Solemnity of the Ascension of the Lord
Lect 58—Year C

According to the author of Luke and Acts, whom scripture scholars believe to be the same writer, Jesus' final words to his disciples were that they "will be my witnesses...to the ends of the earth" (Acts 1:8). Certainly his first disciples would make excellent witnesses, for they had spent years with him: living with him, traveling with him, seeing and hearing most everything he did. But the witnessing did not end with them. We tend to think of eyewitnesses primarily, but people can also witness to something they heard, or felt, or sensed in some other way. This is the kind of witness we can provide. We can witness to the difference Jesus makes in our lives: that he accompanies us in our sufferings, forgives us of our sins, redeems us by his resurrection, promises us eternal life with the Father. These are the key truths he listed for his disciples at the end of Luke's Gospel; this is what he implicitly leaves for us to witness to as well. Moreover, we already have the Holy Spirit, who guides us as we bear witness. May our witness help extend that forgiveness, reconciliation, and hope to those we meet.

In what way can your witness bring forgiveness to someone else, reconciliation between others, or hope to someone in despair?

*God is good all the time:
all the time God is good!*
