Letter from the Board

Welcome to another amazing start with a new MCMGA Board of Directors! We have 2 returning and 3 new members. I'd be remiss if I didn't acknowledge and wholeheartedly thank the previous Boards that have gone before us. For 12 years, we've had dedicated and devoted fellow EMG's serve on our Board to ensure that we continue our mission of educating and beautifying our communities. I am thankful to each and every one of them who have helped to mold our association into what we are today and am humbled, grateful and excited to serve as your President of the MCMGA.

As a founding member of our initial Board of Directors (VP), it is paramount to me that we continue to move forward. I'd like to continue what other Boards have accomplished and maintain an open line of communication. Please do not hesitate to reach out to myself or any other Board members with any questions, comments, concerns, ideas, etc. We are all here to continue to serve the needs of our members and to ensure the future success of our association. You can reach us at: MacombCountyMGA@yahoo.com or you can email me directly at Jean.Persely@outlook.com

Now, we all know that the active gardening season is coming to a close, so... get the last of your plants you still have sitting in pots into the ground – sooner than later; plant those bulbs before they rot on a shelf in your garage; clean up any diseased plant materials you have; then rest and let your garden continue to provide habitat for wildlife thru the remainder of Fall, Winter and well into the Spring season. Sit and reflect on this year's gardening successes and failures. What can be learned from them? What can be done differently in the future? Remember – the best garden is next year's garden!

Grab a warm cider, a friend or loved one and sit and enjoy the fruits of your labors – there is still much joy to have from our gardens during the inactive garden season as the leaves senesce and put on a show!

POPPY'S PICKS

Gardenfit by American Public Television

Did you find the September presentation “Gardening: It can be a growing pain” informative? If so, you may appreciate this series.

Discover how to take care of your body while taking care of your garden with expert gardener Madeline Hooper and personal fitness trainers Adam Schersten and Jeff Hughes. Tour gardens across America and learn gardening tips and techniques to avoid stress and injury. The guests include designers, painters, sculptors, ceramicist's, photographers, culinary pioneers, and musicians. You can find full episodes and shorts on YouTube.com or if you are a PBS subscriber on pbs.org.

About Madeline Hooper

After a trailblazing public relations career that included creating and building the leading marketing-PR firm DeVries Global, and then a career as a ballroom dance competitor and teacher, Madeline de Vries Hooper immersed herself in the world of gardening. She was invited to become a trustee of the Brooklyn Botanic Garden and then of the Berkshire Botanical Garden, where she has been Vice Chair for the past 10 years. She has visited many of the finest gardens in the United States and Europe and developed relationships with leading horticulturalists, garden designers, and plantspeople.

However, her passion for gardening left her with many aches and pains. A friend recommended she work with a personal trainer and she learned new techniques and exercises to relieve her pain and enable her to garden more enjoyably and productively. These newfound habits were the inspiration for the GardenFit television show and workshop program. Madeline and her husband live in Columbia County, New York, where for the past 20 years they have devoted themselves to maintaining Rockland Farm, a 10-acre garden they created from scratch.

About Adam Schersten

Adam started his career working for a coastal engineering firm in Florida as a boat captain and went on to teach SCUBA diving. It was through both these experiences that he realized the importance of maintaining one's fitness in order to enjoy nature for as long as possible. After being encouraged by a personal training friend to turn his passion for fitness into a real profession, Adam moved to New York City. His 11 years of experience as a personal trainer began with Equinox before becoming an independent trainer working with a wide range of NYC professionals and celebrities. He then went on to form his own corporate wellness and training company, First Move Wellness, which conducts workshops that address the pain and posture of an increasingly computer-bound workforce. He wrote The Esquire Guide to Bodyweight Training which embraces the concepts of calisthenics to help people improve their fitness with minimal or no equipment.

As a Vermont native and water-sport enthusiast, moving to NYC required finding new ways to enjoy nature. Adam coped by walking around his neighborhoods with a tree identification book and learning about all of the city's trees. He ultimately joined the Bonsai club at the Brooklyn Botanical Garden and for the past ten years has nurtured trees on a rooftop garden while also maintaining a jungle of houseplants.

About Jeff Hughes

Jeff, who served as the GardenFit Season 1 trainer, is an award-winning fitness trainer with more than three decades of experience. He holds a Bachelor of Science in Physical Education and began working as a fitness trainer at the Turnberry Spa in Miami, renowned for its celebrity clientele. He went on to own and operate fitness businesses in Los Angeles and New York City, and has maintained a private training business since 1988. Jeff has created programs for a wide variety of clients: from high-school athletes to Hollywood celebrities, CEOs and corporate professionals, to skiers, golfers, farmers, moms and dads.

In 2004, Jeff moved to Columbia County, New York, where he opened his TrainerFit Studio. This is where he coined the phrase "train the mind, the body will follow," which incorporates a cognitive slant to conventional fitness training practices. Jeff's training philosophy is that bodies accept new habits because they make sense and his training sessions are therefore filled with logical balance and strength techniques taught as habits. He trains one-on-one and creates programs that fit each client's physical and lifestyle needs. Jeff competed in the 2015 OCB Big East Natural Physique Championships in New York and won 1st place in the master's category as well as 3rd, 4th and 5th in other categories. He has coached both high school football and track & field and taught college-level physical education.
