

To those who social media failed.

To my sister. I wish we could have done something sooner.

*Everybody needs an anchor
A little something that makes you stay
An incentive, someone to fight for
'cause no one really needs so much space*

Acknowledgments

This thesis spans many pages, yet I could easily fill just as many more expressing my gratitude to everyone who supported me along this journey. It has been my greatest honor to learn from you through these years, and I do not take your support for granted.

First, I would like to thank my family. Mamá, Rosa E. Fuentes Gallardo, you are the most resilient human I have ever encountered. Seeing you smile is all I ever want in this world. Thank you for never limiting me. Thank you for graduating from college. As a child, I watched you tirelessly mentor younger apprentices by day and teach at night, defying social prejudices. Those nights were not in vain; they illuminated both my present and my future.

Cristóbal, you bring the most certainty to my world. Thank you for taking care of mi mamá and Cata while I explore the world for all of us. I couldn't have dreamed of a better brother for us and a son for my mom. Because of you, I get to ride a bike. I can't begin to express how much I love and respect you—there is nothing I wouldn't do for you.

Catalina, I feel your pain. Because of you, I learned that we don't see the world as it is, but as we are. And from you, I also learned that everyone I will ever meet knows something that I don't. Never give up, sister—we are not giving up on you.

To my grandma, abuelita Nena—who taught us to find joy, to be humble, to love, and to cherish in both health and sickness, for richer or for poorer, and whom I carried as a pallbearer halfway through my PhD—thank you. Clarita and Luca, thank you for bringing our family together.

Second, I would like to thank my committee. Thank you to my thesis supervisor, Deb Roy, for trusting me to join a fantastic team and contribute to building knowledge and community within MIT's Laboratory for Social Machines and the Center for Constructive Communication. Thank you, Deb, for the space to learn and grow.

Thank you, Jonathan Zittrain, for your vision—our discussions shaped a significant part of this thesis. Thanks to the Berkman Klein Center at Harvard for energizing my journey.

Thank you, Rosalind Picard, for your incredible mentorship and support and for sharing your passion for science and knowledge. Thank you for reminding me that we are humans first. Your trust in my values and skills and your encouragement to pursue my dreams mean the world to me. Roz, your dedication to precision and thoroughness has shaped my research and inspired me to strive to become my best version.

Thank you, CCC and LSM community. Heather Pierce, Leila Carter, Russell Stevens, Katherine Cramer, Sarah Ballinger, Anneli Woolf, Sneha Makini, Eric Chu, Leonard Francis Vibbi, Shayne O'Brien, Shayne Longpre, Lauren Fratamico, Juliana Nazaré, Sam Brasil, Maya Detwiller, Ali Klemencic, Ellen Hoffman, Marina Rakhilin, Artemisia Luk, Julia Matthews, Matthew McKenna, Katie Morrell, Perris Richter, Jad Kabbara, Brandon Roy, Doug Beeferman, Elle Luna, Dimitra Dimitrakopoulou, and Claudia Chwalisz.

Thanks to my research collaborators. Wes Chow, Sinclair Target, Dennis Jen, John Flynn, Matthew Nay, Neil Gaikwad, Veronica Barassi, Alexander Rush, and Ethan Zuckerman. Thank you, Nabeel Gillani, for your unwavering trust and mentorship.

To my peers. William Brannon, Wonjune Kang, Cassandra Overney, Daniel Kessler, Shrestha Mohanty, and Michael Wong. Thank you, Suyash Fulay, for your fun intellectual partnership at the lab and your fantastic competitive partnership in all sports. Elinor Poole-Dayana, thank you for your trust. Hang Jiang, for navigating all milestones together, Jia-Yo.

Thanks to my students. Trudy Painter, Sasha Krigel, and Jocelyn Zhu.

Thanks to my larger Media Lab and MIT community. Alma Jam, Marcella Framondi, Monica Orta, Mitchel Resnick, Necsys, and MIT MAS. MIT Sidney-Pacific Executive Council; Geeticka Chauhan, Christopher Whittle, Michael Calzadilla, Brandon Koo, Julie Shah, and Nuria Jane. Thanks to my Media Lab peers, Abhi, Abhishek, Alfonso, Ana, Brayden, Caitlin, Carmelo, Christina, Daniella, Daniel, Ezinne, Guillermo, Ila, Irmandy, Jocelyn, Joanne, Kush, Laura, Leticia, Manaswi, Manuj, Mike, Nikhil, Noah, Pat, Patrick, Prathima, Safinah, Samantha, Sebastian, Serena, Tara, Tobin, Ufuoma, Vald, and Vera.

My friends in Chile. Ingeamigas, for checking in on me so frequently through the years and always celebrating me in Chile. Special thanks to Soledad Sunkel, Consuelo Fuenzalida, Isabel Huerta, María Inés Concha, Paula Ferrés, Juanita del Río, Victoria Arrau, and Ángeles Ibáñez. Thank you, Catalina Wiedmaier.

Thanks for going above and beyond. Aarón Montoya Moraga, for your inspiration. Fernanda Vargas and Tomás Gazmuri, for your steady trust. Isabel Jacas, for our laughs. Keyla Blanco, for your care. Camilo Rojas, PhD, for your mentorship. Isabela Arellano, for grounding me. Aidan Bradshaw, for your determination. Eric Teschke, for your selflessness. Laura Uguccioni, for your captainship. Isaac Meza, for our adventures. Alex Berke, PhD, for your intentionality. Alexandra Weiner, thank you for your positive grounding and wisdom.

Thank you, Elena C. Kodama, for being genuinely authentic. My longest MIT friend, we met during visiting days at the Media Lab, and since then, your journey has inspired me.

Thank you, Salomé Aguilar, for your passionate energy and commitment to making the world a better place. Bernardo García, PhD, for your unmatched playfulness. Naana Obeng-Marnu, for your partnership and trust. Cassandra Lee, for your expressiveness and wisdom, for understanding my soul, and for a world of wonders.

Thanks to Kimaya Lecamwasam for your care for the world, Francesca Davy-Falconi for challenging me to be better, and Alessandra Davy-Falconi for your passion. You are a leading force for me. Our laughs helped me get back up again and again. Thank you for our side quests, for loving my muchness, and for always being ready to celebrate each other.

For your fierce trust, mentorship, and loyal friendship, Angela Vujic, PhD, and Hope Schroeder, you have empowered me and looked after me when I needed it the most, and for that, I am forever grateful. I would dream of an academic world crowded with peers like you. Keep being a force in life; we all need you.

Javiera Astusillo, Francisca Chadwick, and Mohit Karnani, PhD, thank you for always being a call away and ready to provide a warm home and a down-to-earth perspective. You are all sunshine. Thank you for your 911 worldwide support.

Teresita Irarrázaval and Dalal Chahuan, thank you for being rock solid for over a decade, welcoming me to your families, allowing me to be myself, and knowing what I needed to hear and do when I couldn't tell myself. My family and I are forever in awe of you. You have seen it all. I would not have been to MIT, much less have graduated, without your deep belief in me. Teresita Irarrázaval – I've learned from you to be more gracious and generous with others and myself. You are the most amazing mom to your kids. Dalal Chahuan – If everyone had a friend like you, the world would be happier. Thank you for showing up for me and my family and for keeping me humble by kicking my butt in ping-pong.

Margaret Hughes, thank you for being you. We learned how to do a PhD together. Growing alongside you throughout this journey—as humans, friends, explorers, travelers, teammates, researchers, revolters, thinkers, nemeses, students, and peer mentors—has been one of the greatest joys of my life. You have inspired me and pushed me to grow in ways I always hoped for, and for that, I am forever grateful. I cherish our challenging discussions and memories, both intellectual and personal ones—many of which will keep me laughing for ages. I could learn all the English in the world, and I'd still be trying to keep up with your brain. Please don't take that away from me—I'm doing my best. This PhD journey was intense, but to grow alongside you, I would do it all over again.

Finally, I want to thank the students, practitioners, and researchers who come after me. The path I have walked was never meant to end here. I hope you find as much joy in the journey as in the work itself—both inside and outside the lab—and in the communities you encounter and bring together along the way. I look forward to learning from the next generation, knowing that we can all help make each other's lives better. It doesn't require the internet or large online communities; it starts with being a better person for those right beside us. I want a world where we are all more compassionate and open to one another, and wherever I go, I'll strive to build that reality—loving others as I love myself, one person at a time.

Mira con el corazón lo que tus ojos no ven.
