

OCD and ADD Go Sailing the Texas 200 2024

Sailing the Texas 200, a journey so grand,
Captain Bob, with his new iPhone in hand.
Snapping photos, his mind in a blur
While Lisa, the first mate, her OCD unfurls.
The 17-foot boat, a vessel so small,
Navigating the waters, standing tall.
Bob's ADD, a constant distraction,
Lisa's threats, a source of traction.
The miles stretch on, the sun beats down,
But their spirits remain, never to drown.
Except when Bob forgets the rule,
That Garmin is GOD not just a tool.
Into the shallows at Marker 37,
Bob goes overboard to push with no sight of a siren.
Laughter echoes, despite the tension,
As they sail through the Texas 200's contention.
A tale of adventure, a story to tell,
Of a captain and mate, who learn not to yell.
Through the challenges, through the bays,
Sailing the Texas 200, all the way.
