PREFACE

The purpose of this registry is to recognize and honor all the soldiers that served with the 158th Field Artillery Battalion (158th FA Bn) during the Korean War. The Korean War was often referred to as the "Forgotten War" because of its lack of attention it received in comparison to World War I and II as well as the Viet-Nam War; it began on 25 June 1950 and hostilities ceased when an armistice was signed on July 27, 1953. To publish this registry is to preserve those names of the soldiers whom by their selfless service served in the unit, and by membership risked personal hardship, many of them deploying to the Korean peninsula.

This registry can no way be a comprehensive list of everyone who served with the unit, simply because it was derived from a collection of command reports, composite rosters, orders, newspapers, and manifests. Every resource available was analyzed to produce this registry but in reality the author realizes that due to the mere fact of a 70 year time span, names can and will be overlooked and omitted. It is with deepest apologies and regret if this indeed occurred.

There is an assumption that everyone who served within the 158th FA Bn during World War II and the Korean conflict was a "guardsman" or an Oklahoman, and this is far from the truth. To fully understand and appreciate the soldiers' who formed the core of the battalion's hereditary deoxyribonucleic acid (DNA) during the Korean War deployment you need to have a basic understanding of conscription in the US Army, the Selective Service System and the "point system", all these impacting the DNA composition of the battalion. These topics are referenced in this volume.

CONSCRIPTION

The Colonial era of the United States is considered to be from 1492 up to when its first provisional government; the Continental Congress; was established in 1774. In the "new world" the hostile death rate was very high for all the colonists, so the European settlers brought with them their protectorate "militia system". The militia system was not a group of volunteers who liked to play "army"; rather it required every able-bodied man to train periodically in case their services for military operations were required. To ensure that no man escaped from his military obligations, muster rolls were required and each man was required to own a firearm with a minimum amount of powder, flint, and bullets. Drill training was normally conducted once a month and those men that were military inept were required to fulfill extra training for their awkwardness. With this system they found success and the colonies flourished in the new world.

The colonist came from throughout the world but after the "French and Indian Wars" and the "1763 Treaty of Paris" the colonials were under the dominion of the British Crown. The desire for independence was expressed in the cry "No taxation without representation!" Eventually British Army regulars were sent to the colonies to enforce the increased taxations. Increased tensions bolstered the spreading belief among colonists that the monarchy was a threat to individual freedom which ultimately resulted in the "Revolutionary War".

The Continental Congress functioned as the provisional government of the United States and in 1774 this congress drafted the "The Articles of Confederation" and this was considered as the first constitutional government for the Thirteen Colonies. In April 1775 growing tensions between residents of the North American colonies and the British crown eventually resulted in small skirmishes in Lexington and Concord, Massachusetts. On June 14, 1775, the Continental Army (succeeded by the United States Army which persists to this day) was established for defense and the ranks would be manned by militia forces already stood up in Massachusetts and New York. Using one-year volunteers from Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, and Virginia a Continental Regiment was established. Eventually the Continental Army would compose of 36 regiments organized into 3 divisions with 6 brigades. 4 July 1776, the "Declaration of Independence" was signed and a full-scale war for independence known as the American Revolution started. A civil war turned into an international conflict when France entered the conflict on the side of the colonists in 1778.

Then in 1789, the Constitution of the United States was voted as the supreme law of the United States of America. It superseded the Articles of Confederation and although it comprised of seven articles it delineated the national frame of the government. Article 1, Section 8, Clauses 11 through 16, define the military powers empowered to the Congress. They can declare War, raise and support Armies as well as the authority to organize, arm, and discipline them and have the power to call forth the Militia and employ them in the purpose of executing the laws of the Union, suppressing insurrections, and or repelling invasions.

The Continental Army, the military force of the new national government, was initially composed entirely of volunteers from an initial burst of patriotism and enthusiasm. The British had struck with a vengeance in an attempt to end the American rebellion inflicting one defeat after another defeat, always looking for the one knock-out punch, and soon the Continental Army faced their darkest hour. Desertions were rampant, low morale and discipline resulting from poor mobilization, training and recruitment techniques brought the army to the verge of crisis. Thomas Paine responded by publishing his famous "American Crisis" pamphlets, opening with:

"These are the times that try men's souls; the summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will, in this crisis, shrink from the service of his country; but he that stands it now, deserves the love and thanks of man and woman. Tyranny, like hell, is not easily conquered; yet we have this consolation with us, that the harder the conflict, the more glorious the triumph."

As many as 11,000 volunteers had already given up the fight and had returned to their families and farms. These words electrified the demoralized army and became the rallying cry for the distraught patriots to stand up and take up arms once again. As the volunteers returned to start filling the ranks, the army was able to deploy them back into the field. But, as the war dragged on, manpower shortages became acute, despite the monetary incentives. The individual states used conscription, not just to man their own militia but also to fill their quotas for the Continental Army and it varied from state to state. Conscription remained decentralized, varying from state to state. Some states used conventional militia drafts; others used vagrants and transients; and if you were lucky enough you could pay a "draft substitute" to go in your place. In 1778, General George Washington recommended a long term draft and Congress authorized the first comprehensive draft in the "February 1778 Recruiting Act", which authorized a nine-month call up, garnering substantial numbers of men for the next two years. In 1780 another round of drafts was instituted, but this time for a six-month levy which was sufficient enough to man the ranks of a smaller army, countering any British force on the battlefield. A large French and American force traps the British on Virginia's Yorktown peninsula, unable to evacuate General Cornwallis surrenders in 1781 and the Americans won their independence. On 3 September 1783 the "Treaty of Paris" officially ends the war by ratifying the independence of the Thirteen American states.

As the new nation of the "United States of America" starts to develop another war with England is on the horizon. After the conclusion of the Revolutionary War, the military is demobilized and there is only one captain and 80 enlisted soldiers left on active duty to guard the arms and ammunition stores. Hostile Indian attacks and western development forced the Congress to pass resolutions that would eventually create the "Department of War" in 1789, thus expanding the army. By 1790, the standing army consisted of one regiment of three battalions of infantry and one battalion of artillery. For the next 20 years the army changed in size and configuration as the empowered congress "raised and supported" the new army that would fight in the "War of 1812" and the "Mexican War".

When the "Civil War" broke out in 1861 both sides used conscription. The Confederacy States had fewer male inhabitants than the Union States so they immediately started "drafting" in 1862 where the Union passed the Enrollment Act of 1863 when their volunteer numbers didn't meet the quotas required. Resistance to the "draft" was widespread on both sides and conscription was synonymous to slavery. Draftees could provide substitutes and under these provisions families could select which family member would go into the army. For families fortunate enough they could avoid military service altogether by paying "commutation money". That the war was able to sustain itself for four years was the ability to produce manpower at speeds necessary to counter the opposition. After the war ended it was realized by the War Department (WD) that manpower cannot be procured by a volunteer system and that conscription based on principles of "selective service" was the most efficient and fastest way of obtaining military manpower. When the Civil War ended the Union Army; one of the most powerful military forces in the world, was dissipated in a very rapid demobilization.

WORLD WAR I

In 1916; in anticipation of entry into the World War I (WWI); Congress passed the "National Defense Act of 1916" which capped out the Regular Army (RA) strength to 175,000 men and the National Guard (NG) to 450,000 men. On 6 April 1917 President Wilson signed the formal declaration of war against Germany and the US entered WWI. In 1917, there was an initial call up for 1 million enlistees and only 73,000 volunteers signed up. President Wilson was empowered to draft militia units to fulfill the "call up" but he decided to rely on the "draft". On 18 May 1917 the Selective Service Act was passed.

This bill was carefully written to remedy the defects from past wars, and it addressed the liability for military service of all male citizens. Administration was entrusted to the Selective Service System (SSS) which used local community boards composed of leading civilians. Soon 10 million men were registered and by the end of 1918 approximately 24 million men had been registered and 3 million inducted into military service.

Registration was only the preliminary step in the SSS process. The real work centered on the logistical demands that were generated from the vast manpower requirements. There was a shortage of clothing, equipment, ordnance, especially machines guns to train with, but the most serious was transatlantic shipping to get the "Yankees over there". Soon miracles from superhuman efforts turned the table and the American Expeditionary Forces (AEF) landed in France. No one had realized the magnitude to mobilize, equip, house, train, maintain, and transport the 2,000,000 men into the theater of operations. On 25 July 1918 the WD approved the "80-Division" concept which meant that 2,760,000 men would have to be drafted along with an additional 650,000 replacements in the pipeline in order to sustain operations. The WD also realized that by adding more manpower onto the battle field there would be more mass casualties. So on 12 February 1918 the WD introduced the Army Service Number (ASN) to assist in accurate individual identification which would be a necessity for the many identical names that a large draft would ultimately create. Suddenly on 11 November 1918 the war ended, WWI was over!

The WD now had to stop and do a sudden reversal from mobilization to demobilization. "Bringing the boys home" was Issue number one. The large exodus of the AEF was chaotic and the transatlantic shipping problem still remained unsolved. Returning units reported to one of 30 "Demobilization Stations" and the need for manpower to provide essential services, such as transportation, supply, and medical support to support these stations were crucial. The new postwar reality was that the primary means of expanding the Army; albeit augmented by volunteers: the manpower source would be from mass conscription and serve as a model for World War II (WW II).

WORLD WAR II

President Roosevelt signed the Selective Training and Service Act on 16 September, 1940, beginning the first peacetime draft and reestablishing the SSS as an independent agency. This law instituted conscription in peacetime, requiring the registration of all men between 21 and 35. After the attack on Pearl Harbor the registration age was changed to of all men 18 to 64 years of age. During WWII, 49 million men were registered; 36 million classified, but only 10 million were actually inducted. The Pacific and European fronts were requiring up to 200,000 inductees per month. When Germany surrendered on May 8, 1945, the Army had to transition into an occupation force facing the new task of redeploying the European force halfway around the world for the expected invasion of Japan. With the vast amount of manpower "in the pipeline" and now with a surplus of troops an equitable system was required to identify and discharge the millions of men who fought in Europe. The question was "Who would be sent to the Pacific, who would transition into the occupation force, and who would be sent home"? Following the orderly disorderly Demobilization Station process that occurred after the Armistice of 1918, would leave the Army critically undermanned for the occupation and tribunals of Europe and the Pacific. After WWI entire divisions were sent home however this would not be a viable option since many replacements were used to fill the manning requirements throughout the period of war.

After soliciting feedback from commanders the Army implemented a system called the "Adjusted Service Rating Score" (ASRS) or commonly referred to it as the "point system". Under this scheme, every soldier was awarded a number of points based on how long they had been overseas, how many decorations they had received, how many campaigns they had taken part in, and how many children they had.

Points were awarded according to the following formula:

- One point for each month in service in the Army.
- One additional point for each month in service overseas.
- Five points for each campaign.
- Five points for a combat medal for Merit or valor.
- Five points for a Purple Heart.
- Twelve points for each dependent child up to 3 dependent children.

Enlisted men who had a total of 85 points on their ASRS Card you were eligible for discharge and enlisted women of the Women's Army Corps (WACs) were eligible at 44 points.

In theory the "point system" was fair and equitable but in practice it was plagued by misinformation and interpretation. It didn't really matter because within a few months on 15 August 1945, President Truman announced Victory over Japan (VJ) Day the Japanese Government agreed to unconditional surrender. General Koiso Kuniaki did not officially sign the surrender document until 2 September 1945 but the Army was already demobilizing its forces at a breakneck pace, and soon it lowered the point threshold for return home from 85 to 50 points. Available resources eventually bottlenecked the demobilization. Even when soldiers in either theater possessed the requisite number of points, they still had to wait for a ship to become available to take them home. "Operation Magic Carpet" was instituted to authorize battleships, carriers, and smaller vessels to transport hundreds of thousands of soldiers back to the U.S. With occupation and support soldiers in place the Army was able to end the point system in mid 1946, favoring discharges after a two year hitch. The Army's demobilization officially ended on 30 June 1947, with a fighting strength of 8,000,000 men to a force of 684,000.

ARMY SERVICE NUMBER (ASN)

On the 14th of June 1775, twenty-eight (28) regiments were organized into a standing field army; the "Continental Army"; which would eventually defeat the British Army in 1781. This new army was organized into territorial divisions, then task-forced into the "Northern and Southern Armies". With the emergence of the United States of America onto the world stage, its standing army was shaped by war, each time reorganizing and evolving to fight the threat. The changes in warfare resulted in the forming of such armies as the "Army of the Potomac" during the Civil War, the "National Army" during WWI, and the "Army of the United States" during WWII. As the armies became larger so did the casualties; solidifying the requirement for accurate individual identification.

Identification of service members of the 158th FA Bn for this Korean War Registry relied on allotment and assignment of ASN's in relation to the respective service member's induction. The National Personnel Records Center (NPRC), #1 Archives Drive, St. Louis, MO 63138, offers the following memorandums containing tables of the ASN series broken down by issuance periods with explanatory notes for a majority of the prefixes and suffixes used by service branch.

- NPRC Memorandum 1865.20: Appendix B-1. Table of Service Number Issuances.
- NPRC Memorandum 1865.32: Appendix B. Table of Service Number Issuances.
- NPRC Memorandum 1865.104: Figure A-1. Table of Service Number Issuances.

Although the ASN was introduced in 1918 to address this need to facilitate accurate identification of two or more men with the same surname and initials, it was Army Regulation (AR) 615-30 dated 19 July 1921 that created and outlined the general design of the ASN; which was later adapted by the other branches of the armed forces. From its authorization, the ASN has been allotted, assigned, superseded and rescinded, multiple times due to changes in the force and structure. These changes were driven by strength, gender, branch and service requirements and have been addressed in Army Regulation (AR) 615-30 dated 19 July 1921, 12 February 1942, 21 January 1943, 6 March 1946, 17 July 1947, 25 June 1948, 2 August 1948, 2 September 1949, 13 October 1949, 15 November 1949, 1 September 1950, 13 February 1953, and Air Force Regulation (AFR) 39-31 dated 2 September 1949, and National Guard Regulation (NGR) 25-7 dated 6 December 1948 and 15 May 1964.

The entire range of the WD or Department of Defense (DOD) service numbers extend from 1 to 99,999,999. An ASN can be as low as one (1) but no longer than eight (8) numerals as evidenced by Master Sergeant Arthur B. Crean ASN: RA-1 and Sergeant Elvis Presley ASN: US-53310761. Service numbers were used by the DOD as the primary means of service member identification from 1918 until 1974 when the Social Security Number (SSN) became the new means. Service numbers are public information available under the Freedom of Information Act, unlike SSN which are protected by the Privacy Act of 1974.

ASNs were assigned to officers and enlisted men who entered into any component of the Army. The Army would not re-assign a new number if a soldier had previously served in another component but rather be assigned the number under which last previous service was rendered. Officers were assigned an Officer Service Number (OSN) and indexed on the appropriate official registers, i.e., Official Army and/or Official National Guard/Organized Reserve Registers. The service number properly assigned to an enlisted person will not under any circumstances be assigned to another individual and it would serve as primary means of identification of the individual. Service number prefix codes were one or two letter designators written before the ASN as a primary means of additional information regarding a military service member. Examples: for OSNs the prefix "O" for Army Officer and "W" for Army Warrant Officer. For ASNs a "NG" for enlisted National Guard, "RA" for male enlisted Regular Army, "US" for male enlisted draft personnel, "ER" enlisted male reservist, "WA" for Regular Army enlisted women (WAC) and "WR" for enlisted women reservists (WAC).

From 1918 to 1920, ASN's were allotted to the Army stopping at 5,999,999; and after 1920 up to 1940 ASN's were allotted from 6,000,000 to 7,099,999. But on 20 August 1920 the WD issued General Order No. #50 establishing the nine (9) corps areas and their territorial boundaries. When the 1920 National Defense Act was passed, the WD adopted the six (6) field armies concept; consisting of about two million men.

The WD further grouped the nine (9) corps areas into three (3) "army areas" (numbered sequentially). The First, Second, and Third Corps Areas constituted the First Army Area; the Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth Corps Areas constituted the Second Army Area; and the Seventh, Eighth, and Ninth Corps Areas constituted the Third Army Area.

The boundaries for the first three field armies (First, Second, and Third) were identical with those for the second three field armies (Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth). The First through Third Armies would be composed primarily of RA and NG units and first to be mobilized. The Fourth through Sixth Armies were to be composed entirely of Organized Reserves (OR) units and would be mobilized subsequently. The overseas departments: Hawaiian Department (HI), Philippine Department (PI), Panama Canal Department (PC), and Puerto Rico Department (PR) were also established.

Now the Army initiated a newer and more complicated system, the 8,000,000 thru 9,000,000 allotment series would now be reserved for female Army personnel (ultimately the 9,000,000 series were never issued).

The 10,000,000 thru 19,999,999 series would be the wartime "Regular Army" service numbers with a subset reserved solely for RA outside of the 48 contiguous states. The subset would be 10,000,000 to 10,999,999 with the third digit being the geographical code. 10 1 would indicate Hawaii, 10 2 Panama, 10 3 Philippines and 10 4 for Puerto Rico.

HI: 10,100,000 to 10,199,999
PC: 10,200,000 to 10,299,999
PI: 10,300,000 to 10,399,999
PR: 10,400,000 to 10,499,999

NOTE: The remaining number codes of 10 5, 10 6, 10 7, 10 8, and 10 9 were allocated for recruiting stations outside the United States. The second digit of the 10 1 thru 10 4 series reflects the Corps area of enlistment.

This meant that the 11,000,000 through 19,999,999 series would be issued to "Regular Army" enlisted personnel within the boundaries of the 48 contiguous states and territory of Alaska. This meant matching the geographical corps area with the second digit, resulting with the following series:

- 11: Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, and Vermont.
- 12: Delaware, New Jersey, and New York.
- 13: District of Columbia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, and Virginia.
- 14: Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Tennessee.
- 15: Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio, and West Virginia.
- 16: Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin.
- 17: Arkansas, Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, and Wyoming.
- 18: Arizona, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Texas.
- 19: Alaska, California, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, and Washington.

NOTE: The first digit would identify them as RA; the second digit would correspond to corps area and the last six digits as personal identifiers.

However "National Guard" units from Hawaii or Puerto Rico that were inducted into Federal Service; regardless of whether or not an ASN was borne by an enlisted man, would have their enlisted men reassigned ASN's, as follows:

HI: 20,010,000 to 20,019,999
 PR: 20,020,000 to 20,029,999

NOTE: The third digit of the 20 01 thru 20 02 series, reflects the Corps area of induction.

So this meant that the "National Guardsmen" who were federalized were given ASN's ranging from 20,100,000 to 20,999,999.

This meant matching the geographical corps area with the third digit, resulting with the following series:

- 20 1: Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, and Vermont.
- 20 2: Delaware, New Jersey, and New York.
- 20 3: District of Columbia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, and Virginia.
- 20 4: Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Tennessee.
- 20 5: Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio, and West Virginia.

- 20 6: Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin.
- 20 7: Arkansas, Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, and Wyoming.
- 20 8: Arizona, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Texas.
- 20 9: Alaska, California, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, and Washington.

NOTE: The first two digits would identify them as NG, the third digit would correspond to corps area and the last five were a personal identifier.

Lastly was assignment of the conscripted force. "Draftees" were issued ASN's ranging from the 30,000,000 to 39,999,999.

Draftees from Hawaii, Panama Canal, Philippines or Puerto Rico inducted under the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940, regardless of whether or not an ASN was borne by them, their ASN would be reassigned as follows:

- HI: 30,100,000 to 30,199,999
- PC: 30,200,000 to 30,299,999
- PI: 30,300,000 to 30,399,999
- PR: 30,400,000 to 30,499,999

NOTE: The third digit of the 30 1 thru 30 4 series, reflects the draft location.

So this now meant that the "Draftees" who were inducted into federal service were given ASN's ranging from 31,100,000 to 39,999,999.

The geographical codes matched those of the RA and NG personnel and were as follows:

- 31: Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, and Vermont.
- 32: Delaware, New Jersey, and New York.
- 33: District of Columbia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, and Virginia.
- 34: Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Tennessee.
- 35: Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio, and West Virginia.
- 36: Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin.
- 37: Arkansas, Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, and Wyoming.
- 38: Arizona, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Texas.

39: Alaska, California, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, and Washington.

NOTE: The first digit identified them as a US Draftee, the second digit corresponded to a geographical area where they had been drafted and the last six were a personal identifier.

(AR) 615-30 dated 12 February 1942 now reflected this new concept for RA, NG, and US by allotting the following ASN's:

Throughout 1942, the Army expanded the draftee service numbers and created the 40,000,000 to 49,999,999 service number series. These numbers were to be used for persons drafted from geographical areas that had exceeded their initially allotted numbers. In all, the only 40,000,000 series numbers that were ever issued ranged from 42,000,000 to 46,999,999 and after WW II they were discontinued and were never reused. A final service number series of World War II was the 90,000,000 to 99,999,999 number series which were reserved for members of the Philippine Army who had been called up to serve in the ranks of the U.S. Army.

WW II ended in 1945; however the "Cold War" begins to counter a growing communist threat. The National Security Act of 1947 creates the position of Secretary of Defense (SECDEF) to coordinate the efforts of the established armed forces; the United States Army, United States Navy, and the newly created United States Air Force (USAF). Subsequently in 1949, legislation renames the established armed forces to the Department of Defense (DOD), which creates the new position of Chairman Joint Chiefs of Staff (CJCS), requiring each established armed force to now have a "Chief of Staff" and General Dwight D. Eisenhower becomes the new Army Chief of Staff (ACS). On 18 September the AAF is abolished and amalgamated into the USAF and AAF personnel and assets are transferred by Transfer Order No. #1, Office of the Secretary of Defense, dated 26 September 1947. This creates an immediate impact in the command and control channels of the National Guard Bureau (NGB) because their AAF elements now become the Air National Guard (ANG). Coordination of these new legislative, budget, and administrative concerns of an Army and Air Division under the auspices of a NG command creates a modern NGB Headquarters, which comes into existence by October 1948. With this resulting in the land based continental armies, having to transfer their tactical command functions to General Headquarters, US Army and the old corps areas are now reorganized into six (6) field armies. These six Army Areas operated on a functional basis but their geographic basis roughly followed along the old corps areas boundaries:

The First Army Area: Headquartered at Fort Jay in New York, New York with geographic areas that included Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Rhode Island and Vermont.

Second Army Area: Headquartered at Baltimore, Maryland with geographic areas that included Indiana, Kentucky, Maryland, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and West Virginia.

Third Army Area: Headquartered at Fort McPherson, Georgia with geographic areas that included Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Tennessee.

Fourth Army Area: Headquartered at Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio, Texas with geographic areas that included Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Texas.

Fifth Army Area: Headquartered at Fort Sheridan near Chicago, Illinois with geographic areas that included Colorado, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wisconsin, and Wyoming.

Sixth Army Area: Headquartered at Presidio of San Francisco, California, with geographic areas that included California, Idaho, Montana, Oregon, Nevada, Utah and Washington.

On 2 September 1949, AR 615-30 and AFR 39-31 outlined the new allotment and assignment of the 50,000,000 to 59,999,999 ASN's to enlisted personnel within the boundaries of the 48 contiguous states. This series also contained a subset of 50,000,000 to 50,999,999 for service entrance from outside of the United States. 50 0 would indicate United States Army Pacific (USARPAC), 50 1 United States Army Caribbean (USARCARIB) and 50 2 for United States Army Alaska (USARAK).

USARPAC:	50,000,000 to 50,099,999
USARCARIB:	50,100,000 to 50,199,999
USARAK:	50,200,000 to 50,299,999

NOTE: The third digit would determine the geographical region.

In order to facilitate identification, ASN's from the numbered series below will be assigned to enlisted men in the "Regular Army" or "Regular Air Force" (RAF) to whom a number has not been assigned previously:

First Army Area:	51,000,000 to 51,999,999
Second Army Area:	52,000,000 to 52,999,999
Third Army Area:	53,000,000 to 53,999,999
Fourth Army Area:	54,000,000 to 54,999,999
Fifth Army Area:	55,000,000 to 55,999,999
Sixth Army Area:	56,000,000 to 56,999,999

In order to facilitate identification of "Draftees", ASN's from the numbered series will be assigned to enlisted men in the Army of the United States and the Air Force of the United States under provisions of the Selective Service Act of 1948 to whom a number has not been assigned previously.

First Army Area:	57,100,000 to 57,199,999

Remember that in 1940 that the allotted number series for the NG was 20,000,000 to 29,999,999; one third (1/3) of the corps area allotments. Sufficient number series were assigned to the state adjutant general's that when the Korean War began in 1950, this number series was still being used throughout the conflict and the 1950s. The only real changes for the NG were the geographical boundaries of the army areas due to home stationing of certain NG units. This is the record of assigned service numbers allotted:

Enlisted ASN's remained unchanged during the post Korean War, because the US (draft force) were assigned a majority of 50,000,000 to 59,999,999 series range while the RA and NG continued to cycle through their allotted number series. In 1966, with the increased US involvement of the Vietnam War, resulted in the Army activating the 60,000,000 to 69,999,999 series. In 1968, the Army activated the 70,000,000 to 89,999,999 number series but by this time most military records used Social Security Numbers (SSN) to identify the service member. On 1 July 1969, service numbers were discontinued and none of 70,000,000 to 89,999,999 was ever assigned.

KOREAN WAR

In 1948 the National Guard Bureau instituted a three-year training cycle for units (based on the three-year Guard enlistment), and in 1950 inspectors from Army Field Forces (AFF) rated the 45th Division and its component units as most ready for mobilization. Soon after 25 June 1950, when the Korean War broke out, the 45th Division as well as the 158th FA Bn was notified of their mobilization on 1 August 1950 and then induction into active federal service on 1 September 1950. The Army hoped that most Organized Reserve Corps (ORC) and National Guard (NG) units that were notified of the impending activations would arouse a sense of duty and stimulate volunteers within their communities. This was very optimistic but within ten days the Army began to recall ORC members involuntarily, mostly company grade officers and medical doctors. Congress had given President Truman the authority to order units and individual members of the Organized Reserve Corps and National Guard into active federal service for 21 months. The 158th FA Bn's length of service would expire on 1 June 1952.

The 158th FA Bn moves to Camp Polk, Louisiana where it trains for approximately 7 months and then it moves to Japan for AFF training and testing before it begins its rotation to the Republic of Korea (ROK). On 6 December 1951, the 158th FA Bn arrives on the Korean peninsula in the vicinity of Chorwon into the centrally located complex known as the "Iron Triangle"; marked out by the towns of Pyongyang, Chorwon and Kumhwa. At 1200 hours of 22 December 1951 the 158th FA Bn completes a Relief in Place/Transfer of Authority (RIP/TOA) with the 61st Field Artillery Battalion, 1st Cavalry Division and this event is commemorated by Lieutenant Colonel Charles W. Cleverdon, pulling the lanyard and firing the first round from a Battery "A" howitzer of the 158th FA Bn. The battalion arrives mid-conflict, which has been raging now for 19 months with only 6 more months of federal service left.

With this mobilization and deployment, unique "rotation" and "individual replacement" policies were now introduced into the theater of operations. The 45th Infantry Division was one of only two National Guard divisions sent to Korea, and soon most of the national guardsmen would rotate home once their federal service requirement was completed. Public Law 461, 82nd Congress, authorized the retention of National Guard Units on active Federal Service for 5 consecutive years, and the organization, in State status, of units comparable in structure to those retained on active duty, so the Army and the National Guard Bureau (NGB) now reacted by redesignating and reorganizing the 45th Division. The 45th Division with all of its' subordinate units were now designated the "45th Infantry Division Army United States" (45th Inf Div AUS) and they would now remain in Korea until 1954. The 158th Field Artillery Battalion was now designated "158th FA Bn AUS". In June 1952 national guardsmen rotated back home, they would need tangible organizations to drill at; so the NGB created identical organizations at the armories; they would be uniquely identified by adding a "National Guard United States" (NGUS). On 3 November 1952 the 158th Field Artillery Battalion (NGUS) is organized and federally recognized with Major John R. Northrup, as Battalion Commander and with Headquarters Headquarters Battery (HHB) and Battery "C" at Chickasha, Oklahoma. Following up with federal recognition is Battery "B" on 13 November 1952, Service Battery on 22 November 1952 and Battery "A" on 23 November 1952 at Anadarko, Minco, and Weatherford, Oklahoma, respectfully. The "battalion colors" remained on the Korean peninsula until 30 April 1954, when the 45th Inf Div AUS was released from federal service. The division returned back to National Guard Control and on 25 September 1954 received its colors back under "Operation Color Back."

As the national guardsmen rotated back home into the newly designated NGUS units, the AUS units in Korea would now be filled by replacements from the Army Replacement Battalions

(ARB). Although peace talks started at Panmunjom in July 1951, fighting continued as the negotiations stalled. After two more years of negotiations, the adversaries signed an armistice on 27 July 1953. By this time all the 1950 mobilized national guardsmen had returned home and the rank and file of the 158th FA Bn AUS was now composed of replacements of RA, US and ER personnel. A "Replacement Depot" (the term "repple depple" was the common usage) was established to sustain the manpower requirements of the Far East Command (FECOM), the Eighth U.S. Army deployed in Korea and the depleted 7th Division in Japan. A Replacement Training Center (RTC) was established at Yokohama, Japan, the 8609th Replacement Depot at Camp Mower, Sasebo, Japan and the 8069th Replacement Depot at Pusan, South Korea. The Eighth U.S. Army augmented its strength by incorporating the Korean Augmentation to United States Army (KATUSA) into its ranks. The program called for the integration of South Korean soldiers into U.S. Army units, with the ROK Army retaining responsibility for their administration, pay, and discipline. As the pipelines of replacements entered into the system, rotation polices were introduced to relief the sustained combat.

The 158th FA Bn AUS was "based camped" near the 38th parallel in the Chorwon Valley, part of the Iron Triangle. Fire mission support was conducted from these base camps; however some assignments were required away from the base camp; like forward air and ground observers who would rotate closer towards the Main Line of Resistance (MLR) and then back. After extended periods of service, units on the MLR would rotate to a rear area, perhaps miles away from the MLR, for rest, hygiene and additional training. After approximately six months in Korea, soldiers were automatically eligible for Rest and Relaxation (R&R) leave, usually in Japan. Rest and Relaxation was a misnomer, and the soldiers recognized this by commonly referring to it as I&I (Inter-course and Intoxication) or A&A (Ass and Alcohol). The army's goal was to provide a break for the combat-weary soldiers and restore their fighting spirit, lessons learned after "shell shock" from WWI and "combat fatigue" from WWII.

In April 1951 a rotation policy was introduced. Once a soldier had accumulated a certain number of points, he was eligible to return home; once his position was taken over by a replacement. The initial requirement for rotation back to the States was 43 points for enlisted men and 55 points for officers. 4 points were awarded for every month served in close combat, 2 points per month for rear-echelon duty in Korea, and 1 point for duty elsewhere in the FECOM. On 21 July 1951 the Army instituted a revised rotation plan where individuals accumulated "constructive months' service" according to the nature and length of their assignments in the FECOM. A month in combat equaled four constructive months, a month in Korea but not in combat was worth two constructive months, and one month in other parts of the command earned one-and-a-half months of constructive credit. The Army's forecast on the number of replacements required for sustained combat is what drove the points necessary to qualify for rotation. In June 1952 the Army reduced these requirements to 36 points for enlisted men and 37 for officers. Many believed that the rotation system only exacerbated combat power by weakening cohesion and morale.

Since the 158th FA Bn's transition from tube to rocket artillery, it has mobilized and deployed overseas a number of times. During its mobilization, "fillers" were used to bring the unit to required deployment strength, but once deployed no replacements were used. The unit deployed and redeployed to home station as a unit. During the Korean War the battalion mobilized and deployed to the ROK and served 44 months on active federal service. Throughout this period soldiers transitioned in and out of the battalion. This registry will try to identify all those members who served during this 44 month period. The "rotation and replacement" period, which was approximately from June 1952 through April 1954, consisted of replacement rotation that now required numerical strength reporting in lieu of individual reporting; making it difficult if not impossible; to identify every replacement.

The author will exhibit composite rosters, sequentially from August 1950 to April 1954. These exhibits will be a "source titled and dated" rosters in a "bold font". The last roster exhibited will be a comprehensive "Alpha Roster" of all prior exhibits.
