TEACHING EXPERIENCE

Lecturer

Brunel University.

MA Research Methods, Spring 2020. I developed the materials and taught a class covering main research methodologies and dissertation development. I delivered a weekly lecture component and a practical seminar.

CAPA – The Global Education Network.

Ethics in the Media, autumn 2019 and spring 2020. I developed all materials and assessments and delivered this course to US students studying abroad. The three-hour lectures mixed lecturing, discussion sections and case-study analysis.

Social Media & Strategic Communication, spring 2020. In developing this course, I developed a partnership with a leading digital marketing agency, Ayima, whose staff delivered guest slots on areas of professional expertise. Classes included lecture components and practical instruction on a range of communication techniques and technologies. For a final project, students in teams developed a web presence and multiple pieces of content for a new fictitious social enterprise.

Guest Lecturer

Cardiff University, spring 2021; BA module, The Making and Shaping of News.

Brunel University, autumn 2019; BA module, International Politics and Social Change.

Dissertation supervision

Middlesex University, 2019 to 2021; supervisor for eleven BA Journalism dissertations.

Teaching Assistant

UW-Madison, J202: Mass Communication Practices, autumn 2014, spring/autumn 2015.

- J202 is the introductory course teaching students a wide range of communication skills and techniques for journalistic writing and strategic communication.
- Examples of elements taught include writing breaking news stories, writing and editing for broadcast, writing press releases, producing media buy plans, interviewing, publishing web content, and Alternative Story Forms (ASFs).

UW-Madison, Teaching Assistant, J335: Principles and Practices of Reporting, spring 2017.
- J335 is an intermediary level reporting class which builds on J202. The course is a mixed-level course for undergraduates and professional track MA students.

Received consistently high evaluations as a lecturer and TA. More details and a sample of qualitative evaluations to date are available at cerihughes.com/evaluations and sample slides and syllabi are available here: cerihughes.com/samples

RESEARCH POSITIONS

Research Associate, Cardiff University. January 2021 to present, post-doc position - “Countering Disinformation. Enhancing journalistic legitimacy in public service media,” May 2020 to December 2020 - worked on a report for the BBC on journalists use of social media, an AHRC-funded study into alternative media - “Beyond the MSM: Understanding the rise of alternative online political media,” and an examination of reporting on devolution in reference to the Covid-19 pandemic.

Project Assistant, “Communication Ecologies, Political Contention, and Democratic Crisis,” summer 2017 to summer 2019. Appointed as The Knight Fellow for Communication and Civic Renewal in autumn 2019.

PIs: K. Cramer, L. Friedland, D. Shah, M. Wagner, C. Wells, W. Sethares, K. Rohe.
The research project investigates the communication landscape of Wisconsin and the role that it may have had in influencing the political ecology of the state. The research was recently awarded a $1m Knight Foundation grant, $411,000 UW 2020 grant and over $250,000 in other external grant funding to continue the work. Conference 1. Conference 2.

Project Assistant, “Project DATA: Digital Ad Tracking and Analysis” autumn 2015 - autumn 2016. PI: Young Mie Kim

Project DATA is an investigation of the practice of microtargeting by political parties. The project collected browsing data and survey information from volunteers. I set up data collection during the 2016 primary period which served as a pilot before the General Election. I helped develop the survey questionnaire, worked with programmers to develop the browser extension which collected the data. I developed the codebook for the ad categorisation and undertook extensive data analysis.
