SPECIAL PHOTOLOG EDIT

WINTER VISITS BEGIN

On October 30, Barr and Margie began the winter visits and trips, visiting and talking with campers parents, counsellors and new campers and counsellors.

It was a beautiful fall day as we left Lake George heading west and south in two cars. Margie, with Stacey, started her trip by driving to her family's home in Warren, Penna. The plan was for Barr to begin his winter travels with the ance-a-yed trip to the south, with Margie joining him two weeks later.

Barr's itinerary took him first to Maryland and Washington, D.C. where he spoke with the Weavers by telephone and expects to see them on his return trip north. After calling the Southwarths and Russos in Virginia, the next destination was Atlanta, Ga., with a stopover in Charlotte, N.C. Birmingham and Tuscaloosa, Ala., were next with the furthest point west being Mississippi. Last year, we included Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana but this year did not. In Tuscaloosa we saw Ruth and Mike Kincaid. They are both fine and hope to return to the Timlo staff in 1966.

From Mississippi, we drove southeast to Florida. At the University of Alabama, and Florida State University, we interviewed counsellor prospects. We visited Pat Rehm in Melbourne, and Clark Johnson and his family in Jacksonville. We visited with other campers in Indiatlantic and Fort Lauderdale. By this time, Margie had arrived from the north and the weather was so pleasant we decided to spend a few days in Fort Lauderdale. We had an opportunity to talk with Ed Gomez from Delray Beach.

By December 1, we will have begun our return trip north with the first major stop in Washington. From this point on, we expect to be seeing and talking with campers and counsellors and will pass on a good bit more news about their activities in the next TIMLOG.

Because so many excellent pictures depicting camp life and activities were taken last season, we wanted to send you a special Photolog, which includes many of these pictures. This is not an annual undertaking but, under the circumstances, it seemed like a good idea this year. We hope you will enjoy seeing so many of last year's campers and counsellors. If you would like to have an extra copy or copies, please write to us with that request.
