Every week, like clockwork, a procession of cars drops off the Clans. It's Monday night Bingo, and the five gals (MARIA, YAYA, BUDU, BELL, AND TOOT) sitting at Table 5 have become Best Bingo Buddies over the years and really look out for each other.

Maria lives next door to MIKE and LILA. She has had just about enough of hearing him yelling at Lila (Lila also goes to Bingo but sits by herself at another table), so Maria summons the gals to meet her at her car, a 1980 Pink Cadillac after Bingo to discuss Lila's situation and devise a plan to teach Mike a lesson on how a real man should treat his wife.

When Lila had to leave town to go to her sisters, the gals put their plan into action. In the dark of the night, all dressed as Ninjas, they're holding a taser, a bullhorn, a rope, and a bucket; as they peer closer, Mike appears to be sleeping, beer still in hand, but something is wrong; he's stiff as a board...dead as a doornail!

Freaked out, the girls tiptoe back to Maria's house. They didn't think anyone saw them in the darkness, but the nosy neighbor, DORIS, was peeking through her blinds, phone in hand, and soon the word got around in the confines of the Bingo Hall that if you've got a problem...Take it to Table 5!

Each week at break time, written requests for help are dropped into Maria's Bingo bag, and the gals find themselves right on the heels of the law with hilarious roller-coaster adventures. From ziplining vigilante-type hijinks to stealthy covert actions busting a corrupt public official, then they all return to their homes and everyday family life.

A few months later, to everyone's surprise, Lila wins the big state-wide Bingo Bash of Ten Million Dollars. She soon marries JOHN, who has been in love with her since the second grade, and on their honeymoon cruise, Lila sends the girls from Table 5 each a check for Five Hundred Thousand Dollars, changing their lives forever! However, having money, happiness, and now love doesn't stop the gals from Monday night Bingo or helping others.

The girls have yet to arrive, but YaYa sits huddled at Table 5, talking to the gals from Table 16, THE THREE SISTERS who have owned the longstanding Gentlemen's Club on the edge of town for years. They are pointing at the front of a news article with the picture of the local D.A. when YaYa looks up with a sparkle in her eye BLING and a big, wide red lipstick smile—got a problem? Take it to Table 5!
