Coordinate Plane Story

You'll be creating a story with a corresponding map and coordinates for this project.

Requirements: (see the rubric to better guide you before beginning your story and map).

- Label your map x and y axis on the map provided on the next page.
- Draw a 2D setting for you story. Make sure all of your story's settings are drawn on the map. Try your best to fill as much as your map as possible (extending your settings across the whole coordinate plane).
- Your story should include a main character (or a group of characters) that travel to different settings throughout your story.
- When describing character movement, or settings in the story, include the coordinates in the story.
 - i.e. Gerald frantically arrived at his friends house down the street (4,6) to see if the package had arrived.
 - i.e. Carla and her friends walked slowly into the cemetery (10, 12), fearful of what was behind the smog.

Map

Illustrations are detailed but appear somewhat rushed. The illustrations could enhance the visual representation of the story on the coordinate grid further.

Illustrations are detailed, enhancing the visual representation of the story on the coordinate grid.

Illustrations are exceptionally detailed, enhancing the visual representation of the story on the coordinate grid.

Coordinates

The use of coordinates has occasional errors in plotting or describing movements in the story on the coordinate grid.

The use of coordinates are accurate with only minor errors in plotting or describing movements in the story on the coordinate grid.

The use of coordinates are accurately plotted and describe movements in the story on the coordinate grid.

Story

The story is mostly clear, but sometimes hard to follow. Proofreading and editing would limit the errors in grammar, spelling, and punctuation. More descriptive language is needed.

The story is clear, organized, and generally free of errors in grammar, spelling, and punctuation. Some descriptive language enhances the story's quality.
