

@RachelLaLoca

Management: THIS Group INC 631-671-0321 Don@thisgroupinc.com Rachel Strauss-Muniz is an Actor, Producer, Writer, Podcaster, VO Artist and Marketer. She is Creator and Host of the two-time WEBBY and People's Choice Award nominated and, Signal Award WINING Podcast, Latinos Out Loud; all in the Best Comedy categories. She currently voices the role of "Mrs. Tuttle" on the animated series, "The Tuttle Twins". Her voiceover work can also be heard on "La Cabina Telefónica", a Spotify Original, as well as in "Michelle Rojas is Not Okay", an Audible/Broadway Video podcast releasing in 2023.

Rachel is a new member of ECCO (Entertainment Creative Collaborative Outreach) Program; where she was invited to Senate and The White House to help bring needed attention to key issues and initiatives that will have a positive impact on the national, regional and local levels via public policy, civic engagement, and legislation.

Rachel was profiled on the series "From Performers to Spectators: Covid 19" streaming now on PBS and performed on "Bring the Funny" streaming on NBC and Peacock. Rachel also played a principal role in season 2 of "Diabolical" (ID Network).

Her feature film debut as an actress in "Superblocked" premiered at the 2021 Warner Media Latino Film Festival and the film won Best Feature at The Official Latino Film Festival. She was a selected writer for the National Hispanic Media Coalition's 2021 LatinX Stream Showcase, where her short film, "The Swimmers" premeired. It was also featured in the 2021 Official Latino Film Festival. Her one-woman show, "Ink" was a featured selection in the 2021 ONE Theatre Festival.

Rachel is featured on Coverfly's 2022 Next List of Writers and is a 2023 American Express and Luminary Fellowship recipient. She's won a NYC Indie Film Festival Award for producing "Latino Vortex" a short directed by Oz Rodriguez. She has performed at The Toronto Sketch Fest and the New York Comedy Festival. She wrote and rapped in music video parody--"Pregnant Queen", which was featured on Midnight with Chris Hardwick (Comedy Central) and has garnered over 1.6 Million YouTube views.

Rachel is Creator/Producer of The HERlarious Show, an all-female variety show featuring some of the funniest females in sketch, improv, stand-up and musical comedy. HERlarious has ten episodes of short-form comedy now live on Rizzle TV. "Just Another Day Livin' Quarantine", a Queen Latifah parody video was featured in the 2021 Toronto Sketch Festival.

She produces custom content for brands like The U.S. Census Bureau, Wendy's, Frito Lay, McDonalds, Dior Beauty and Latina.com. Rachel produced "El Profeta de la Salúd", a six-part webseries for the non-profit organization, SOMOS. Her character work can also be seen on "Gente of Thrones" (Buzz Feed), a "Game of Thrones" parody. She has an extensive corporate background in marketing, having held positions at brands like Latina, People en Español and Heineken USA.

Rachel is a two-time recipient of The Upright Citizen's Brigade Diversity Scholarship where she studied improv, character and sketch writing. She's also studied privately with acting coaches such as Victor Cruz and Gary Peréz.