Medina County Probate, Juvenile Court and Juvenile Detention Center Websites Revamped

The Medina County Court of Common Pleas, Probate and Juvenile Division, and the Medina County Juvenile Detention Center websites have been updated with a new user-friendly format and navigation. The updated sites boast brighter colors and more images while also keeping up with the heightened security standards required to prove authenticity for websites.

“We wanted to provide a better visual experience and familiar images including the Judge and photos of our community,” said Network Administrator Michael Stiles. “With the new layout, we can highlight upcoming events at the Court and Juvenile Detention Center, changes to laws or programs, and alert the public to any emergencies, such as Court closings due to inclement weather.”

Stiles also utilized Google Analytics to determine which information on the website the public sought most often.

“By far, the two most popular pages are the marriage page and Probate forms,” he said. “So we now have easy access to those pages by using quick link icons on the home page.”

As always, the website continues to provide local rules, forms and brochures for both the Probate and Juvenile Divisions, annual reports, and contact information. The Take Control Teen Driving Program video is also highlighted on the site. The video explains the program which aims to help teen drivers gain skills needed in difficult driving situations.

“Apart from looking visually appealing, we also want to make sure that we are evolving to meet the public’s needs on our website,” said Judge Kevin W. Dunn. “This new layout will provide the platform to expand our future online presence and the possibility of multimedia content. We work diligently to provide valuable programming, and we often provide trainings and Continuing Legal Education courses. Those are things we want the public to know about; so we will now be able to feature them and keep the community apprised of our efforts.”
