Title: Bitcoin Savings and Trust | Home | Closed
Post by: pirateat40 on November 03, 2011, 11:14:09 PM

After much consideration, I've decided to close down Bitcoin Savings & Trust.

Why?

The decision was based on the general size and overall time required to manage the transactions. As the fund grew there were larger and larger coin movements which put strain on my reserve accounts and ultimately caused delays on withdraws and the inability to fund orders within my system. On the 14th I made a final attempt to relieve pressure off the system by reducing the rates I offered for deposits. In a perfect world this would allow me to hold more coins in reserve outside the system, but instead it only exponentially increased the amount of withdraws overnight causing mass panic from many of my lenders.

So now what?

I've spoken with my clients over the last week and come to an agreement that would allow me to close down my operation within a week. Currently my reserve (operating wallets) are drained from fulfilling the withdraw spree that happened after the rate drop announcement. All withdraws at this point will be delayed until Monday when the shutdown process begins..

At this point I will no longer accept deposits. Any coins sent into the system as of now will be returned immediately.

When will I get my coins?

Starting Monday I'll begin systematically closing and withdrawing accounts as coins are transferred. I don't expect the entire process to last longer than a week. The moment your account is closed you'll receive your coins plus any interest accrued up to the hour it was sent.

Thanks

I'd like to thank all of my lenders and PPT operators that were a key element in making Bitcoin Savings & Trust a success. Bitcoin has grown a lot since I started this and want you to know that you were a vital part in helping it grow.

Now, I have a lot of work to do. Stay Tuned

-pirate

BTW, this is all bitlane's fault. (j/k you nut)

Something to chew on, send me details on how this works exactly, I'm interested in tracking my investment day to day which it sounds like you will be able to provide.

I don't have a front end (website) for the tracking software yet but im working on it. For now, you will receive the interest payments as well as a snapshot of your transactions (deposits/withdraws), dates, balance and interest paid.

Smart business strategy. By allowing us to take a portion of your profits from your overflow, you keep your customers happy and hooked to you, allowing you to grow your own investment.

Out of curiosity, about how many BTC/day is your demand exceeding your capacity right now?

Currently I've got one order scheduled for tomorrow (1750BTC) and have it covered, but i'll know the next purchase when I meet with them. In the past they've asked for transactions as large as 3000BTC but have not been able to give them an estimate on timing until now. So far with the people I've picked up it looks like this is going to work out perfectly.

Edit: Just ran some quick numbers and looks like im trading around 4900BTC a week.

- min deposit is 50 btc, what is the max deposit that you could still afford to pay interest on?
- is there any minimum term, or can i just deposit for 1 day, take my 1% and withdraw?
- does interest compound daily, or only accrue on the principle?

thanks.

I really don't have a max number, I'm talking with the buyers today to see what kind of volume they are looking for. But from pass conversations they need more than I've been able to provide.

Sure you could just hang around for 1 day. You would not see your interest payment for the 1 day until the payout date, two days later. So sure its possible.

Interest does not compound during the three days, but I have a couple people that choose to just reinvest the interest payments.

The Business:

Over the last few months I have been selling BTC to a group of local people. Now this is a don't ask don't tell group of people so I can't tell you exactly where and to whom the coins ultimately end up with but so far its been pretty painless. During this last week I maxed out my available coins both personally and "leased" from other members and they needed a lot more. Up until now, I have dealt with my core group of friends and been able to handle the requests, but they seem to be getting larger and more frequent. So now I'm looking into other methods for keeping a consistent storage or on-demand availability of coins. I have two plans available for those sitting on coins.

On-Demand

When an order comes in that is over what I have available I'll send out a request to users in this plan requesting the total needed. The first to respond gets the deal and the transfer is made. These coins will be tide up for 1 business day to give me enough time to settle the transaction and acquire the coins to return. This plan pays a flat 3.5%.

Storage

This plan works as an ongoing commitment. You would send coins anytime to the address provided and you would earn interest on a daily basis. You can withdraw your balance at anytime, but I do request that you give me a couple hours to insure I have coverage for the next order. Interest payments are paid out ever 3 days until either you withdraw the funds or my local dealings dry up and I can no longer be profitable.

This plan pays 1% per day.

Now I would hope to have enough people on the storage plan that I wouldn't have a need for the on-demand but I'll see how it goes. I ultimately want the ability to provide coins at anytime and any amount for these guys and we can all share in the profits.

I've created my own custom management software that I've built to monitor deposits, withdraws and interest payments. As this gets bigger I'll build a front end for it so users can view and manage there account and maybe putting that domain btclending.com to good use.

For more information send me a PM or just ask below. You can check out my OTC ratings in my signature.

Edit: I forgot to mention that dealing with anything less than 50BTC is more work than its worth so I've made that the minimum on both plans.

Thanks

I just lent this guy some BTC. I trust him and I'll respond here when I get my first interest payment in 3 days. :)

OP, how about a listing on GLBSE? It will be much easier to manage (it should be trivial for the storage plan) and at the same time allow lenders to put up much smaller amounts than 50 BTC. You probably already know how much you will need in storage, issue that amount of shares at 1 BTC/share (or double at 0.5 or... or...), and you just have to pay dividends (weekly?). You can even automatize the buy back if you put buy orders at 0.999. On-demand plan would be possible too.

Interesting, I looked at it a while back and thought it may work but had a couple issues that would make it harder to manage. I'll take another look at it and see.

Notes: glbse charges 0.001 BTC for withdrawal. For the buyback strategy to work, the bitcoins have to sit on glbse, which defeats the whole purpose. Still, a good option to consider.

OP could simply send the coins directly from GLBSE to the interested parties (and I assume OP is gaining more than the 0,001 per withdrawal, otherwise he wouldn't offer the percentages to the lenders :)). Alternatively, OP could keep just a reasonable amount in GLBSE for buybacks (5-10%?), and when the amount is consumed, he can send some more and so on...

I think GLBSE makes it harder than it needs to be. His current system works very well.

I did this with Pirate for quite a while and never had any issues whatsoever. My interest payments were timely and I was always able to withdraw according to our terms. I only quit using him because I liquidated a large percentage of my working capital. I look forward to reinvesting with him.

I just got my order list for the next week and I have to say, a bit shocked. I know a few of you have asked about how many more coins I can take. I have been approaching my threshold based on orders during the last week, but it looks like things have changed. With the price decline combined with my ability to deliver more coins has jolted the coin totals required.

Depending on the what comes available the next few days I may be sending out an on-demand request to those of you that signed up.

Also, in the event that I exceed my threshold of coins on incoming deposits I'll be manually making withdraws of principal and interest based on the age of your account. Seniority rules and those accounts with a shorter age date will be liquidated first.

Thanks again to all my investors thus far. I could not have done it without you. :)

As with any movements in the market up or down I have enough order activity going on that my risk is very limited. In most cases the coins go uncovered less than a few hours, I have yet to come even close to taking a loss on any deal. With that said, in the event there was a huge change in the market and I needed to personally cover the difference I am more than willing to do so. Those that have worked with me in the past know that if something was to happen and I lost my ass on a deal, the people I owe debts to wouldn't even know it happened. :)

I will be out of town tomorrow (today) making the rounds with the family for the holiday but will back in action on Friday. If you need anything you can always PM me here.

Have a Happy Thanksgiving!

My orders for coins continue to increase with frequency and size. At this time another 1100 BTC is available in the storage plan. This number will be adjusted in the OP as space allows.

Thanks again to everyone for helping make this work so smoothly. Enjoy the rewards. :)

Yes, I'm just about done with the site. I had to hack a prebuilt cms software to get it all to work which I thought would save time. Instead its been more work than I expected. All while having a death in the family and a new addition to the family (brother's son). I would like to say in the next week ill have it published but I'm unable to guarantee it just yet. I can send you an export of your account if you would like that to review the information for the duration until the site is up.

Well, I used the wap page to discard formatting, used a textfile instead of a database for better compatibility. I could've used some self-contained database like SQLite, but that's a lot of work for something this small.

If there's anything else I missed, please let me know. I'm here to learn.

What you did was actually the best thing you can do with your current options, but the current options just aren't very good. The worst thing is that your options force you to do a regex against a forum post that's manually updated, this is a bit of a weak point.
If pirateat40 is consistent, it might still work fine though.

Nice! And now that you're well-known and reliable to them, they won't by-pass you either even though they could borrow bitcoins without your help, probably.

I sincerely trust pirateat40. He has proven himself over and over again. I withdrew half of my holdings with him today; the transaction went extremely smoothly and he was very accommodating. If there's an opening, definitely take advantage of that opportunity and make a crazy amount of interest with one of the best, most upstanding pirates of the bitcoin community.

That's pretty interesting considering the fact that I could (seemingly) just sign up for a new account on here and be well on my way to getting accepted.

Instead, I choose to persist and stick with this account, hopefully displaying my integrity and transparency, and yet you kick me in the butt.

I still respect your opinion, and with whom you do business with is a decision you make solely at your own discretion, but I do ask that you reconsider.

Post by: terrytibbs on January 19, 2012, 06:38:49 PM

For you to be able to keep updating your storage as you are doing right now, you'd have to have a constant supply of new clients, and your old clients would have to continue doing business with you on a regular basis, correct?

I'd like to warn everyone that there exists a possibility that pirate is trying to amass as many bitcoins as possible over a longer period of time, covering interest payments with other client deposits similarly to a ponzi-scheme, before suddenly disappearing, with thousands or even tens of thousands of bitcoins.

I would estimate that you currently have a volume larger than that of many exchanges in the Bitcoin community, and you are able to do all of these trades locally. Another thing worth noting is that you have yet to disclose any personal information, which by no means is necessary, but can be good for credibility.

This is merely a warning, and my goal is to entice discussion into this matter.

The price of bitcoin changes the amount of coins needed to cover my transactions. So as the price goes down, more coins are needed. The other part not seen by anyone are the withdraws during the market spikes or dumps. So, my storage is always changing.

If a time were to come that someone is not able to withdraw coins and reports back here you can try again to entice others to jump on your bandwagon. Until then, you have no grounds to say anything related to my business.

This kind of reaction just makes you look like an asshole, honestly. I'm aware of the risks here, and am willing to accept losses from it. It bothers me when people take pleasure in others' misfortune though, however risky their behavior was.

This is exactly what I'm talking about. Instead of addressing people's concerns, and I believe you dismissed an entire thread with questions directed at you a couple of days ago, you proceed with these "if you don't like it, fuck off"-type responses. I guess this is one of the fundamental problems here, because people are practically forcing money into your hands, so you don't have to fight for funds, which leaves you in a very advantageous and profitable situation, should you chose to bail.

The following sentences is purely hypothetical and assumes your goal is actually to scam people. I am not implying either.

Needless to say, the longer this drags on, the more money you have. You only have to find a sweet-spot between people getting more paranoid and you having enough cash to call it quits.

For what it's worth, other people have made warnings like yours earlier in this huge thread. I think I addressed one of them fairly well, so I urge you to look back through (just load all pages and search for my name). I can only speak for myself though :)

Cool. I remember reading it, but I'll give it another go.

It's possible to have an account that automatically reinvests and does not pay out?
If so, would it be possible to change my account to that mode?

Yes, instead of my paying out to your address it gets deposited into your account. Send me a pm to enable it.

OK - I've asked the 2 largest borrowers that I lend to to refer me if they happen to be able to, but perhaps being borrowers predominately rather than lenders they may not be able to & those that borrow just to arb lend on to you wouldn't anyway, Current available space for the savings plan is: 275 BTC down from 350 BTC last time I checked but seems like the take up time isn't quite as fast as previously, it was an hour or 2 ago & normally peeps jump on these funding windows quicker, maybe the falling BTC price isn't helping atm anyways, best as always

It's a timing thing. I've noticed the availability gets updated at a time that works well for me, but I can see it doesn't work as well for different time zones. Also, it's a case of having liquid funds available to transfer. Last time around I had some and took up some space, this time I don't because I have a lot of other loans tied up until the end of February.

The last thing I want is tension between my lenders and fights breaking out in the thread so Ill make this point very clear. If you decide to borrow coins from members to lend to me. DO NOT mention anything about me or my program. If I see another comment from one of my lenders anywhere on the forums about "squeezing people out" or "I'm an early adopter so I don't have to worry." You'll see coins in your wallet and your account closed. PERIOD!

Just to clarify, as I would rather post here than publicly call out the couple of threads in question that I have stumbled across today.....

Has there been an update to the above policy ? There seems to be more than 1 new 'Lender' currently pimping the Pirate name today.

Pirate, could you please add clarification for those of us (myself included) who have contacted you, to ask permission in the past, to do something similar, but were asked NOT to ?

I know for a fact that INA was all but publicly chastised for a similar attempt a couple months back and he is one of your bigger lenders, was he not ?
(..and he never even mentioned you, but someone else inferred it...)

The big issue early on was the attack by established members being able to force out new members. I don't condone an unfriendly environment so I made it very clear early on that it was not something I was willing to deal with. As FPS&T has grown, it has become much easier to handle large investors managing smaller accounts than me handling them directly. So, I've allowed established lenders to grow their own market with the following in mind.

And I need to make this very clear...

At this point FPS&T has become a true bank in almost every sense of the word. So, like a bank would protect it's account holders from the outside, FPS&T will do the same to it's members. The commitment between FPS&T and it's account holders is directly with one another. No outside organization can access, freeze, suspend or speak on behalf of anyone but the account holder. I have no responsibility to anyone except the account holder and they're responsible for deposits and withdrawals made to and from their account.

I hope this clears up some of the recent inquiries and answers your questions.

Update
All payments have been made to bring accounts current as of 4/1/2012 23:59 CST. Which includes the final payment on the old system and a single day (4/1/2012) payment on the new system. Your next payment will be on April 9th at 12:00PM CST which will include 4/2/2012 - 4/8/2012 CST.
You can continue to monitor transactions and balance information on the old site until the new site is up and running. I'm working as fast as possible to get it up but it's been a handful. The new site includes a lot of new features and services and I want to make sure everything is secure before it launches. It also has a new URL which I'll post along with all the new features and changes when it's up.

The new website is up!

First Pirate Savings & Trust is now Bitcoin Savings & Trust

Since www.btclending.com will be used for a separate service, there is a new URL as well. For now, the old URL will redirect to the new site but it won't be for long. Check out the new site at www.btcst.com.

The new site includes a whole new backend along with a few new features including:

- SSL Encrypted - Coming shortly.
- Two-Step Authentication via Google Authenticator - Coming shortly.
- Request Withdraws - Coming shortly.
- Account Changes - Limited based on authentication.
- Transfer Codes - Coming shortly.
- Much more to come...

Note: Payments paid yesterday were added to your account (regardless if you are reinvested) just for record purposes while we switched over. They'll be removed so don't go spending them. :)

I know it's been a while and I'd like to thank you all for being patient. There are a lot of things in the works which will be released in the coming months that integrate with Bitcoin Savings & Trust.

As always, please feel free to contact me if you have any comments, suggestions or issues with the site.

Enjoy,

Will btcmax get an exception to the max-5000 BTC rule? I am guessing he is entrusted with more than 5000 BTC by btcmax.com users.

EDIT: Of course I mean bitcoinmax.com :)

I'll be working closely with pass-though operators to ensure the process is seamless for it's clients.

It says that the max for "Trust" accounts is unlimited; maybe they'll switch to that.

I like the idea of the security deposit.

My initial reaction is that this is a positive move.

pirateat40, will you still require a referral for the standard savings account?

So there's an unlimited amount of limited accounts? Makes perfect sense.

In case you haven't noticed, there already is an unlimited amount of "limited accounts". Anyone can buy a PPT bond at GLBSE for basically as little as 1 BTC.

With this change, all the PPT businesses (assuming they'd use the trusted accounts) should be able to give more than the basic 3.9%, so the obvious point here is to limit the number of accounts and make them bigger. Not, as you are suggesting, to expand the number of accounts...

I just wonder what is the "Security Deposit" about.
I mean, under what kind of circumstances the account could get "forcefully closed"?

Let's keep it simple for starters. We could really use a hint as to why returns are so strongly dependent on the size of individual deposits, if not for the reason documented in the Currin Trading Ponzi (<http://web.archive.org/web/20091026234156/http://geocities.com/currintrading/>) (<http://web.archive.org/web/20091026234156/http://geocities.com/currintrading/>) On a side note, the text also documented neatly why an operator rarely replies to garbage like this.

An interesting read at least... Here's the link to the second page if anyone is interested.

@Vandroi

I think everyone is trying to say: WE ARE AWARE OF THE RISKS! I for one am small time when it comes to my bankroll, and I enjoy the excitement of weekly interest payments and the allure of "doubling up" with the PPT's. If for some reason I loose, God knows it won't be because I wasn't warned. Let us have our fun in peace.

Thank you.

Ah bugger that. Some questions I have (as a owner of an older account who does not manage pass throughs or others peoples money):

1. If you cross the 5k BTC mark does your account automatically become a trusted account if you fulfill the other requirements or are normal accounts just not allowed a balance above 5k?
2. Is interest paid on the 500 BTC security deposit?
3. What is the purpose of the security deposit?
4. In the other topic you started about the business you said the business could go on for a very long time with a similar profit margin. If this is true then why reduce the interest so dramatically?
5. Are there any personal advatages left for me based on the relative seniority of my account (both in age and in size)?

Thanks in advance

Quote from: Gladamas on July 02, 2012, 10:15:53 PM

6. Would pass-throughs (such as GLBSE bonds) be considered "trust accounts" if the issuers fulfill the other requirements?

Pirate, could you please answer these questions?

 Trust accounts are considered partner accounts, designed for members that manage sub-accounts.
 • Benefits:
 • Rates Starting At 5%*
 • Unlimited Deposits
 • Create & Manage Sub-Accounts
 • Trusted Account Verification Seal

Starts at 5%? How high can it go and what determines the rate?

don't bother vandroi. most people only learn the hard way. this might even go on for a long time with more and more people joining the bubble. finally a big wave of crying will run through the forums but that will be it. pirate might dump the coins but the screwed investors will also buy back in so the overall impact on price will be small and of short time.

Pirate's primary (and only one, so far as I know) is because if he disclosed his operation, it would allow more competition to come in. But the thing is, he's the big player in this unknown niche, as often happens when you're first-to-market. He's already #1 by a HUGE margin. Why not just disclose the working operations of your business and put all the nay-sayers to rest? Competition would be fighting an uphill battle at that point. Pirate would have the iPad of investment schemes while others would be scrambling to design something competitive to hopefully capture just 5% of the market.

Because there aren't any working operations. There is no business to disclose.

Withdraw your principal + gains, if you still can.

Update

Starting today, I've lifted the referral only requirement to open a Savings account.

The switch date is being moved to Aug 13th due to me being out of town and a delay in the rollout of the website update.

Any account that holds more than 5k BTC will automatically be upgraded to a Trust account on that day.

Accounts opened from today to the switch date will be paid the current rates until the switch happens.

Thanks,

-pirate

"Yes I am a pirate, 200 years too late."

So there seems to be an ever-growing list of topics and links regarding information about what exactly I do to pay my lenders. Most of the information seems to be fabricated by people wearing pointy foil hats. On the other hand there are a few respected members of the community that seem to have fallen into the FUD world which has become... this forum. As you can imagine, knowing what I know about what I do, it's been pretty entertaining to watch. I must admit, I do enjoy the thrill of getting a reaction from some of these nuts, but there does come a time when you have to stop throwing fuel on the fire.

Ignore

What do I do? Lots, and you couldn't pay me enough to tell how I do it. Why? Cause, as most of you know I've made a lot of money doing this and I'm simply not going to kill a good thing for now. Currently I don't have to fund any portion of BTCS&T due to my extensive list of lenders and like any professional would tell you... Don't tie up your cash unless you have to. So if there was enough time-consuming BS going around that drove me to either disclose what I do exactly (and thus kill my profit margins) or fund the operation myself and increase my profit margin, you can imagine which one I'd choose.

At this time, I don't need to make that decision. I know what I do and have every right to what I disclose about my process. So, now lets get to the good stuff.

Q - Are you running a drug ring and laundering money for Silk Road?

A - Are you kidding me? I live in the US. If anything I was doing was illegal my CPA, attorneys, and scariest... my wife would have my head. So to make it clear, nothing I'm associated with is illegal.

EXHIBIT

Shavers 9-5-13

Q - Are you the mystery Bitcoinica investor?

A - No, although I thought about it early on when I was looking into the different sectors, but coming from forex trading there would be so much I would change that it would be much easier to build it from scratch.

Q - Did you hack Bitcoinica or help to launder the coins?

A - No, as some of you know I have an extensive list of certifications but all of them are networking and datacenter related. I have business partners that handle all of the coding work and a few friends that fill in the gaps when needed. Honestly I wouldn't know if stolen coins are being moved in and out of BTCS&T or GPUMAX. We don't have systems in place to check for them nor would I add them, due to the simple fact that I'm not here to police the market, nor do I condone the practice. If someone steals your cash out of your wallet and you have the serial numbers, do you think anyone would care?

Q - Is BTCS&T a Ponzi?

A - Although, theoretically I could have run a Ponzi scheme for a while early on, it just wasn't something I would ever want to be a part of. If I wanted it to be one, it would have been at much lower rates and I'd be asking for everyone to join.

Q - What's up with the check warrant?

A - Those of you that have contacted me about this knew really early on about it. The check is for a tiny amount at a Lowe's hardware store in a city I lived in for two years back in 2002-2003. The check is for some company I have never heard of and haven't been able to find any information about. My drivers license number was written on the top of the check so it was associated with me. I didn't hear about this till years later when I was Googling myself and called to find out what it was and attempt to get it fixed. I just wanted to pay it to clear my record but they required me to confirm some information on the check which I couldn't do and would have to file a police report as well as setup a court date to deal with it. It just wasn't worth my time and could really care less about it. If I'm ever out in the desert again and get pulled over, maybe then they'll let me pay it.

I hope this information helps, but I know its not what some of you wanted. In the end, the only people I care about are my lenders and even then, they don't have to invest with me if they're worried about what I'm doing.

A big thanks to all of my lenders and those that support my projects. I do sleep sometimes and can't always see everything that is said about me on the forums but I can tell you that it's a breath of fresh air to wake up and see how many of you have my back when I'm not around. It doesn't go unnoticed and want you to know I'm here and plan to be for a while.

Now, on with the show.

EDIT: There are a couple of people that I know doing the exact same thing I do. One in the states and one in the UK. Early on they both contacted me within days of each other asking for some tips on how I handled the process. Now this was after a very detailed description of what they thought I was doing. Considering they're not in my area and we'd end up helping each other out, I decided I'd lend a hand in getting them off the ground. We've keep in contact and to-date (based on how many of you have no idea what's going on) they've kept the information I've told them secret and I can't tell you what that means to me.

A day in the life of a pirate.

Now, I never expect anything in return and this is not a call for them to come forward in the least (they know that). I simply wanted to mention it and say thanks.

It depends on what show you're referring to.

The "Pirate Show" or the "Ninja Show". I just wanted to clear up a few things and felt it was time to release a statement. Believe it or not, either way I couldn't care less. ☺

It's good to see you finally deny some of the more serious allegations.

I like Pirate for one, even if he is running a highly illegal and undercover operation for three reasons:

- He makes bank
- He pisses everyone else off in how he does it
- No one can stop him because people follow the money
- He doesn't constantly defend himself on a bullshit unrelated forum

What do they call this in the real world again? Oh yea, professionalism.

Would you be willing to disclose anything about your actual profit margins over the 7% weekly you pay for the use of funds?

The only good thing about this ever ending is that I'll find out what the hell it is. I might be able to replicate it in a different context 😊

Sure, I net gross 10.65% per week and payout 5.98% on average and it really depends on how much I want to work. The process has become pretty automated lately which is nice because I can spend more time on my other projects and with the family. 😊

Thanks for your polite and non-divulging question. 😊

i learned a very simple thing; if something guarantees more than 7% per year it is likely not worth looking into it. they all blow up.

that said, i am incredibly eager to learn what your business really is, pirate. i bet it makes a great story..
