Artist statement

I am forever grateful for all of my clients and treasure my work and the tattooing craft tremendously. Whilst considering myself extremely lucky, I have also spent years developing my skills, on paper and other types of canvases, long before I even picked up a tattoo machine. The artistry of my job is why I ever did that in the first place.

I understand that getting tattooed is a very intimate, nerve wracking process. I also believe that it's that vulnerability between the artist and the client that makes the process extremely special. With the rise of AI and generative content, I have noticed an increase in generated images used as references, often with the intention to replace the artist's designing process altogether.

In my personal life, I choose not to use AI tools wherever possible. I understand that this is not the case for many people, and that's okay! However, when opting to work with me, I'd like to ask my clients to trust the process and choose me for their project because they like my art and ability to bring their ideas to life. I value my craft and believe that it's the collaboration between myself and my clients that creates the magic.

Any references and details that you provide are welcome (the more, the better!). Moodboards are a joy to work with. However, please note that all projects will be customised for you. I understand that this is not ideal for some, and that's okay! I will not be the perfect artist for everyone, and will always encourage tattoo seekers to do their research and choose their artist carefully. Autonomy is important. Humans are beautiful. Thank you for considering me, and if you feel like I'm the right person for you, please don't hesitate to get in touch!
