A Hilarious Mockumentary about linguistics, slang, and accents across the USA featuring regional culinary flair.

Where and when some of the slang and twang words originated from, and what words have enough use and citations to make it into the dictionary, and who determines that. The interviewed person gets to pick the next destination they find. different or interesting.

The interviewers are mocked to feel like they were also part of The Amazing Race type of travel and preparations along with banter between the interviewers who seem to pick up the same dialect of the people they had just interviewed until they get to the next location.
