RSL joins Austin FC, FC Dallas and Houston Dynamo FC in wearing patches to commemorate the 19 students and two teachers killed at Robb Elementary School in Uvalde, TX on the morning of Tuesday, May 24.

The Houston Dash of the National Women’s Soccer League will also feature the patch on their uniforms.

Shaped like the state of Texas, the patch depicts a black sash around the state with a heart and Uvalde’s 78801 area code.

The jersey numbers and the limited-edition jersey packaging illustrate the history and importance of Juneteenth, and reinforce the notion of “Freedom To Be,” emphasizing everyone’s inherent freedom to be their true selves in every facet of life. Featured in the packaging is the powerful poem “Freedom,” one of the most seminal works by the legendary African American poet, novelist, and social activist Langston Hughes. Written in 1949, at a time when African Americans continued to face intense racism, disenfranchisement, and segregation, “Freedom” is unwavering in its call for freedom for African Americans. The inside of the packaging includes a space for MLS players to write a proclamation of what they are “Free To Be.” They were later on available for sell with a auction.
