

Kathleen Scarbalis, PA-C

Kathleen Scarbalis received her B.S. degree from St. Lawrence University in Canton, New York majoring in chemistry and education. She received her physician assistant degree from Albany Medical College, Albany, NY and then a Masters in Physician Assistant Studies from the University of Nebraska Medical Center. Kathy has been a practicing PA for over 40 years, presently working at Virginia Pediatric Group.

Kathy Scarbalis most recently served as AAPA House of Delegates chief delegate for the Virginia Academy PAs. She is an active member of the Medical Society of Virginia, serving on two boards, the Political Action Committee and the Foundation Boards of Directors. She is past chair of the Virginia PA Advisory Board to the Board of Medicine. PA Scarbalis continues her commitment to improving the communication among PAs and providing excellent healthcare with the physician/PA teams in Virginia.

In conjunction with her husband's military service, Kathy is well traveled and worked in several US states as well as Germany, Belgium, and Korea providing primary care in military clinics. Kathy has been married over 40 years to her husband, Dave who retired from the Army as a Colonel and is currently a consultant with his own small business.