Verse 1

Mama traveled for business a lot, so we thought
Had meetings from Paris to Rome
She was gone so much, we thought she got a second job
Till twenty-four men showed up for her last goodbye
Each of 'em thinkin' they were the one

One wore a suit, one wore leather
One had a jet; another had a yacht
My sister leaned over and whispered
"Good Lord, that one is HOT!"

Chorus

Oh, the men who loved my mom!
Lord, where'd they all come from?
Bikers, bankers, billionaires
And a cowboy or two just for fun
They came from every corner
All claiming they were the one
Oh, the men who loved my mom
That woman sure knew how to have fun!

Verse 2

She rode to Sturgis on a Harley
Went skiing straight out of the sky
Danced barefoot through fountains in Tuscany
Had a five-star dinner in Dubai

She raced a car in California
Went sailing the Caribbean blue
We thought she was at a sales convention
Turns out she had better things to do!

Chorus

Oh, the men who loved my mom!
Lord, where'd they all come from?
Bikers, bankers, billionaires
And a cowboy or two just for fun
They came from every corner
All claiming they were the one
Oh, the men who loved my mom
That woman sure knew how to have fun!

Verse 3

By midnight down at the tavern
Those boys were comparing their charms
One said, "I bought her diamonds!"
One said, "She fell asleep in my arms!"

She was known for all her spicy bits
Had those boys losing their wits
My sister said, "If they're all this rich
Why's Mama's old Buick still on the lawn?"

Bridge

Then there was Angus, the silver-haired Viking
With a beard to his chest
Built like a man out of Valhalla
But his smile put the thunder to rest

He carved wolves and owls from deepwoods cedar Played guitar by the fire at night
She'd seen every wonder this world had to offer
But his porch was her favorite sight

Final Chorus

Oh, the men who loved my mom!
Lord, she sure knew how to have fun
She'd danced with the rich and the reckless
And left every one of 'em stunned

But Angus never bought her diamonds
Never promised the moon or the sun
Just coffee, his songs, and a place to belong
And Mama knew he was the one

Outro

Twenty-four men and a lifetime of stories
And we thought we knew our mom
She took every road, but her heart found a home
With a woodsman named Angus all along
