THE ASSASSINATION OF CHARLIE KIRK: WHAT DO WE DO NOW?

by Tom DeWeese, American Policy Center

The number one thing we cannot do is surrender to fear! Charlie Kirk would never accept that. He would lead the movement to expose the forces of evil and work to eradicate them. Because that's what always he did! I have never known another activist so brave as Charlie as he routinely went on college campuses – the very heart of the Left's stronghold since the 1960s, when I started my political activism.

The forces of evil are determined to destroy our way of life. They have focused on every level of our society. Representative government of the people has suffered massive revisions through the forces of non-elected regional councils and private non-governmental organizations (NGOs) armed with an agenda for radical control. We see the results at every level of industry that's no longer concerned about providing the likes and needs for customers in a free market. Instead, they comply with the WOKE agenda. Local business is destroyed, housing choices disappear, and churches become afraid to speak out to the massive sin around them.

If, as a result of this terrible tragedy, freedom-loving Americans decide that it's too dangerous to stand up against these forces, that it's not worth gathering and speaking out, then such fear will only lead to a life not worth living or protecting. Terror, misery, and controlled submission will be our sentence. The lives of every American will be no better than that of a Hamas hostage.

Charlie was completely focused on assuring that our young people were prepared and determined to save American liberty. If we surrender now Charlie's life and sacrifice will just have been in vain.

So today, I plead with those who cherish American freedom – do not back down! If anything is to die now let it be the tyrannical WOKE agenda of lies deceit, and theft. Stand up with a determination that those who have been elected by the people truly represent the people. They must feel your pressure to ensure our society remains the beacon of freedom that has been the envy and the light of the world for every American generation to come.

Texas Senator Angela Paxton

Legislative and Special Session Update, as well as the November Constitutional Amendment Ballot

Angela Paxton was elected to the Texas Senate in November of 2018 and represents fast-growing Senate District 8, a district that is home to professional sports headquarters, dozens of Fortune 1000 companies, countless entrepreneurs and small businesses, and top-rated public schools. A secondary math teacher and school counselor for more than 20 years, she is the first educator elected to the Texas Senate in over two decades. Senator Paxton describes her job in three words: Listen. Learn. Lead.

Senator Paxton currently serves as the Vice Chair of the State Affairs Committee and as a member of the Senate committees for Finance, Education, Local Government, and Nominations.

Senator Paxton is the mother of four grown children and has six precious grandchildren. She is a member of Watermark Community Church.

AMERICANISM REPORT

by Ellen Leyrer

PROPERTY RIGHTS ARE THE KEY TO FREEDOM

OCTOBER 1, 2025

Property rights are the bedrock of American freedom. Without the ability to own and defend what is ours—land, home, business, or livelihood—every other liberty stands on shaky ground. Yet today, those rights are steadily chipped away by government overreach and shifting definitions of “public good.” To protect property is to protect freedom itself; to lose it is to lose the very essence of American independence.

Excerpts from American Policy Center:

The increasing encroachment of government regulations, pontificating politicians, and the enforcement of Social Justice schemes have led to a loss of understanding of the terms private property and property rights. It was once understood that the unauthorized entering of private property was a violation to the utmost. The property owner was justified and supported in taking necessary actions to remove the trespasser and secure that land.

Today, such ideas are considered radical, old fashioned, out of touch, and even reprehensible. The homeowner can be arrested for defending against an armed intruder. The intruder can actually sue a homeowner for shooting them even as the intruder breaks down the door intending to rob and do harm. Home protection is called violence, perhaps even racism. It's a whole new world of compliance, fear, and acceptance rather than pride, protection, and prosperity in ownership.

In the beginning of the nation – after the Declaration of Independence and the American Revolution, and the signing of the Treaty of Paris with Great Britain - the American people became complete, sovereign freeholders in the land with the same prerogatives as the King once had. Now in this new nation the English King had no further claim to the land and could not tax or otherwise encumber it.

From that point the United States government acknowledged private ownership...

But, as expert Ron Gibson has written, the enjoyment of free and clear title allowing owners to “own” their land without interference from any government, including the government of the United States, didn’t last long. Writes Gibson, “As a result of generations of constructive Trust Fraud perpetuated against the American people. . . we’ve been conned into believing we are ‘owning’ property, when in fact, and by law, we’re only in ‘possession’ of property utilizing it as a renter or tenant would. So long as we pay our rent (i.e., taxes and mortgages), get the licenses, pay the fees, have it insured, regulated, zoned and permitted, we can still remain ‘in possession.’”

Today, the history has been largely ignored by our government. Instead... when one buys property, we are issued a Warranty Deed. That is not a true title, but rather a “color of title.” That means you have a partner in the ownership of the land. The partner is the State, which encumbers the property with taxes and liens and all of those things, which simply render you a tenant on what should be your own land.

The government’s refusal to acknowledge true property rights has led to a massive destruction of the American system and is at the root of the creation of the largest reorganization of human society ever attempted.

...State Supreme Court Justice Richard B. Sanders wrote a “Fifth Amendment” treatise which included the following definition of property rights:

“Property in a thing consists not merely in its ownership and possession, but in the unrestricted right of use, enjoyment, and disposal. Anything which destroys any of the elements of property, to that extent, destroys the property itself. The substantial value of property lies in its use. If the right of use be denied, the value of the property is annihilated, and ownership is rendered a barren right.”

Clearly Sanders’ definition is based on the [historical intent].

Americanism Report

So, if private property rights are to be saved in the nation that practically invented the concept, let there be no doubt in what the term means.

See the [full article which also includes Ten Points to Define True Private Property Rights. Those] points speak specifically to the right of USE of the property. They do not infringe on a local government's ability for local rule or to impose local, reasonable, legal policy, so long as such policies recognize and protect the owner's use of their private property.

The very idea of “unrestricted right of use” by the property owner terrifies the powers in charge as they race to control every inch of land and its use. Meanwhile, under such plans the very idea of private property rights has become ignored and voided by government edict. The owner, then, has lost the ability to defend his property, or control who has access. The result is that private property rights, according to Justice Sanford's definition, have ceased to exist.

Nearly an unlimited variety of government programs, schemes and tricks are employed to control land use and violate the concept of private property. There are international rules and treaties, federal regulations and programs, state projects, and local plans — many interconnected to one specific goal designed to change our society, form of government, and way of life. Each focus on control or destruction of private property to achieve its goal. Leading that drive are powerful forces in partnership with private organizations having specific agendas and nearly unlimited funds affecting and affecting policies necessary for bringing it about.

To preserve our freedom, every American must understand why private property ownership must be protected.

GOP GUEST ARTICLE

Excerpts from The Noble Report:

The Ten Commandments returning to our Texas classrooms has been in the news. I've been hearing from educators around the area that are asking some great questions about the posters, so I thought we'd start today by covering those answers.

First question: Why are they important to have in classrooms?

Because they are historically foundational to our Nation's education system and our judicial system.

The Ten Commandments were a prominent part of American education for centuries before the Court's 1980 decision. Generations of Americans were schooled using the Ten Commandments.

First, in the Bible itself, as it was the original textbook used in the Americas, so many of our forefathers learned to read and write with the Bible as their primary book.

The Ten Commandments are not only important to our educational system, but our U.S. judicial system as well has laws that reference every single one of the Commandments and have been cited favorably in over 500 court cases.

Bottom line: Returning the Ten Commandments to our Texas Classrooms gives our Texas school children a view of our American historical foundational education and judicial systems, systems that were honored and taught for more than 300 hundred years of our land's history. In a day and age where classroom management is more and more an issue, let's remind students of the basic truths of "respect authority, tell the truth, and treat others with respect, be loyal, and respect the property of others."

Vision and Mission Statement:

Plano Republican Women is an American political club, bringing together women to positively impact the direction of our nation. We come together as a collective force advancing the power of women through political access and participation. Our mission is to see women from all age groups and walks of life as key players at the political table of national, state, and local issues.
