Title: 'Life on the Line'
Author: Al Gibson
Publisher: Monarch Books

Reviewed by MD Henderson

Foreword: Peter Whitcome, Snr Pastor 'Jesus First', Auckland NZ

This book is a true testimony of what Evangelism is all about and it shows you early on in the book how Des Sinclair was firstly imprisoned and then miraculously released from prison. In an extraordinary series of events brilliantly written you are taken on a journey. The author somehow has the ability to create pictures in your mind making you feel you are actually part of the story...

This man Des Sinclair has been through persecution and physical trauma because of extraordinary forces working against him; and it soon becomes very clear that equally there is another extraordinary force working in his life and rescuing him from these situations.

Al Gibson - Author

To the non-believer you will not be left in any doubt that God's perfect grace and love conquers all.

This book is so empowering that I was filled with the Holy Spirit whilst turning the pages! You find it hard to put down and return to menial tasks, because there is an urgency to know what happens next...The book itself is very easy to read and chapters are interestingly opened with either sub-titles or scripture.

In conclusion this spirit-filled book opens your mind and touches your heart to what really is going on in Des & Ros's walk in the world of Evangelism. As the enemy comes in the Lord time after time lifts up His standard against him, and gives the reader a deeper meaning of God's love and protection, and how His plans and His Will for his children will stand even through all the hardships.

A must read...

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Al Gibson was born in Zimbabwe in 1962 where he grew up in a Christian home. He had a radical encounter with Jesus Christ at Rhodes University in South Africa in 1983, and a long-term vision was birthed to use creative writing for the extension of the Kingdom of God. After graduating with a Bachelor of Journalism & Media Studies degree, he went to work at one of the country's leading newspapers, The Rand Daily Mail, but his passion was to be involved in Christian publishing.

Following a year's ministerial training at Rhema Bible Training Centre, where he felt God had called him as a scribe to chronicle 'modern day Acts of the Apostles', Al was led to start an editing and design business in Johannesburg where he was editor of a number of magazines for 10 years. This included Spirit & Truth Magazine, the official publication of the International Federation of Christian Churches (IFCC).

The dream went international when he moved to the UK in 2001 to join GOD TV, one of the world's fastest-growing faith-based broadcasters. Since his appointment as Central Communications Officer, he has been involved in all communications aspects of the ministry including editing the GOD TV Guide – a monthly publication which was produced in different regions and translated into various languages, with a combined global circulation of 150,000. While on assignment for GOD TV in South Africa in 2006, Alistair met New Zealand evangelists Des & Ros Sinclair and was amazed at their account of how God had moved in their lives. As a journalist he was convinced this was a story that needed to be told and the result was the 20-chapter book – LIFE ON THE LINE.

Al is married to Jeanine and lives in Exeter, England where he continues to serve the ministry of GOD TV and is privileged to be a part of the awesome vision of Rory & Wendy Alec which aims to win one billion souls through media. He has four children, Stanton, Ashleigh, Stephanie and Reuben and two step children, Layla and Chezni

Al Gibson is currently working on his second novel.

Title: 'Ireland's Lost Heritage'
Author: David Carnduff
Publisher: IPBC Publications

Reviewed by MD Henderson

Foreword: Dr RT Kendall

I was a bit apprehensive about reading such an 'historical book' as it isn't the sort of book I would normally read. Therefore I was really relieved to find out that the chapters are divided into smallish sections thus making it easier for the reader to not only access the information but to retain it.

Indeed the book is not like a 'history' book as I had preconceived, but does consist of an overview of a factual and articulate church history in Ireland.

As you begin to read you are immediately struck by the in-depth knowledge and research required to write such a piece and indeed David Carnduff demonstrates this ability with ease as you are taken on a journey through Ireland's spiritual as well as historical history.

Pastor D Carnduff M. Th

It is also interesting that the author doesn't 'hold back' on his own opinion and compares that to others' who have written on the subject before.

From the dark ages to the revivals in Ireland to St. Patrick and the occult it is all here. David manages to encourage the reader that true freedom for Ireland will only occur whenever the people themselves within it truly embrace the awesome anointing of God's grace and love for all people in order for them to witness the full revival of the Church and for them experience the true power of the Holy Spirit.

Author Interview

Title: Son of Perdition
Author: Wendy Alec
Publisher: Warboys Publishing Ltd
Website: www.chroniclesofbrothers.com

Q How long did it take you to write The Son of Perdition?

I had a general outline for SON OF PERDITION and the first 100 pages written by March 2009 – but the majority of the book (the other 300 odd pages!) was written over a gruelling summer in Kansas in the Midwest over a period of THREE MONTHS. My study was literally filled with research books, web research and my dog and cat.

Wendy Alec

Q How was writing this book different from the first two or was there a difference?

Yes. It was almost a completely different book. I have to say I loved writing about the supernatural realm – Heaven and Hell – and the major part of both Books One and Two was in that realm with only a smattering of the Earth story in Book Two. But it ALL CHANGED completely in Book Three. The Earth story just flew off my pen. And my style changed with it. In the Heaven and Hell stories I think my style naturally is more archaic – olde world – but in the Earth story the pace is fast.

Q Is the book fact or fiction?

It's a skeleton of truth – but from my perspective often extremely dangerous and incendiary truth wrapped in a character-driven drama about three brothers from an inordinately wealthy Illuminati family against a backdrop of the Angelic and the vast landscape of the Book of Revelation.

Q The Son of Perdition is a dark title, did researching the darker aspects of the book affect you at all?

There were certain sections of research that during those weeks I felt that I had been immersed in so much darkness, subterfuge and lies that I felt really heavy. But of course I'm a Christian and the Lord's been guiding me every step of the way and my continual prayer has been "Holy Spirit lead me into all truth – not MY truth – not a mass market truth – not a Conspiracy theorists truth, but into what God KNOWS is truth and is happening under the radar". So I have taken nothing lightly and felt at times the most enormous responsibility and accountability under God to bring certain of the subjects dealt with in SOP to light and into public view.

Q There are strong visual aspects within the book that really impress your readers. Have you thought of having the books made into a movie?

We live in a fast moving visually frenetic media world – this generation has been reared on sound bites and strong visuals. The books started off as a movie project – Book One in screenplay form – I wrote the framework for Book Two as a television mini series at Christmas 2005. My whole life has been saturated in the media as Creative Director and Director of Television at GOD TV – so before I see words, I see IMAGES. As soon as I sit down at my computer, my mind is invaded with visuals – that's why some of my scenes are so short. I literally, after each scene, say "CUT" in my head.

Title: 'Whose Child is This?'
Author: Bill Wilson
Publisher: Charisma House

Book Review by Karin McBride

Foreword by Tommy Barnett

As soon as I opened the pages of this book I started to experience and understand immediately what my friends in the secular media and believers alike were talking about. 'Whose child is this?' is penetrating, challenging and above all lasting...

The author begins the book as he continues throughout, in a conversation with the reader. He manages to personalise the stories in a manner that ensures you cannot escape the horror, the miraculous and the joy. Immediately you are plunged from page 1 into a very real 'Gotham City'; but one soon realises whenever you get to page 7 and the catalogue of statistics that this is indeed real life and Metro Ministry's world.

Pastor Bill Wilson - Founder Metro Ministries

It is not some make believe fantasy world but the witness of many thousands of children everyday whose only experience of Jesus will maybe only ever be in the form of a yellow bus or a Metro Ministry volunteer bringing bread literally to the table.

I would go as far as to say it actually has the potential to have a similar punch as the 'Diary of Anne Frank', so long as it is embraced. From the outset of 'Whose Child is this?' we are plunged into a very different world from the one we think we live in. Bill Wilson and his team are facing a different type of Holocaust every day, one without fences.

What is striking about the book is that even through it all, there is a pressing innocence that emanates from the pages that cannot and indeed must not be ignored; this is illustrated perfectly through the children's snippets of testimony and their ability to continue to love us as adults and differentiate between what is good and evil once exposed to Metro Ministries, and all of this comes down to one man Dave Rudenis, who rescued a little boy sitting on a bench called Bill Wilson...

'Personal visitation has literally become the foundation for the entire ministry' Bill writes in page 69. After reading this book you will have had your own personal visitation – I can guarantee it!

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

As a child, Pastor Bill experienced the pain and hopelessness of abandonment. One day, as he walked down a street with his mother, they stopped to sit for a while. She instructed him to sit there and wait for her to return. He sat and waited for three days straight. She never returned. A Christian gentleman who had seen Bill stranded and alone stopped and picked him up. It was here that Bill's relationship with God began. Out of the pain, impoverishment and isolation of his own abandonment, Bill developed a heart of compassion for suffering children everywhere. From the ghettos of America to the garbage dumps of Manila, Bill has sought to rescue hurting children.

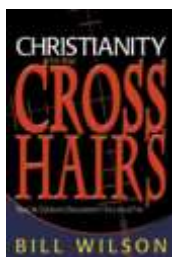

Pastor Bill established Metro Ministries in 1980 in what was one of Brooklyn's roughest neighbourhoods, the Bushwick community, most commonly known for its history of gang violence, crime, drugs, and poverty. Here, violence is a way of life and a constant threat. Pastor Bill has been beaten, stabbed and shot in the face. Yet, he perseveres and refuses to leave the area or give up on the children growing up in such an environment. Because of that, his efforts have made a difference, not only in the lives of children but in the community as well.

Due to the success of Metro's programs, President George Bush, Sr. Appointed Pastor Bill to serve on the National Commission on America's Urban Families in 1991. Metro's influence was also identified as a factor in the noticeable reduction of crime in the Bushwick community and the organization was featured on ABC's Nightline. Today, Pastor Bill travels widely, speaking in churches nationally and internationally each week. He is frequently featured on Christian television networks throughout the U.S., Canada and Europe. And his programs, curriculum and techniques are being duplicated in cities all over the world. However one thing remains the same; every Saturday, Pastor Bill is there in the heart of the urban jungle in Brooklyn, driving the school bus to pick up boys and girls for Sunday School.

Currently Bill Wilson is writing a series on Life and Leadership Skills. Numbers 1 and 2 of the series are listed below. watch out for number 3 in the series entitled *"The Teflon Rhino"...*Coming Soon!

Title: The Scribal Anointing
Author: Theresa Harvard Johnson
Publisher: Voices of Christ Literary Ministries International

Book Review by Karin McBride

Foreword by Apostle John A Davis Snr Spiritual Father & Mentor

Prior to reading this book I was already partially prepared in the spirit for a great read concerning the impartation of the Holy Spirit and the writer. I was keen to learn and it did not disappoint – this book delivers – quite literally! In-depth, incisive and I would even go as far as to say a revelation; The Scribal Anointing will take the reader and more importantly any potential writer on a great journey of discovery. Even after reading just the preface you get the sense immediately that care and thought has been given to every word placed on the page and that this book has an anointing all of its own...

Prophetess Theresa Harvard Johnson

Prophetess Theresa Harvard Johnson puts a new slant on writing and how the anointed scribe differs from a regular writer. I was keen to read how such a spiritual concept could be actually put down on paper and conveyed to the reader. I need not have worried the power within this book is the vessel that writes it and it is very clear that some sort of impartation of the Holy Spirit and Theresa has taken place; as this book takes the reader beyond the flesh in a very short space of time, assisting one to ponder on the greater things in life. From the outset the section devoted to the scribes of the Old Testament and the 'bad press' surrounding the Scribes and Pharisees of the New Testament is clarified. These historical truths and Jesus' various references to these writers, only confirms the importance and influence the scribe has within the Kingdom of God; we have been entrusted with a sacred gift, Jesus highlighting how this trust had been abused somehow during his time. Therefore I believe that Theresa is warning us here that as any potential scribe embarks on his or her journey, yes, it is vital to understand the importance of the gift he/she has been given; but probably more importantly it is always important to maintain the mantle of humbleness and not to get 'puffed up'...

The author's main message I believe is that we are not here to entertain but to minister and this is demonstrated perfectly through the exploration of such subjects from Prophetic writing, The Purpose of the Prophetic Scribe, Wolves in Sheep's Clothing to Praise & Worship to name but a few...this book will totally change your perception of poets, writers and scribes forever, and from a personal point of view I found I was challenged in the section concerning Entertainment and Ministry, being involved for many years within the genre of PR. It gave me clarity and indeed understanding as to how to differentiate between the flesh and spirit and God's kingdom and this world...

Theresa somehow manages to create a hunger and inspire at the same time, a truly unique gift...and after reading The Scribal Anointing anyone entrusted with this gift requires respect. This is a definite must read for any believer seeking to be released further into the kingdom...

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Prophetess Theresa H. Johnson is an advocate for Jesus Christ, standing up for the ministry of immersion through Matthew 28:18-20 at every opportunity. She is a poet and author whose desire is to bring believers into the reality of Jesus Christ. She is also a teacher, mentor and spiritual mother to those who are serious about serving the Lord with their lives and giftings. At this stage in her life, Theresa has embarked upon a journey of transparency and faithfulness, seeking to do whatever the Lord requires to not only please him but to experience His glory as part of her daily life. She promised the Lord that she would hold nothing back in pursuit of him, and stands faithfully on the promise of Philippians 1:6 concerning her life, purpose and destiny.

By the time Theresa was in third grade, she was writing poetry, singing and sharing songs and writings at recess with her classmates as an audience, and by request from her teachers. Later, she was introduced to the tales of Nancy Drew. It was here that she developed a heart for investigative news reporting, a passion that would later launch a highly successful career in journalism. Everywhere Theresa went, she carried a notebook named Heart. In it, she recorded the struggles of her youth and the hope for the future. By the time she had graduated from High School, she'd served in many literary capacities and had won several state writing awards and regional trophies for poetry. In 1995, she graduated from Fort Valley State University with a Bachelor of Arts in Public Relations. By that time, she was already working as a staff writer at a daily newspaper in South Georgia, and had served in internships with two of Georgia's largest newspapers.

By 1998, Theresa had won awards for best series in investigative reporting and other news writing awards and recognitions from the Associated Press, the Georgia Association of Educators, and the Georgia Press Association. She also became a member of the Society of Professional Journalists and The Public Relations Society of America. In addition, she broke into the freelance arena where she wrote for several Atlanta based weekly newspapers, magazines and national magazines including Charisma. In the midst of Theresa's career, the Lord captured her heart. Her love for writing was ignited by a Kingdom agenda, and in 2000, she founded what is now called Voices of Christ Literary Ministries International, a Georgia non-profit corporation. Today, with support from literary ministers across the nation, the Lord has used VOC to bring clarity to the ministry of prophetic writing in the hearts of hundreds of scribes globally. Through Voices of Christ, prophetic writers find and take hold of their scribal destiny in the Kingdom.

Theresa was trained in her five-fold ministry calling by the guidance of Holy Spirit through Harvest International Intercessors Network, where she was licensed and ordained as a prophet in 2003. She received her training through the School of the Prophets curriculum from the Christian International Ministries Network in Florida. Today, she flows powerfully in the prophetic and under an apostolic anointing where the Lord focuses her attention on tearing down altars that exalt themselves above the Word with a specific emphasis on entertainment, compromise, comparison and competition in the worship arts. She has also earned a ministry credential through KU School of Ministry and is currently pursuing a master's degree in theology.
