

The Hallettsville Casino Club

By Brenda Lincke Fisseler

The August 29, 1889 Hallettsville Herald announced that some of the citizens of Hallettsville had met at the pavilion west of town on Sunday and organized the Hallettsville Casino Club.

The club was formed by local citizens with the purpose of benefitting its members morally and intellectually by the congregation of good and honorable men and women to its meetings. To own and maintain a building or room by donation, lease or purchase for the members and their families to meet for the encouragement of science, literature, gymnastics and general healthful and honorable amusement and when practical to maintain a library.

The group was open to anyone regardless of nationality, creed, faith or politics.

The group would play chess, checkers, domino, piquet, cribbage, whist, casino and hopefully a bowling or rolling alley which could be added with the approval of the members.

No game of chance would be allowed within the premises of the club and betting was entirely prohibited.

The group planned a grand opening on October 13th, 1889. A meeting was held the first Monday in October on the program and other important business. Many casino organization across the state were invited to the event. The grand opening, however, had to be postponed until the 1st Sunday in November and trains would run on the S.A. & A.P. This would enable the clubs of Houston, Galveston, San Antonio, Fort Worth, Dallas and other places to arrive on Sunday's noon train.
