Spring Cleaning Tips for Kids

Benefits of spring cleaning for kids include more family time, increased physical activity and the opportunity to learn a few new skills. Plus, spring cleaning with kids can make jobs that seem tedious faster and more fun -- so get ready to dole out the (age-appropriate) duties.

Here are some inspiring ideas for cleaning with kids:

- Let them choose their chores. If your spring cleaning crew includes more than one child, plus parent participants, write jobs on paper, fold them and ask everyone to choose from a hat or jar. Or, create a chore wheel and spin for your task. Random selection cuts down on arguments.
- Divide and conquer. If you're cleaning a living room or bedroom, ask your oldest to vacuum while younger siblings put away toys or dust furniture and window sills.

- Tackle one at a time. Take spring cleaning one space at a time before you move on to another. Kids will enjoy seeing the results of their hard work.
- Inspire kindness. Talk to your kids about donating their old items to less fortunate children. Most will be glad to know they're helping someone their own age.
- Add a soundtrack. Play upbeat music to keep the kids motivated. Let each child pick a song, and see how much faster the scrubbing, polishing and organizing seems to go.
- Reward their efforts. When the work is done, you'll all be tired but satisfied. Celebrate your clean sweep with a pizza night, family movie or other fun activity.

Even though the days are finally getting warmer the mornings and evenings can still be cool. Please send a light jacket or sweatshirt with your child for the times we are outside.
