester. GAA is a club providing activities for girls who enjoy sports. Regularly scheduled activities included volleyball, basketball, bowling, dancing - both social and creative - badminton, and softball. On April 27, a formal Mother-Daughter Tea was held to recognize the incoming officers. By selling candy, the members earned money which was used to purchase awards, finance GAA activities, and help send the cheerleaders and majorettes to summer camp.

Athletic Interests

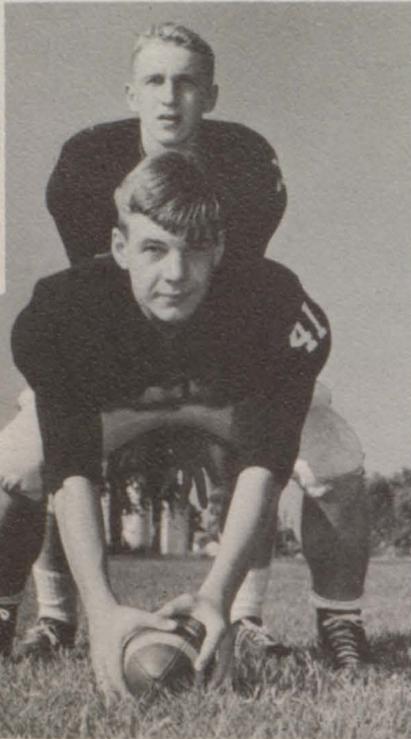

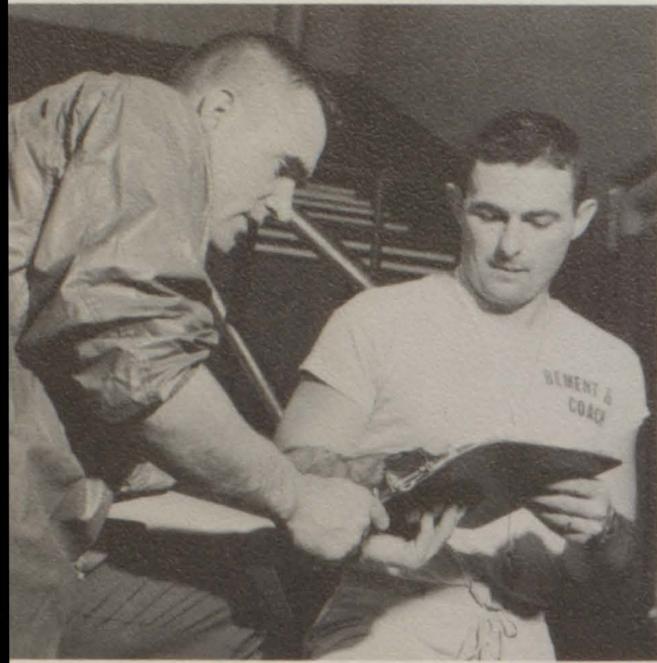

The annual All-Sports Potluck was held May 13, at 6:30 P. M. in the small gym. All sports participants, managers, cheerleaders, and their parents were invited. Immediately following the potluck, Mrs. Jackson introduced the cheerleaders and Coach Fredenburger introduced the athletes.

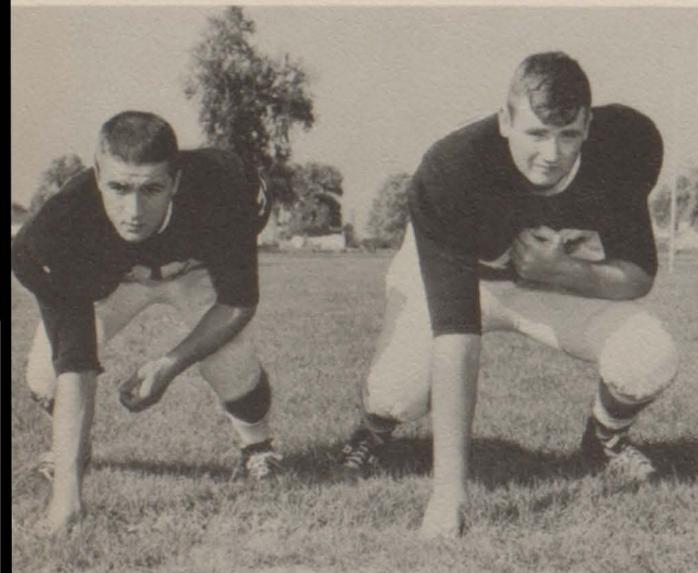

The guest speaker was Mr. Dwight Eddleman, an all-around athlete at the University of Illinois and a United States Olympic Team member.

The 1965 Bement track team showed potential this season when their efforts paid off at the Paris Relays with a commendable showing of third place. The varsity captured eighth place in the Okaw Valley track meet by winning seven points. In the Little Okaw the junior varsity placed third with 26 1/2 points.

Although rain dampened or cancelled many meets, the sun did shine on practice sessions. The boys ran hard and worked earnestly in the field events to build up their endurance for competition.

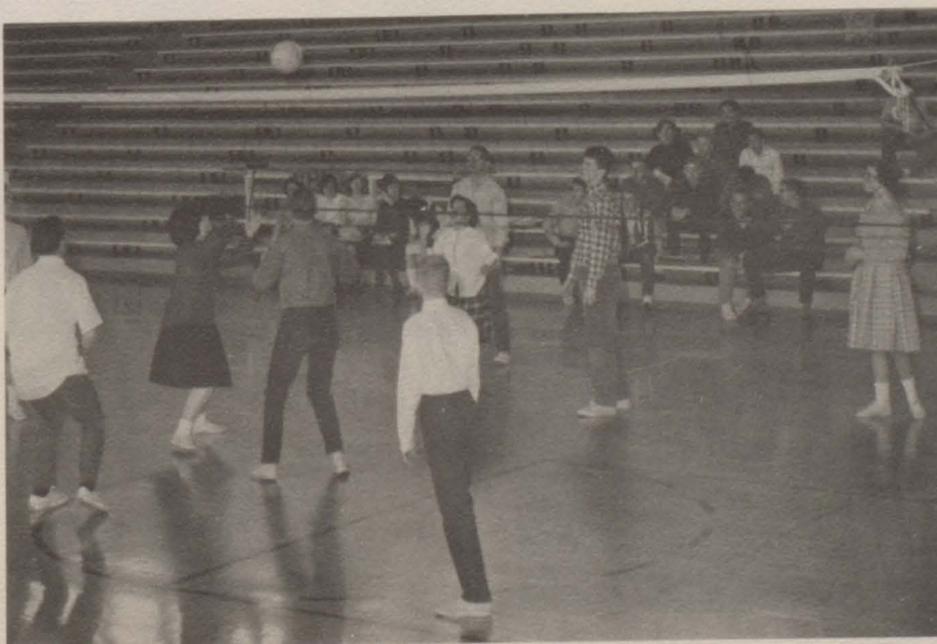

During the winter months, the large gym was the scene of a very popular activity, the intramural sports program sponsored by the Student Council. Under this program, two volleyball games were held simultaneously every noon hour except Friday. Any student who signed up was eligible to play on one of the ten teams. The intramural sports season ended with boys' and girls' class tournaments which were won by the senior girls and the Junior boys.

Mr. J. E. Hargrave is in his second year at superintendent of the Bement school unit. Before becoming superintendent, he served in the capacity of teacher and principal.

After graduating from Southern Illinois University, Mr. Hargrave went on to receive his Master's Degree from the University of Illinois. He has been in the field of education for thirty years, the last eight of these being in administration at Bement High School.

Outstanding senior scholars, Ellen Haynes, Betty Rainey, Sue Ann Yeates, and Cynthia Dare were honored with gold pins for maintaining a 4.5 average throughout high school.

On May 21, Mr. Hensley honored two seniors, Betty Rainey and Jim Lammle. They received the book "I Dare You" and a certificate for their outstanding leadership and citizenship.

At the Spring Concert, Rodney Medaris received the Arion award, presented to him by last year's recipient, Melinda Marker. This award goes to a senior who has made outstanding contributions to both band and chorus.

The two very coveted awards, DAR and SAR, were presented to seniors Peggy Hendrix and Bill Tracy for their dependability, service, leadership, and patriotism. Raising the flag as Student Council Members was one of the many ways Peg and Bill displayed these qualities.
