And that go-fast feeling is certainly how it has been around here for the past two weeks. The positive reaction to the website launch and the announcement has been very energizing. That feedback creates the excitement it takes to get out, meet people, and find what can, and needs, to be done. That makes the list of great ideas grow and the time available, well, you know, it seems to be quite finite - hence the idea that stuff does feel a bit fast right now.

So, what's happened, and what's coming up?

The people who make things happen - I started writing the next Photo Graphics blog entry, and it occurred to me that in the flurry of start-up activity the last blog may have got lost in the shuffle - that's where I discuss the community of key individuals (Gena, Howard, and Mike) who really helped me prioritize things. So, if you have a few minutes please click on the following link and have a look at that May 22nd entry, and know that I am extremely grateful to this group who provided amazing support. I don't want that to be forgotten.

it's about the photography and the images - and that can be easy to forget in the many things it takes to get a business going. So it was good for my perspective to get to a race track last Saturday in Mission BC and spend the day shooting a race weekend for motorcycle racing clubs from BC and Alberta. I got to spend time with friends, meet some new people and be out where the racing is going on. And brought home 800+ images to play with. Those days remind me that staying involved in keeping the image library fresh is going to be important. It isn't just new pictures, it's a chance to use experience and knowledge to find fresh new views.

New Blue Marble website images - adding content in the form of new images is one of the best things I get to do regularly now and in the latest update there are images from Virginia, Connecticut, the Grand Canyon, France, Vancouver, and Prince Edward Island. Let me know what you think - I'd very much enjoy having others help to make suggestions about content they would like to see. I probably have too much ready to go, and it is proving challenging when the decision about what to include, and what set aside, occurs. Next planned update is Action Graphics in mid-June.

Finally, a thought brought on by spending time with people who like to push the envelope...

“If everything seems under control, you’re just not going fast enough.” Mario Andretti
