

Dementia Advocacy Canada is pleased to invite you to attend an interactive webinar:

Reduce the Risk of Getting Lost

Hosted by Mary Beth Wighton & Paul Lea

Tuesday, April 30 2019

4:00 pm EST (5:00 pm AST, 3:00 pm CST, 2:00 pm MST, 1:00 pm PST)

Learn about Canada's involvement in the International Wayfinding Consortium - including its purpose, policies, and which countries are involved. In this webinar you'll be able to provide input on research that will lead to international policy recommendations to help prevent people from getting lost, and the first responder protocol for if they do.

Guest speaker: Noelannah Neubauer

Noelannah Neubauer is a PhD Candidate in the Faculty of Rehabilitation Medicine at the University of Alberta and is supervised by Dr. Lili Liu. Her PhD focuses on developing a conceptual model that guides choice of proactive strategies for persons with dementia at risk of getting lost. She is the co-founder of the International Consortium on Dementia and Wayfinding. Her research interests are diverse and include dementia-related wandering, missing person events, aging in place, assistive technologies, knowledge mobilization and policy.
