
"We do not learn from experience..."

Dave Cavan <davecavan@davecavan.com>
To: djcavan@gmail.com

Fri, Aug 12, 2022 at 11:52 AM

"we learn from reflecting on experience" John Dewey

Probably not what you expected when you opened your email today. A WWII German fighter, complete with a swastika, zipping across the top of the page. One of those great stories you trip over when you're not looking for them.

There's a new blog entry today, celebrating a December 20th, 1943 event that most of us never heard of before. It was my great take-away moment from the recently completed Abbotsford air show, turning an event that is mostly about machinery and technology into a lesson about people acting well when the moment counted. I hope you get a chance to read that, and let me know your thoughts. The link below should take you there.

Photography, stories, and humanity

