

Establishing Health Goals

Before we begin our journey together, I want to discuss something very important that will have a major impact on your ability to recover and achieve maximum improvement. After many years in private practice, I have had the opportunity to work with hundreds of patients and have seen many achieve significant improvement while others have become frustrated and failed in their attempts to get well. After careful review, I have discovered the reasons why some people succeed and why others fail. This questionnaire is about much more than eliminating your so-called “symptoms”—it’s about living a life of vibrant health.

I’ve discovered that the correct way to achieve health and stay healthy is to discuss of how you have lived your life up to this point and how you will live it in the future.

Have you ever wondered if you are on the right path to achieving optimal health? The definition of insanity: "to keep doing the same thing over and over and expecting different results." If you keep following the course of treatment you have been following and it hasn't been successful, will your results ever change? No. You need a new and improved way to reach your destination.

Most people tell me they’ve made the decision to change. But how many people have truly decided to change? Very few! Why? Because there is a big difference between deciding something and having “reasons” to actually do it. When you make a decision to change and you know your reasons, you create an internal power that can propel you to achieving health and wellness.

Therefore, to help you make significant changes in your health, I want to ask you a few very important questions. I want you to be honest with yourself and really dig deep inside for the answers.
