

Reproductive Freedom & Health Care Access

As a husband, father, veteran, and longtime public servant, I believe deeply personal medical decisions belong between patients, families, and their doctors — not politicians.

I support protecting reproductive freedom and maintaining Colorado's existing protections for abortion access and reproductive health care. Colorado voters have made clear that they value personal privacy, individual liberty, and the right to make private medical decisions without government interference.

I also believe reproductive freedom means more than just legality. Access must be real, affordable, and available. That includes:

- protecting access to contraception and preventive care,
- supporting maternal and prenatal health services,
- ensuring rural and underserved communities can access care,
- and preventing health care consolidation or political pressure from reducing reproductive health services in Colorado.

Women experiencing pregnancy complications, medical emergencies, or difficult personal circumstances deserve compassion, quality medical care, and the ability to make decisions with their doctors and loved ones.

I do not support criminalizing patients or medical providers for private medical decisions.

At a time when health care costs continue to rise, we should focus on improving access, affordability, and outcomes for Colorado families — not inserting politics into exam rooms.

In the Colorado House, I will support policies that protect reproductive freedom, defend patient privacy, and ensure Colorado families continue to have access to safe, legal reproductive health care.
