

A big win of doing this coaching, and the money mindset work, is that I don't shy away from putting myself out there anymore.

Before, it felt like:

"how can I find something to offer?"

Constantly looking for an opportunity to jump on.

Now, I can be upfront:

"I know what you need right now - and I can tell you how I can help you."

I'm really understanding, at a high level, what I do, and because of that I can very quickly say whether I'm the right person for someone right now - and also be okay saying I'm not.

I've developed my own narrative of how I deal with this, that is in keeping with me. I feel totally comfortable.

I know I'm selling, but it just feels so natural – because I know exactly how I can help and the value of it.

And I feel proud when I look back at where I was at the start of the programme.

I was being really honest with myself. I could see where the issues were – but I couldn't see how to actually change them. Now I have.

I'm Maria, and I help expert service providers confidently design, price and sell their high-value offers, attract premium clients who are ready to invest, and build a business that reflects their true value, whilst staying authentic and in integrity with yourself.

Apply at:

<https://womeninbusinesscoaching.co.uk/work-with-me>