An Invitation to Join...

The Northwest Federation of Stamp Clubs has some 35 member clubs and philatelic organizations in Alaska, Idaho, Montana, Oregon and Washington as well as British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan in Canada, and its territories. With the exception of a short period of inactivity during WW II, the organization has served as a common cause meeting ground for organized philatelic interests within these states and provinces. The Federation supports PIPEX (Pacific International Philatelic Exposition), an annual APS World Series of Philately (WSP) show.

The Federation is the only organization of its type with cross border membership and WSP exhibition sponsorship. It continues its member organization communications with THE FEDERATED PHILATELIST newsletter. The annual Federation meeting takes place at the club hosted site of the annual PIPEX show.

Please visit the NWFSC's website. On this site we have listed information of interest to collectors in the Pacific Northwest. The website has recently seen a facelift and continues to be updated on a regular basis. www.nwfedstamps.org

The Federated Philatelist Journal is published quarterly the first week of every March, June, September and December. Deadlines for submission are every February 21, May 24, August 24 and November 23.

"My Dear Katie"

by Dr. Darin P. Cherniwchan - FVPC, BCPS, BNAPS, RPSC, PSSC, CPGSB, APS, ATA

Some of you may be aware that earlier this week on February 16th, Christian Edwards of CNN published an article about a letter that was posted on February 6, 1916 only to arrive at its destination 105 years later in 2021! The letter sent during the Great War was written to a "Mrs. Oswald Marsh" known amongst family and friends as "Katie".

The timing of this report coincides with the publication of this edition of the Journal featuring Oswald Marsh - Katie's husband and a prominent London stamp dealer of the early 20th Century. I have included the entire CNN article as an appendix to this Journal in case access to the original version is lost in the future.

I have recently been asked "Why has the Northwest Federation of Stamp Clubs not issued a Journal since June of 2022?" The answer is quite simple. In September, while downhill mountain biking near Park City, Utah I hit a stump and crashed. My left chest wall landed directly on a log resulting in a multiple rib fracture injury. My son, Peter, was with me on the trail and witnessed my fall. The log I landed on had several sharp branch stubs and Peter was certain I had impaled myself. Fortunately, I landed on the only area of the log that did not any of these dangerous spines. Thus, I live to tell the story!

I am back with an appetite to publish and with keyboard and mouse bring to you this 239th Volume albeit a few months late.

It is great to see that most stamp clubs are alive and well despite the woes of the pandemic. We are entering the endemic era of COVID-19 and ZOOM sessions are now becoming part of the hybrid model being adopted by many of the Northwest's Clubs. We now can engage with fellow hobbyists in both a "bricks & mortar" and "digital" fashion.

And to that end, happy stamping!

I am proud to congratulate Brian Grant Duff as the recipient of the Julian G. Maksymczuk Award. This honour was presented to Brian by the Ukrainian Philatelic and Numismatic Society for individual achievement having launched a successful petition for a Canada Post Help for Ukraine semi-postal stamp. This award, considered to be one of the highest honours in Ukrainian philately, was announced in Toronto at CAPEX 2022 and was presented to Brian in Vancouver on February 7th of this year.

Congratulations Brian from us all at the Federation!

"Please ask your readers to encourage the USPS to issue a Ukraine rebuilding semipostal stamp"

Dozens of countries, including Canada, have already issued Ukraine support stamps.

Betsy Mullen, co-founder of the Breast Cancer awareness semipostal is working on a campaign. There is also a petition on Change.org to reissue the U.S. sunflower stamp as a Ukraine support issue.

Here is Canada's Help for Ukraine stamp, Canada's first humanitarian aid stamp, issued last July (image below).

Thanks,

Oswald Marsh - London Stamp Dealer

Written and Curated by Darin Cherniwchan

We, as philatelists have all been, in one way or another, affected by the activities of one Oswald Marsh of London, England. Despite this, I only became aware of his existence and contributions to philately when perusing the Eastern Auctions catalog last spring. And, oddly enough since then, I keep coming across stories directly and indirectly related to the man.

Marsh was born into a family of Quakers in Belfast, Ireland on October 26th, 1880. The head of the household, Joseph Chandler Marsh, was a successful architect and businessman. Oswald's brother, Cecil, managed the family biscuit and tin box manufacturing operations.

Around 1900, Oswald left the family home to endeavour on his own by moving to England and setting up a stamp dealership at "Cairnburn, Belvedere Road, Norwood."

During his time as a dealer, his influence in the hobby took flight. His use of non-adhesive cut-outs affixed to envelopes that bore his sought after personalized addressograph platings still can be found on eBay and in many a collection around the world. He was a life member of the Fiscal Philatelic Society and enthusiastic publisher of several philatelic books and journals.

As previously mentioned, my introduction to Marsh began just recently in June of 2022. As a collector of the Canadian 19th Century Queen Victoria Small Queens issue, I was excited to see a particular auction lot that seemed too good to be true.

The Public Auction held by Eastern Auctions on June 24-25, 2022 included a composite of lots (#'s 1622 -1629) under the heading:

"OSWALD MARSH – UNITED KINGDOM OLD-TIME DEALER, ACTIVE FROM 1900s TO 1940s - MASSIVE USED BUNDLEWARE & ACCU-MULATION"

This was followed by the lotting subheader:

"The following 8 lots feature a remarkable used bundled stock in its entirety, secured many years ago, left untouched and only now brought to light. Originating from the Oswald Marsh (died 1951) massive stock, a famous UK dealer who operated on a large scale as early as 1900s until the 1940s. Many of the bundles were assembled are in old-time glassines during 1910s and 1920s. Mixed condition from damaged to very fine to be expected. What makes these lots so intriguing and fascinating is that such a large hoard was kept untouched through all these years. Our count is intentionally conservative as some were crammed into glassines, leaving us to guess the actual count. An absolute "goldmine" for the student and specialist alike."

Based on my narrow collecting interest of Small Queens, Lot 1622 piqued my interest completely. The Small Queens issue of 1870-97 still remains as one of the most complex and misunderstood philatelic issues ever. Billions of stamps were issued during this period. Colour, plating and paper varieties have inspired the publication of hundreds of textbooks and journal articles. Some philatelists only collect printing errors of this issue due to the wealth of material available over such a long period of issue. My particular area of interest is in constant plate varieties and margin colour (ink in the margins of the stamp) of the One, Two and Three Cent denominations (shown below). It is common to ations. I also was delighted to see that the "odds and ends" of the lot included Marsh's collection (several hundred) of Canadian "cut-outs" from 19th Century postal stationery, an area of his philatelic interest.

This purchase will likely take a decade or so for me to sort out and, in the process, hope to identify new va-rieties and answer many a question that still remain unanswered to this day. In a future edition of the Fed-erated Philatelist, I may share with you some of these find hoards of these stamps sold at auction or at dealer's tables. eBay often has listings of "unsorted" Small Queen multiples. In my experience, there is really no such thing as an unsorted "hoard" of Small Queens - the issue has been around for over 150 years!

What made Lot #1622 unique, and likely a once in a lifetime opportunity for someone like myself, was that this massive volume of stamps was assembled on another continent within a decade of the issue being terminated AND they were put aside in storage for about 120 years. This is likely the unsorted mother lode I have been waiting a lifetime for!

This lot was at the end of the sale and I assumed many interested buyers may have already reached their spending budgets for that weekend. Because this was the only lot I was interested in, I was prepared to go well above the estimate of $750. I was the successful bidder at about 25% over the estimate.

The lot was estimated to have just over 7500 copies of the issue. When the package arrived a week later, I was surprised to find that the lot contained over 18,000 copies mostly packaged in friable glassine wrapped multiples of 100 and envelopes of 50-250 per. The brittleness of the packaged multiples supported my suspicions that these were truly unsorted and untouched for generfindings. But more importantly, I plan to share with you the process how I painstakingly sorted, scanned and compared thousands of these copies without going blind or making my head ache.

An example of 1000 Two Cent Small Queens that came with this lot wrapped as a unit of ten bundles and two separate glassine wrapped bundles of 100 is shown below.

Now that is enough of my journey into "Mr. *Marsh*orium's Wonder Emporium" (for those Dustin Hoffman fans out there).

Oswald Marsh, no doubt, has influenced and shaped the way stamp dealers do business today in terms of stamps on approval, purchasing bulk mint stamps at below face value for period mail, the use of advertising ephemera such as tin cans for hinges and foldable wallets to carry stamp pruchases, journal publications to promote the hobby and textbooks on specialized topics. The remaining part of this article explores, in pictures, some of Marsh's contributions.

Members of the Great Britain Philatelic Society have the privilege of accessing an extraordinary wealth of publications dedicated primarily to the platings, printings, stamps and postal history related to the British Empire. In 2016, Edward Caesley published and posted his thirteen frame exhibit titled "Stamp Dealer Mail," over two frames of which are dedicated to Oswald Marsh. A few examples, shown below, illustrate Marsh's propensity to distribute philatelic information for the primary purpose of selling stamps to collectors. Note the "cut-outs" on the envelopes Marsh used in his mailings. The tin advertising can for hinges was likely made at the family's manufacturing plant in Ireland.

KING GEORGE V. STAMPS—The following is an extract from the Duilty Telegraph report of the Postmaster-General's annual statement in the House of Commons on the 20th inst:

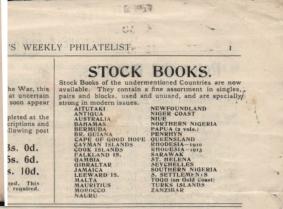

The Committee might be interested to know the result of the sale of postcards and books of stamps at face value. Privately printed postcards had fallen 2 per cent.—Hom 753 millions to 738 millions—and official postcards had increased from 85 to 103 millions—the sale of the books of stamps had gone up from one to three millions. He eigent denomination of Georgian stamps. At present the lagher denomination of Georgian stamps. At present the control of the manufacture and issue of stamps was in the hands of the Board of Inland Revenue. But the Government inserted in the last Pinance Bill a clause transferring these powers of the Inland Revenue to the Post Office, and a Departmental Committee was now sitting to make arrangements for the transference. The delay had occurred through the necessity of providing better plates for the halfpenny and penny stamps, for the re-engraving of the head, and for the pressure in the manufacture and issue of stamps under the Insurance Act. He had every reason to stamps under the Insurance Act. He had every reason to hope the Eoard of Inland Revenue could obtain from the Mivtt he necessary stamps and the contractors the necessary prints of some of the higher denominations within the next few weeks.

He had arranged for the sale of stamps in rolls of few weeks.

He had arranged for the sale of stamps in rolls of 1,000 or 500 penny or halfpenny stamps. This would be for the convenience of firms with a large posting business.

A small charge would be made to cover the cost of manufacture of the rolls.

Oswald Marsh died in 1951 and so did his business. Two of his children continued with the sale of his mate-rial through private and public sales. The last of Marsh's stock sold in 2008, well over 100 years since he first set-tled in London.

It is likely that in some way, shape or form, you have been touched by Marsh's influence.

Letter Arrives More Than 100 Years After Being Posted

By Christian Edwards, CNN Updated 12:16 PM EST, Thu February 16, 2023

A letter has finally been delivered to its destination – more than a century after it was written.

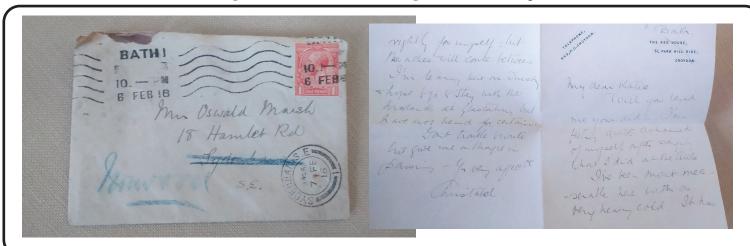

Sent in February 1916, the correspondence arrived at its intended address in Hamlet Road, south London, much to the bewilderment of the current occupants. "We noticed that the year on it was '16. So we thought it was 2016," Finlay Glen told CNN Thursday. "Then we noticed that the stamp was a King rather than a Queen, so we felt that it couldn't have been 2016." Glen told CNN that the letter arrived at the property a couple of years ago, but he has only recently taken it to the local historical society, so they can research it further. The envelope has a 1 pence stamp bearing the head of King George V. The letter was sent in the middle of World War I – more than a decade before Queen Elizabeth II was born.

"Once we realized it was very old, we felt that it was okay to open up the letter," said Glen, 27. Under the Postal Services Act 2000, it is a crime to open mail not addressed to you. But Glen said he can "only apologize" if he's committed a crime.

After realizing that the letter may be of historical interest, he gave it to the Norwood Review, a local quarterly magazine. "As a local historian I was amazed and delighted to have the details of the letter passed to me," said Stephen Oxford, editor of the magazine, in a release. The letter was addressed to "my dear Katie," who, according to Oxford, was the wife of local stamp magnate Oswald Marsh. It was written by Christabel Mennel, the daughter of tea merchant Henry Tuke Mennel, while her family was on holiday in Bath, in western England. In the letter, Mennel writes: "I've been most miserable here with a very heavy cold."

The neighborhood of south London was a hub of business activity at the time. "Lots of wealthy, middle class people moved into the area in the late 1800s," Oxford told CNN.

Oswald Marsh, the former resident of the Hamlet Road property, "was a highly regarded stamp dealer who was often called as an expert witness in cases of stamp fraud," according to Oxford. - CE

MEET THE SPEAKERS

Note: Biographies are provided by the speakers.

Norma Nielson – Eugene, OR: Norma is a general collector of U.S. and Canada. She has diverse interests, led by her award winning exhibit, "The Story of Lloyd's: From Coffee to Commerce." Other exhibits include (1) a study of the UN issue showing the Chagall Peace Window and (2) a postcard exhibit telling the story of Fabergė's Imperial Easter Eggs. She has written articles on her Lloyd's Exhibit, on the 5c Small Queens of Canada, and on using genealogy resources for philatelic research. She is a nationally qualified philatelic judge in US and Canada. Her philatelic memberships include the Royal Philatelic Society of Canada, American Topical Association, Calgary Philatelic Society, Ships on Stamps study circle, and Women Exhibitors.

Myron Molnau – Spokane, WA: I am originally from Minnesota south-west of the Twin Cities in the middle of the lake country. That means that I have always been interested in water and boats. With a degree in Water Resources, I had the opportunity to go to the University of Idaho, and indulge in my interest in snow hydrology and winter runoff problems. I spent 30 years doing what I loved and retired in 1999. Since retirement I have spent all my time in collecting books, stamps and traveling, preferably on cruise ships whenever possible or around the Pacific Northwest or northern Rockies with my pickup. I had a stamp collection in grade school that was put aside during high school. But eventually my wife encouraged me to pick up the stamps again. A librarian at the University of Minnesota was a stamp collector and he introduced me to the American Topical Association Ships on Stamps Unit. I joined the Unit and have been an active member ever since. I have two major country collections, Canada and Belgium. I have been very active in the ATA, being on the Board of Directors, and serving as treasurer. I was also an officer of the Ships on Stamps Unit of ATA for many years and just stepped down after over 48 years holding one office or another.

Joe Voice – Pasco, WA: Joe has been collecting since about 1996. He started collecting to relieve work stresses, working with a stamp dealer at a brick-and-mortar shop who knew how to get a potential collector hooked. Interests at that time were Greenland and Iceland. He has continued adding to his collection of Greenland postal history. Other current collecting interests include AMG Germany, CAM-5 and CAM-32, and Bicycles as a topical. Joe enjoys research more than collecting. This has led him into philatelic exhibiting. He was introduced to the Varney Airgram by Howard Ness here at Moses Lake about 20 years ago. He has accumulated them ever since Howard had said he couldn't afford to buy a collection of them. Joe's research about the Varney Airgram has led to a club program, an award winning exhibit, and a design type catalog. He is currently working on a book about the postal history associated with Varney Airlines and the Varney Airgram.

Ken Owens – Spokane, WA: I started collecting stamps on my 7th birthday, when my parents gave me a TRAVELLER stamp album and an orange bag of stamps, both on and off paper. It was the beginning of a lifelong hobby for me. I remember getting together with the neighborhood kids to trade duplicates and to show off my treasures. I collected steadily through high school, being a regular visitor and customer at Hall's Stamp Shop in downtown Spokane. Like many others, I put away my stamps during college and as I began a career (as a CPA) and started a family. I never lost my interest and love of stamps. My childhood collection was unfortunately stolen from a storage locker, so I had to start over again from scratch. As a CPA, I combined my profession and my hobby by collecting German revenue stamps. Being a military history buff and of German descent, Germany and its colonies and territories was a natural area of interest for me. After retiring, I joined the Inland Empire Philatelic Society and the APS and became an active collector again.
