PATH EDUCATION

With the holiday shopping season in full gear, it's always a good reminder to source and gift responsibly. Shopping ethically could mean different things to different people. There are so many terms being used today - sustainable, organic, fair trade, upcycled, recycled, and on and on. What does it all really mean? Take a look at this article which claims to be a concise guide to ethical shopping to learn more. Ethical Shopping Guide

One of the points the article makes is that by shopping ethically, consumers can support causes they believe in and which match their value system. For those of us who are concerned with the depths of human trafficking, shopping ethically during the holiday season allows us the opportunity to support organizations which provide opportunities for survivors. The list below is a great place to start your holiday shopping. Perhaps you will find that perfect gift for your family and friends and support trafficking survivors at the same time. Merry gifting!

PATH IN THE BOARDROOM

We love it when we run into PATH board members out and about participating in our local community. Dr. Patricia Bautista-Cervera is always out and about due to her work with La Casita Center. The La Casita Center recently participated in the Festival of Faiths' Embodying Love plaza where local non-profits and organizations were given the opportunity to share and receive the love with Festival attendees. Thank you Dra. Paty for all you do!
