

A belt's size is not the same as pants waist size.

Take your everyday belt and measure from the bend of the belt to the hole that you normally use. Our belts will have 5 holes and we will use this measurement to the 3rd (middle) hole.

If you don't have a belt, we can use your waist size plus 2 inches. To be more accurate, take a flexible tape measure and thread it through the belt loops of your trousers, just as you would with a belt. Stand relaxed and measure snugly around your waist. Be sure not to push your belly in or out. Note this measurement and then round it to the nearest inch. This is your optimal belt size.

Keep in mind that buckles vary in width. If you request that we provide a buckle, it will be a common heel bar buckle (like the one pictured above). This could affect the belt fit if your measurement was taken from a belt with a trophy buckle and you choose to not use your buckle.
