

Harry Durgin, Photographer

“Photography is about sharing a moment — forever. Capturing and conveying the feeling of being there. Showing others what it was to stand in that spot and see that sunset, that wave, that sky, that second of awe and light that moved me...” -Harry Durgin

Living on the sunrise side of the island, on the wild windward coast, Harry understands the moods and mystery of the Hawai'i we all love. From flowing lava to starry skies, with jungle and waves between, we live in an amazing and dramatic place.

Harry and his wife Mouse make their own prints and frames in their Kea'au studio; their work is truly made in Hawai'i with aloha.
