

ONE SHED. FOUR WAYS.

CREATIVE WAYS TO USE YOUR BACKYARD SHED

JOLLY LANDSCAPING & SHEDS

One of our 4'x8' custom wood sheds in Churchill.

It's about 40 degrees outside and the start of the New Year.

And while Spring feels far away, this is actually the perfect time to start planning your backyard.

Winter is when most homeowners have the time and clarity to think about how they want to live when warmer, longer days return. It's also when the best shed projects take shape—before schedules fill up and Spring arrives faster than expected.

This short guide was created to help Richmond homeowners explore four practical you can use a custom shed. In it, I use one of our shed projects in Churchill as a model.

Whether you're looking for:

- A quiet retreat
- A focused work-from-home space
- Stylish bike or gear storage
- Or a clean, organized place for tools and gardening

this guide will help you identify what makes sense to your yard and your needs.

Thank you for your time!

WHY HOMEOWNERS ARE RE-THINKING SHEDS

Sheds Aren't Just for Storage Anymore

Today's homeowners want more from their outdoor space.

Interior square footage is expensive to add, and many homes simply don't have room for:

- Dedicated workspaces
- Hobby areas
- Organized storage
- Quiet personal space

A custom-built shed can solve these problems—without remodeling your home.

More importantly, sheds have evolved. They're no longer afterthoughts tucked into the corner of the yard. When designed intentionally, a shed becomes a functional, attractive extension of your home.

"The most successful shed projects start with one simple question:

How do I want to use this space day to day?"

#1 — A QUIET BACKYARD RETREAT THAT’S TRULY YOURS

A she-shed isn’t about size—it’s about separation and intention.

Whether it’s used for reading, crafting, yoga, journaling, or simply having a quiet place to step away, this type of shed creates a space that feels personal and calm.

For many homeowners, it becomes a place to reset—just steps from the house, yet mentally worlds apart.

Ideal For

- Homeowners who want a retreat without leaving home
- Urban backyards where every square foot matters

#2 — THE BACKYARD OFFICE SHED

A Dedicated Work-From-Home Space—Without Remodeling Your House

An office shed creates a clear boundary between work and home—something many homeowners realize they need most during Winter months.

Instead of carving out space in a spare bedroom or kitchen corner, a backyard office shed offers focus, privacy, and structure to the workday.

Why Homeowners Choose This Option

- Quiet and improved concentration
- No loss of interior living space

#3 — STYLISH BIKE & GEAR STORAGE

Protect Your Gear—And Reclaim Your Garage

For homeowners with bikes, strollers, lawn equipment, or outdoor gear, clutter becomes a constant source of frustration. A custom storage shed designed specifically for gear solves this problem—without turning your yard into a utility zone.

Why This Works So Well

- Makes daily access easier and more convenient
- Restores the garage for parking, hobbies, or additional storage

This is one of the most underrated shed uses—and one homeowners often say they should have done sooner.

#4 — STYLISH TOOL & GARDEN STORAGE

Functional Storage That Actually Looks Good in Your Yard

A well-designed tool shed keeps frequently used items accessible without sacrificing how your yard looks. It eliminates cluttered corners and fits well into your landscape.

Ideal For

- Gardeners
- DIY homeowners
- Anyone who wants tools close—but out of sight

WHICH SHED FITS YOUR LIFE RIGHT NOW?

The Best Shed Is the One You'll Actually Use

Here's a simple way to think about it:

- Retreat Shed: personal time, calm, creativity
- Office Shed: focus, productivity, separation
- Bike & Gear Storage: organization, protection
- Tool Storage: function, accessibility, order

Most homeowners like to plan and build in the Winter so they can enjoy their custom sheds in the Spring.
