If you're feeling the strain of holding it all together—harmonizing people, purpose, and pressure while the ground keeps shifting—you're not alone.

Many leaders are being asked to provide clarity, stability, and collaboration without a clear path forward. This experience is designed for leaders navigating competing demands that cannot be solved through expertise alone.

Designed and facilitated by Laura King and Jonah Fertig-Burd, experienced leadership practitioners working at the intersection of organizational change, collaboration, and regenerative practices. This all-day collaborative experience in the emergent spring forest helps leaders in uncertain times.

This experience is for you if you are:

Navigating rapid change or ongoing uncertainty
Holding responsibility across teams, boards, or organizations
Expected to lead collaboratively without clear answers

By engaging in creative earth-based rituals, meaningful dialogue, and leadership circles, we will deepen our capacity to lead with authenticity and effective collaboration for our shared future.
