Its magic is brisk and unmistakable — a sudden clearing of fog, a brightening of perception, a rush of fresh force through the subtle body. Though common in gardens, Peppermint carries an old, crystalline power, making it a trusted ally in rites that require decisiveness, renewal, or the cutting away of stagnant influence.

Notes for the Practitioner

Peppermint is a herb of cold brilliance. It does not coax; it clears. It does not warm; it awakens. Call upon it when your mind needs sharpness, when your spirit requires renewal, or when your magic demands swift, decisive movement. Treat it as a companion of frost and breath — bright, invigorating, and unerringly clean.
