

2023 Texas Property Tax Calendar

January 2023

January 1st – Date that current year taxable values and qualification for certain exemptions are determined for the tax year (except for some inventories appraised as of September 1st).

January 10th – If a tax bill from the previous year is mailed after this date, the delinquency date is postponed.

February 2023

February 1st – Date that taxes imposed the previous year become delinquent if a bill was mailed on or before January 10th of the current year.

April 2023

April 15th – Last day to file renditions and property reports on most property types. Chief appraiser must extend deadline to May 15th upon written request.

April 30th – Last day for property owners to file applications or certain reports with the CAD including:

- Some exemption applications
- Notice to the Chief Appraiser that property no longer entitled to an exemption that does not require an annual application
- Requests for proportionate taxation of a planned unit development.
- Requests for separate listing of separately owned land and improvements

May 2023

May 15th – Last day to file most protests with ARB (or by 30th day after notice of appraised value is delivered, whichever is later). Last day to file renditions and property reports for most property types IF an extension was requested in writing. Chief appraiser may extend deadline an additional 15 days for good cause.

July 2023

July 1st – Date that delinquent taxes incur total 12 percent penalty.

July 25th – Date that the Chief Appraiser should certify the appraisal roll to the taxing jurisdictions.

July 31st – Last day for property owners to apply for September 1st inventory appraisal for the next year.

September 2023

September 1st – Date that taxable value of inventories may be determined at property owner's written option.