About the Course

Pharmacovigilance is a field of science that primarily deals with determining, verifying, quantifying, analyzing, and reducing the ill effects of medical drugs, devices, or biologicals, thus ensuring their safety. Pharmacovigilance plays an anchor role throughout the life cycle of new drugs and devices due to a demand created by the requirement of new medical treatments and their legislation.

Curio's Executive Diploma in Pharmacovigilance & Drug Safety program is devised to meet the increasing demand by the industry for drug safety and quality assurance professionals. The program is carefully designed by experienced faculty from the industry, especially to provide an understanding of core quality assurance methods, processes, and practices. The program enables the professional to develop a solid foundation in Pharmacovigilance & helps cultivate advanced skills & competence to manage and deliver quality systems and results.
