Fastball: The Brennan Cardinals rebounded from an earlier loss to St. Joseph's to down the Lasers 10-2 in the Windsor Wildcats high school girls fastball tournament held Saturday.

The Lasers, who were unbeaten heading into the final, had downed the Cards 15-12 during round-robin play, but they couldn't do much with Brennan pitchers Annemarie Rathburn and Tracy Lambert in the championship game. Leading the Cardinals' hitting attack were Wildcats' clinic: It's been booming for three years, but for some reason interest was lacking for this year's Windsor Wildcats softball skills clinic for girls' age nine to 13.

"It's been cancelled," said Barry Fields, who coaches the novice II team. "There was just not enough kids this year."

The clinic had been set for Monday at Jackson Park.

"We don't know if it was because it was the long weekend or because there are so many other activities," Fields said. "There was just a poor response."

Last year, over 100 girls took part in the one-day clinic.

"Compared to last year, there was less than 40 per cent interest," Fields said.

However, because the Wildcats' program is now so successful, there was no open dates left this year to hold an alternate clinic.

"There was talk of early fall, but it's looking like we'll wait until next spring and do it every two years," Fields said.

"Because the Wildcat teams are so busy this year, we don't have any open dates. We just weren't able to pull off another date."

End of the line for Dawson scholarships

By Mary Caton
Star Sports Reporter

For years the Dawson family has handed out scholarships to Windsor's finest student/athletes.

And with those scholarships, the family has also handed out quite a few dreams.

The generous financial aid offered by the Gladys and Edward Dawson Memorial Scholarship has allowed graduating students to pursue careers in teaching, law, medicine and journalism to name just a few.

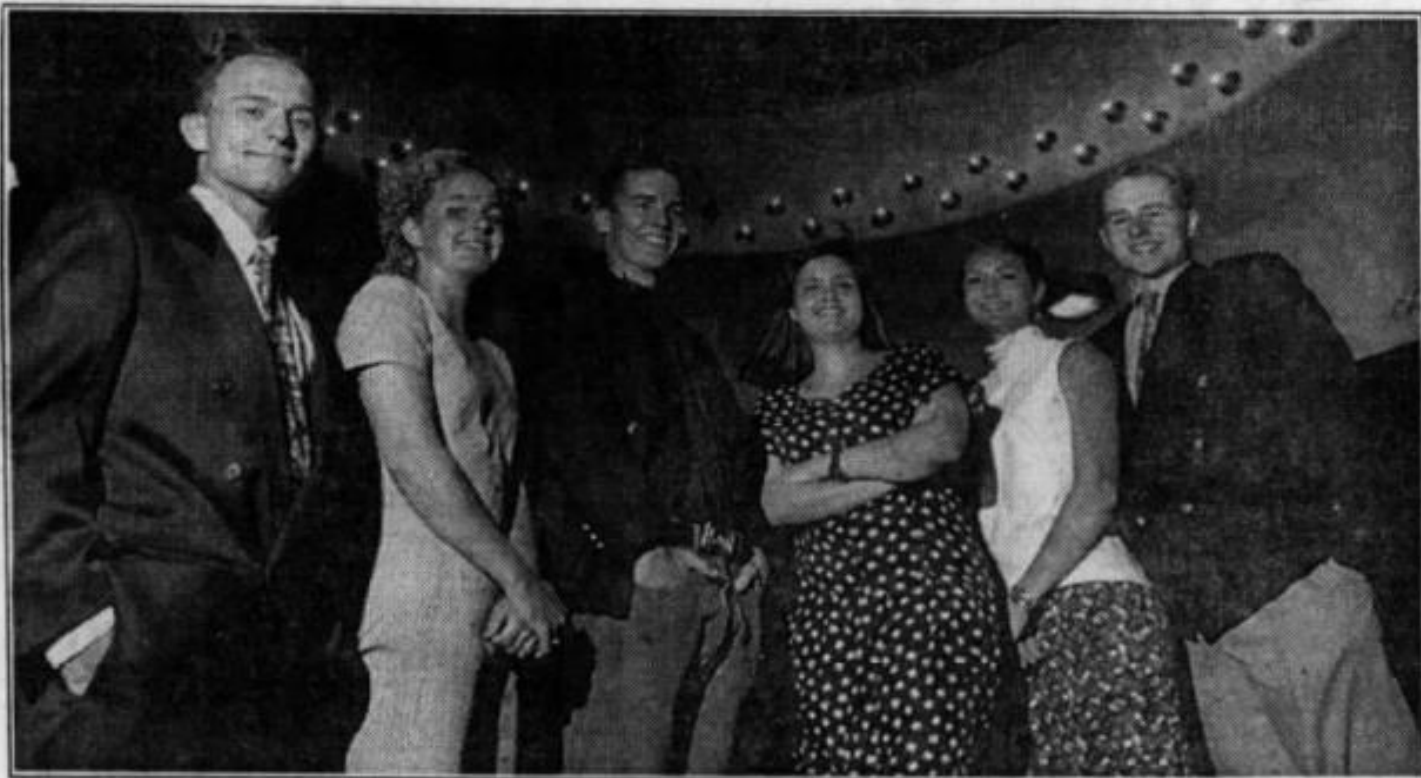

The six winners honored Tuesday at a dinner at the Royal Marquis, each recieved $4,000 towards their post-secondary education.

They are: Riverside's Colleen Caplin, Assumption's David Michels and Massey's Sydney Hope, Matthew Jones, Julia Thomas and Rhys Trenhaile.

THIS GROUP comprises the final recipients of this prestigious award. After 20 years, the committee is ending the scholarship at the request of the family.

"They did not want winners who would not be able to identify with the people responsible for making the award happen," said committee member Frank Johnson.

Edward Dawson passed away in 1968 after an outstanding career as a teacher and coach at Patterson Collegiate. His wife, Gladys, came up with the idea of a scholarship fund in his name and when she died in 1973 the family decided to honor both of them.

Over the course of 20 years, 117 student/athletes have received a total of $263,110.

"It's kind of sad to see it end but it's nice to go out on a high note," said Diane Girard, a niece of the Dawsons.

THIS YEAR'S scholarship total of $24,000 is the highest one-year output.

It will allow Caplin to study sports medicene next fall at Eastern Michigan University, where she has been offered a softball scholarship. She ran track and played badminton, basketball and volleyball at Riverside.

Hope, who participated in basketball, soccer, volleyball and gymnastics, is bound for McMaster University to study geography and environmental studies.

Jones, who swam and played badminton, is intent on a career in dentistry that will begin at the University of Windsor.

Michels swam and played volleyball and soccer at Assumption, is off to the University of Calgary for its pre-med program.

Thomas, who ran track and cross-country, is debating whether it's Queens or Windsor for biology.

And Trenhaile, like fellow Massey grad Jones, will be at the University of Windsor to study science. He played soccer and ran track and cross-country.

As well as excelling in sports, all six have maintained averages of 85 per cent or better during their high school careers.

"It's a little difficult to see this come to an end," Johnson told the gathering. "But in you, the winners, this scholarship doesn't end, it just carries on."

Windsor fast becoming a power in girls' fastball

WOMEN'S BASEBALL IN Windsor hasn't taken long to become as dominant in the province as their male counterparts.

A good case in point was last weekend's London Girls' Fastball Tournament where all four Windsor Wildcats teams participating came home with a medal including two gold medals, a silver medal and a bronze medal.

JIM PARKER

"To get to any medal round in any division is something, but to get two golds and four medals is something," said Barry Fields, who guided the Novice II squad to a gold-medal finish.

"To see Windsor across the board was something and we were the talk of the town."

AMATEUR BASEBALL ROUNDUP

All four Windsor teams went perfect in pool play.

The Novice II team, which features 12 year olds, started with a 12-1 win over Byron, a 14-3 win over Markham and a 12-4 win over Milton.

In the semi-finals, the club beat Oakridge 6-2 before claiming the gold with an 8-3 win over Seaforth.

Pitchers Sara Smith and Heather Vernes led the team combining to strike out 40 in five games.

Offensively, Kim MacKinnon batted .405 with 10 RBI and Vernes batted .428.

The Novice Tier I team, featuring players 14 and under, captured the other gold medal.

The squad completed pool play with an 8-1 win over Markham, a 6-4 win over London and a 9-8 win over Oakville.

From there, the club beat St. Catharines 3-1 in the semi-final before taking the gold with a 6-5 extra-innings win over Guelph.

Angela Lauzon led the club with a .500 average, seven RBI and also pitched 4 1/2 games. Christina Cushman also batted .500 and drove in eight runs.

The squirt team, which features players 12 and under, won a silver medal.

The club opened pool play with an 8-2 win over Waterloo that featured a no-hitter by Sarah Tremaine. The Wildcats then completed a triple play in beating Brampton B 6-2 before Jodi Nelitz's no-hitter completed pool play as Windsor beat Cawthra 19-1.

Windsor bested Stratford 7-6 in the semi-finals before falling 7-0 to Brampton A in the gold-medal final.

Offensively, Jill Farrah batted .571 in the tournament and Mary Beatty batted .555.

The bantam team finished with a bronze medal. The club scored pool play wins of 3-0 over Brampton, 13-1 over Six Nations and 7-1 over Stratford.

The club then fell 7-3 in the semis to London, which is the defending provincial champions.

For the tournament, the club received strong performances from pitchers Chantelle Seguin, Tracy Lambert and Robin Fairin.

Wildcats roll: A bronze-medal performance by the Midget I team at a regional tournament last weekend has earned the club a trip to the provincial finals later this month.

The club rode the strong arm of Jen Malcolm after losing its opener 5-3 to Maryhill in the double-elimination tournament.

Following that defeat, Malcolm threw a two-hitter in a 7-0 mercy win over Kitchen-er.

Malcolm was again on the hill in a 1-0 nine-inning win over Thorold in which she allowed just three hits and struck out 11.

Malcolm then grabbed her third straight pitching win with a two-hitter in a 10-3 win over Maryhill.

Lindsay Hannon then followed with a two-hitter in an 8-1 win over Brampton that clinched the bronze medal before the club bowed out of the tournament with an 11-4 loss to Waterloo.

For the tournament, Jen Carriere batted .556, Colleen Caplin hit .521 and Sabrina Carter hit .313.

A top-two finish at the provincials will send the team to the national championships.

Meanwhile, the Wildcats' Novice I team dropped a 6-1 decision to the hosts in the championship game of the St. Clair Shores girls' fastball tournament on the weekend.

Windsor defeated L'Anse Cruise 15-0, Marine City 19-2 and St. Clair Shores 15-2 in pool play to reach the final.

Erin Murphy led the attack with a .688 average and Jenny Fields batted .455 with four RBIs.

DON GILBERT and other area umpires share their secrets for coping with the toughest job in baseball. See reporter Mary Caton's story on p. B7.

Callin' it like they see it

By Mary Caton
Star Sports Reporter

They step up to the plate right after night but no one ever cheers for them.

If they have a good game, few people notice and fewer care.

Let them have a bad game and a chorus of complaints will rain down upon them from the stands and the dugouts alike.

Such is the accepted lot of a baseball umpire.

Still, guys like Clayt Tourangeau has called umpiring his hobby for 37 years. And Don Gilbert has strapped on a chest protector for 17 years.

Each man takes pride in his work and approaches the plate with a healthy dose of humor that seems key to their survival.

"It's a thankless job," Tecumseh Green Giants' manager Don Fields said. "But what I like about all those guys is that you can talk to them. They listen to what you're saying."

"All those guys love baseball," adds Bill Symonds who coached with the Tecumseh Green Giants for years. "They're not in it for a million bucks, that's for sure."

Money is definitely not the motivation for this trio. In fact, Ladouceur won't take any money for doing Little League games or any of the travel expenses incurred for doing an out-of-town Little League tournament.

Tourangeau has a standing offer to run umpiring schools free of charge to any baseball organization in the area and Gilbert has been teaching for the Ontario Baseball Association since 1978.

"When I'm teaching, I talk about developing a thick skin," says Gilbert, 45. "I tell them don't let the parents get to you."

Turning a deaf ear to insults is definitely a trait most people learn to acquire over the years.

"THE BIGGEST problem I find now from when I started is the nature of the conversations," Gilbert said. "Before, a guy came out and discussed a play. Now, it's very personal. They tell you you're blind, you're brutal. It has nothing to do with what happened on the field."

"But, I still think a good umpire has to do everything they can to keep the guy in the game," Gilbert continued.

Tourangeau agrees.

"The thing to look for in an umpire is how are you going to handle yourself when you get in a pickle. Calling balls and strikes is no big deal. But how are you going to react when something goes wrong. I want to become part of the team."

I'm not there to dominate and nobody ever paid me a red cent to watch me umpire. What they do on TV, that's entertainment. You don't want to go nose-to-nose with anyone. If they have a legitimate beef you listen to them and when they're through then you tell them how you saw it.

"AFTER THAT, I say 'Are we done?' And if we are then I'm turning around and don't follow me because it's too damn much paperwork if you do."

Ladouceur, who has umpired at 13 Canadian championships and over 50 Ontario championships, uses creative thinking to quiet a bothersome agitator.

At one particular game, a heckler from the stands had a comment about every ball and strike Ladouceur called. Finally, the teacher from Holy Names in Essex walked into the stands and sat down next to the heckler.

"I told the pitcher to go ahead and pitch the ball and he did and I called it a ball. The guy in the stands said, 'I get your point.' And he was quiet the rest of the game."

Another time, it was a player whose yapping forced Ladouceur into action. He asked the teenager who the best player on his team was and when he pointed a finger at a teammate Ladouceur told the yapper that if he mouthed off again, the star would be thrown from the game.

Gilbert, who works at Ford, recalls the first time he was assigned to a women's fastball game. He decided to play the role of macho man and didn't bother bringing his chest protector to the game. He left the park with a bruised body and a bruised ego. Not only did the foul tips hit his arms with stinging force, but he split the seat of his pants open in the third inning.

"From that day on, I've always brought two pairs of pants to a game and I've never gone without proper equipment."

The highlight of Gilbert's career was doing the world senior championships in Italy in 1988.

He called balls and strikes for Ben McDonald, now of the Baltimore Orioles. And the catcher was Ed Sprague, now of the Toronto Blue Jays.

Tourangeau has also done a number of international tournaments over the years and each New Year's Eve he raises a glass to his fellow officials.

"Every time we'd get together for a tournament we'd always say we'll write and stay in touch and we never do," the 58-year-old said of his international cohorts. "But the common holiday for all of us is New Year's Eve so one guy suggested we toast all of us on that day."

Afterall, if they don't toast themselves, who will?

Underhanded Hames leads Oakville

Hard Boys' Avestel Credit Union Eagles (from left) Dick Hames, Erroll Duncan and Rod Currie display the gold medallions they earned for taking top spot in the Canadian Oldtimers Baseball championship for the second straight year. The three Hard Boys were members of the Oakville Old A's who successfully defended their 1993 championship, won at Hamilton last year.

Burlington's Dick Hames threw a curve into the proceedings and helped the Oakville Old 'A's win its second consecutive Canadian Oldtimers Baseball Championship at Yarmouth, Nova Scotia last week.

Hames was one of three Burlington Hard Boys added to the team.

Hames, 58, toiled eight innings in four games, picked up three saves, struckout 10 and allowed just one unearned run.

Hurler Erroll Duncan, 59, pitched six innings in three games and also only gave up one unearned run. Rod Currie, 39, went 6-for-15 at the plate in the 16-team tournament.

Hames, of former fast-ball fame, throws under-hand windmill fashion. His style was disputed several times during the tournament, but there was nothing in the rule book to stop him.

Oakville beat Tecumseh Green Giants, another Ontario entry, in the championship game, 2-1.

"They play against us here and they don't complain (about my pitching)," said Hames, "I got the last laugh anyway. In the last inning I had a runner on, so I switched to overhand and all they got were two popups and a groundout."

It is the fourth national championship for Hames in three different sports.

Above all, he was a friend

Fred Thomas inducted into Detroit's Afro-American Sports Hall of Fame

An old friend begins by saying there are so many positive characteristics you could submit about Fred Thomas the athlete, the teacher, and the person.

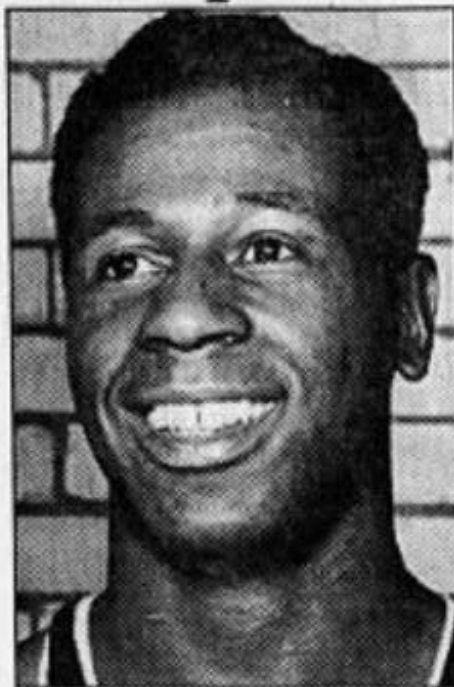

Unselfish?

"Oh, yes, completely. When he played, what he did never mattered to him. Everything was for the team."

LLOYD

Leaping ability in basketball? "You know, he was only six-foot-two, but his strength was rebounding, controlling the boards, and usually he was the best player out there.

FRED THOMAS played basketball for the Assumption Purple Raiders in 1949 about special athletes and their distinctive qualities.

A half-century ago, his own career as a basketball player at Assumption drew raves. Two of his sons, Bruce and Chris, followed in his footsteps and played for the University of Windsor Lancers. A third son, David, starred at York University.

Coulthard's memories of Thomas originate with an unusual decision by Ed Dawson, who was the basketball coach and head of athletics at Patterson Collegiate for more than three decades.

"Mr. Dawson had an eye for talent. Fred had attended public school. That meant he hadn't played any organized basketball, or even played sports in a gym.

"I remember when Fred first came to Patterson. Our senior team was playing half-court during a

"I remember one game we played against a team from Toledo. Fred was our centre. They weren't too worried about us at the start because they had a centre of their own who was six-foot-ten. Then, Fred took the opening jump from him."

Intelligent?

"Such a talent, and he was able to impart his knowledge. Of course, kids in a gym class always like to think of their teacher as being somebody special, with the reputation of a world-class athlete."

"WELL, FRED'S students had it right. He was exactly that, and they respected him."

The old friend is Bill Coulthard of Tillsonburg. If the next question is about a bond of companionship, the answer almost goes without saying.

"We were the same age," Bill reveals.

"We went through high school together, although since I was able to start a couple of years earlier, we weren't in the same grades."

"Later on, we did play basketball together at Assumption College. We were friends."

The multi-faceted legacy of Fred S. Thomas, considered by many to be Windsor's greatest athlete, is to be re-affirmed tonight with his posthumous induction into the International Afro-American ship fund.

Former University of Windsor basketball coach Dr. Paul Thomas will speak about Fred Thomas, his life, and his stellar career in sports.

"He's the best I ever saw," Paul Thomas says.

practice, and Ed gave him a basketball and told him to work on his dribbling, shooting, and lay-ups at the other end of the gym.

"THAT TOLD us something right away about this new player. You see, Ed didn't have time to work with every youngster who happened to come to the door wanting to play. He recognized Fred's athletic ability. He knew Fred had special talent."

Dawson became a mentor to Thomas, and in time, the coach's instincts were proven correct.

Thomas was blessed with natural athletic skill. He was able to master virtually every sport he tried. He established formidable standards of performance on the basketball court, the baseball diamond, and the football field.

Basketball was his favorite pursuit. In the late 1940s, at Assumption, he reached dizzying offensive plateaus during an era in which scoring wasn't dominant. His local career points record, more than 2,000 generated in four college seasons, remains unmatched.

HE LATER SIGNED professional contracts with the Toronto Argonauts of the CFL, and with the Cleveland Indians' organization. He performed with the Harlem Globetrotters, and also coached and played senior basketball in Toronto.

The Hall, formed in 1977, is situated in Detroit. Its objectives are to recognize and preserve the talents and contributions of black athletes, and offer support and guidance to young black people.

Halls of Fame and Thomas tend to be a good fit. Just two months after his death, he was top vote-getter among the inaugural group of members in the Windsor-Essex County Sports Hall of Fame.

Coulthard knows a thing or two

New members in the National category are former NFL running back Mel Farr and former NBA basketball player and coach Ray Scott.

The Thomas influence on local sports and young people remains evident. The community park adjacent to Windsor Arena on Wyandotte Street East bears his name.

"There are so many things you could say about Fred.

"Such a sense of humor. He was funny, friendly, outgoing. Of course, when we were on the road playing for Canadian championships, other teams wouldn't care too much about that, but away from the competition I can't think of anybody who didn't like him.

Such a legacy. So many positive characteristics. Who can even guess what might be the most positive of all?

Maybe an old friend.

"Just a delightful personality," Bill Coulthard remembers. "He was liked by everybody."
