

Google Classroom- Tips and Tricks

- Very best way for you to stay on top of what has been assigned is to use your student's login information and log into the various websites (mainly Google Classroom and Savvas) directly as the student and look around. This will give you the clearest picture of what they are expected to do.
- Just because an assignment has been marked "Turned In" by the student does not necessarily mean that it is complete.
 - Students can attach and submit blank google docs
 - Submit an assignment with nothing attached.
 - Edit worksheets we assign to delete questions instead of answering them
- Click on an assignment and see exactly what has been submitted.
 - If need be, an assignment can always be "unsubmitted", corrected, and resubmitted. As long as this happens before the "due date" deadline (usually midnight by default), there will be no late penalty.
- Anything that a student creates and attaches to an assignment is also saved in their Google Drive- things don't just disappear, they don't delete themselves, etc.
- Troubleshooting - make sure you are logged in as the student. Your personal google email address will not grant you access to Classroom. You can tell this by looking at the top right of the screen and looking at the icon.
- Reminder - Math work on Savvas, everything else on Classroom.
- If you have any questions or need help with Google Classroom, you can reach out to your child's teacher and they should be able to help or find someone who can.
