Zero Security was built on sensitive activity operations and experiences solving our nation's most complex situations. Anthony Lewis, founder and CEO, brings capabilities from his time with Special Mission Units and national intelligence agencies to build upon cyber awareness, surveillance and counter-surveillance courses. He has served many roles from director to course writer for organizations such as the Special Forces Surveillance Committee, the FBI, large and small business contractors, high-profile private travelers, and several other federal law enforcement agencies and Special Mission Units over the past two decades.
